Il Duce Lends His Support To Restoring Of Hapsburgs

War Menace Mounts as Premier Defies Threat of Little Entente.

Otto Awaits Call To Rule Austria

Resistance to Movement Planned in Conference at Bucharest.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Vienna, June 17.—Restoration of the imperial house of Austria, which may plunge central Europe into war, moved a step nearer tonight when it became known that Premier Benito Mussolini tacitly approved it in defiance of the Little Entente's threats of armed resistance.

Sources close to the government said Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, now in Italy, will devote all his energy toward accomplishing restoration of the monarchy as the only means of Austria's salvation.

This coincided with the following developments:

1. Italy returned to Austria 40 carloads of field guns captured during the World War.

2 The general staffs of the Little Entente — Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—were in session in Bucharest discussing military preparations and co-operation in event of war.

3. Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne, sent a message to the people, saying that he is awaiting their call.

4. Public agitation in favor of Otto's return increased greatly.

An official said Premier Mussolini has agreed that restoration of the Hapsburgs is the best solution of Austria's complicated internal problem, but urged that a favorable moment be awaited in order not to disturb international relations.

Full agreement was reached between Austria and Italy some time ago regarding "future orientation" of the Austrian government's policy, it was said.

The revelation of Mussolini's agreement regarding restoration, coincided with a message to the Austrian people from Archduke Otto, now in exile with his mother in Belgium.

Otto asserted that banishment of the monarch was a breach of law and that the nation was a victim of circumstances.

A few weeks ago, Otto, apparently on inspired advice, sent a message to the people saying, "I await only the call of the Austrian people to return."

Today there was a monarchist ceremony at Linz, close to the Italian border, where his sister, Archduchess Adelaide, and his uncle, Archduke Eugen, who was a field marshal in the Austro-Hungarian imperial army, were guests of honor.

Eugene Forecasts "Decision."

Vienna, June 17 (AP).—The Archduke Eugene, granduncle of the Archduke Otto, Hapsburg pretender, and World War field marshal of the Austro-Hungarian armies, in an address at Linz predicted today the Austrian people "soon will have an opportunity to express an opinion on the question of restoration of the monarchy."

Legitimists, meanwhile, received another letter from Otto who pictured himself as a neutral pacifier, uninvolved in Austrian political disputes, who could restore order.

Aged Man Is Found Shot Dead in Home

Adam H. Robertson, 88, retired farmer, of Travillah road, near Rockville, was found shot to death in his bed late yesterday.

Beside his body was a 16-gauge shotgun, with one empty shell in the chamber. The charge had decapitated Robertson.

Discovery of the dead man was made by his daughter, Mrs. S. E. Roberts, of Rockville, and her friend, Mrs. Mary Burroughs.

Nearby lay a purse containing seven loaded shotgun shells. The aged man, who lived alone, was last seen Tuesday by his daughter. Police last night were investigating his death.

Sen. Fletcher, of Florida, Dies; Served at Capitol for 27 Years

Veteran Democrat, 77, New Deal Supporter, Stricken Here.

By Sidney Olson.
A Staff Correspondent.

The second-row aisle seat on the Democratic side in the Senate was vacant yesterday. The black and shining surface of Senator Fletcher's desk was uncluttered for the first time in 27 years.

For kindly, shrewd, tireless old Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, was dead—the man who herded more New Deal legislation through a Senate committee than any other Senator; the man who never was so harassed he wouldn't stop to pat a page boy on the head.

Senator Fletcher, 77 years old, was struck by coronary thrombosis at his apartment yesterday at 10:30 a. m.

A few hours later, the House eliminated from the deficiency relief bill the Florida ship canal project for which Senator Fletcher had labored arduously for months.

Although he had been overworking steadily throughout the session, he apparently had been little affected by the strain. However, colleagues, including Senator Scott Loftin, of Florida, had ugred him to quit for the session and rest. He refused.

Feeling in normal health when he arose, he was stricken shortly after breakfast, and a doctor was called. The physician and a maid were the only persons in the room when he died. Mrs. Fletcher and a daughter, Mrs. Nell Smith-Gordon, were in the apartment. The Senator's other daughter, Mrs. T. J. Kemp, of St. Louis, was notified.

SENATOR DUNCAN U. FLETCHER.

Loftin paid high tribute to his colleague. Senator Loftin said:

"I believe he died as he wanted to die—in harness."

In respect, the Senate adjourned. This is the second time death has set back the final adjournment date of this prolonged session, for but two weeks ago the unexpected death of Speaker Joseph W. Byrns of the House halted the adjournment rush before the Republican convention.

Slightly more than a month ago Senator Fletcher's colleague of many years, Senator Park Trammell, of Florida, died on May 8. The two had served in the Senate together for more than 20 years.

Britain to Lead Drive to Abolish Curbs on Italy

Cabinet Reverses Its Stand in Attempt to Regain Duce's Co-operation.

By the United Press.

London, June 17.—The British cabinet, in a dramatic reversal of policy to regain Premier Benito Mussolini's co-operation in European affairs, today formally decided to assume the lead in advocating abolition of sanctions against Italy at the June 30 meeting of the League of Nations Assembly.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who energetically led the crusade of 51 nations in the economic war against Italy for aggression on Ethiopia, will go before the House of Commons tomorrow to reveal the government's new antisanctionist policy.

Today's decision, it was reported, merely confirmed a secret provisional agreement reached a week ago, a few hours before Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, uttered his famous dinner-party assertion that it is "midsummer madness" to believe that continuance of sanctions could rescue Ethiopian independence.

The cabinet meeting, held at 10 Downing street, was presided over by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. The speeches which Baldwin and Eden will deliver before the House of Commons tomorrow disclosing the government's diplomatic about-face, were discussed lengthily.

Eden and Malcolm MacDonald, Dominions secretary, reported on their conversations yesterday with the Dominion high commissioners regarding sanctions.

It was understood that Australia, New Zealand and Canada concurred with South Africa in demurring to removal of sanctions, but intimated that their governments would raise no objections if a majority of League states favor the movement.

Unofficial sources said the British Dominions also agreed to consider revision of the penal, or sanctions, clauses of the League Covenant if a general demand arises.

After the cabinet meeting, Eden and Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, went to the House of Commons.

Eden, heckled at great length over the Italo-Ethiopian problem, sad the government "has not yet

Three Children Killed; Traffic Toll Rises to 43

2 Boys, 6 and 3, Run Over by Autos; Third Victim of Motorcycle.

Three Washington children were killed in traffic late yesterday and last night, bringing the 1936 traffic death toll for the District to 43.

Yesterday's dead were Michael Maley, 3, of 420 Third street northwest; Harry Glazier, 6, of 1315 Park road northwest, and William Karavasilio, 5, of 363 L street southwest.

Young Maley and Glazier were struck by automobiles in front of their homes, and the Karavasilio youngster perished beneath the wheels of a motorcycle.

The Maley child died at Children's Hospital late yesterday afternoon, where he was taken after he had stepped into the path of an automobile of George W. Edwards, 55, of the 3100 block of Nineteenth street northwest, police said. He never regained consciousness. He wa sthe son of Richard Maley, a carpenter.

Ran After Ball.

A bouncing ball, which had slipped from his grasp, lured Glazier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Glazier, into the street. He darted from the curb directly into the path of an automobile said to have been driven by Andrew M. Chamber, 30, of the 3700 block of Kansas avenue northwest. Witnesses told police the accident was unavoidable. Both Edwards and Chamber, released on their personal bonds, will appear at inquests.

The Karavasilio boy was struck by a motorcycle ridden by James H. Davis, 24, of the 100 block of L street southwest, police said.

He was rushed to Emergency Hospital with a compound fracture at the base of his skull. In a few hours he died, and police took Davis, who was slightly injured in the accident, which occurred in front of the child's home, into custody.

Police said last night they had learned the family was in straitened circumstances, and there was not enough money for a funeral for the child.

Child Critically Hurt.

A fourth child, Harold W. Rogers, 4, of Dayton, Ohio, a visitor, at 4719 Wisconsin avenue, was critically hurt when he was struck, police said, by an automobile driven by Thomas J. Rice, 54, of the 5400 block of Thirty-ninth street northwest, at

Drawbridge Open, Auto Leaps 10 Feet Over Water to Safety

By the Associated Press.

Ocean City, Md., June 16.—An automobile leaped ten feet through the air between the halves of a partly opened Bascule Drawbridge span today and landed safely on the far side of the opening.

The car rolled over and skidded after landing, but the driver, Edward Waller, of Salisbury, escaped with minor injuries.

Waller was en route to Ocean City early today and was on the bridge when the safety gates were closed and the draw was opened to allow a yacht to pass.

Apparently he could not stop his car in time. It crashed through the safety gates and rolled up the slight incline formed as one of the leaves of the span rose in the air. The slant gave it an upward course as it leaped from the end of the roadway.

The car turned over in the air and landed upside down on the far half of the span. Then it rolled and skidded 150 feet down the incline on the other side and on the causeway which approached the bridge.

Waller was taken from the wrecked car and carried to the Salisbury Hospital, where his injuries were diagnosed as only cuts and bruises.

Shortly after the accident a report spread that another man had been with Waller in the car and that this man had been thrown out of Waller's car into the water. Coast guardsmen dragged for the body of this other man until Waller said that he had been alone in the car.

Blanton Lays Teacher Quiz To Civic Units

He Blames 'Anonymous Spokesmen' of D. C. Federation.

Group's Chairman Issues Immediate Denial of Questionnaire.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton last night laid blame for inspiring the religious and political belief questionnaire sent to 4,000 Washington public school teachers, on anonymous spokesmen for the Federation of Citizens Associations.

While issuing a formal statement asserting that "authority duly designated by the Federation of Citizens Associations to represent such federation on local school matters here in Washington" had inspired the investigation, Blanton refused to disclose the identity of the federation representatives.

Harry N. Stull, chairman of the school committee of the federation, immediately denied the federation had had any part in instituting the inquiry.

"I never heard of the questionnaire until I read about it in the newspapers," Stull said. "The federation certainly has never taken any action which would cause Mr. Blanton to send out the questionnaire."

George E. Sullivan, chairman of a special federation committee which aided Blanton in his recent inquisition in regard to charges of communism in the local schools, could not be reached last night.

When asked to name the federation spokesman, Blanton said:

"If the federation will pass a resolution stating it doesn't want the information I'm asking for in the questionnaires, I'll burn them up and drop the investigation at once."

All information obtained through the inquiry, however, will be kept confidential, save that it will be available to mothers and fathers, Blanton said.

Special Meeting Called.

Meanwhile, a special meeting of the Board of Education was called for 3:30 p. m. today to decide what advice to give Washington's puzzled school teachers, most of whom have not replied to the questionnaire. Members of the board indicated they would advise the teachers that if they answered the questions it would be upon their own responsibility and without direction of school officials.

Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, president of the board, said:

"I think the questions Mr. Blanton asked have nothing to do with the appropriations for the District. If I were a teacher I certainly do not feel I would sign the questionnaire."

Henry Gilligan, another board member, was even more outspoken.

"I hope the teachers will not answer the questionnaire," he said. "It is just a part of the whole scheme of Blanton's to depose Dr. Ballou. If I get one of those questionnaires I will throw it right in the wastebasket."

Other members said they would have something to say at today's board meeting.

Colleagues of Blanton in the House were even more caustic in their comments on the Texan's action, and a liberal bloc planned to assail the Texan on the floor of the House in an effort to induce the House to censure him.

Comments Quoted.

Among the comments made by members of the House were the following:

Representative Norton, chairman of the House District Committee: "I don't understand why the personal views of the teachers are any business of Mr. Blanton or any other member of Congress. I hope we haven't reached the point where our schools are to be controlled by a dictator."

Representative Marcantonio (Republican), of New York:

"It was a cheap, cockroach form of terrorism. My advice to the teachers is that they throw the questionnaires in the wastebasket. The House will never permit Blanton to compel any teacher to appear before his sub-committee."

Representative Scott (Democrat), of California:

"The teachers should write across the top of the questionnaire, 'none of your business' and send them back to Blanton."

Representative Christianson (Republican), of Minnesota:

Representative Kahn (Republican), of California:

"I think it's nobody's business.

Veteran Accused Of Running Down His Aged Mother

Salt Lake City, June 17 (AP).—A war veteran held in the asserted "bonus celebration" death of his white-haired mother trembled in his cell tonight and sobbed:

"God, I don't see how all this terrible mess ever happened."

Traffic Investigator H. C. Pierce told County Attorney Harold E. Wallace that Harry Olson, 42, backed his motor car over 72-year-old Mrs. Christine Olson late yesterday.

Wallace ordered a complaint charging involuntary manslaughter prepared for filing tomorrow.

Stories varied. Pierce said he understood the aged woman had been pleading with Olson not to drive while drinking. He drove away, Pierce said, then suddenly backed up, and the automobile—a second-hand car bought with bonus money—ran her down.

Alaskan City Broils As Mercury Hits 110

Ketchikan, Alaska, June 17 (AP). Temperatures as high as 110 in the sun were reported in Alaska today, and a wide area of the far North continued to experience unusual heat.

Seward, which reported an unofficial maximum of 108 yesterday, turned in the 110 figure this morning. A Seward dispatch asserted the official thermometer registered 85 in the shade. The fire hazard was described as serious.

Veterans Here Start to Spend Bonus Checks

First Vouchers Mailed on Bond Conversions; Some May Lose Relief.

Bonus cash began to flow yesterday in Washington.

The City Postoffice mailed the first checks in exchange for bonds which were surrendered by veterans Monday. Department stores, auto agencies and real estate companies primed themselves for a spending and investment spree which is expected to be under full sail before this week is up.

Postmaster Vincent C. Burke, whose staff has been under a severe strain since distribution of the bonus bonds commenced Monday, said last night he is delighted with progress made thus far in getting them to their owners.

"The rush will be over Friday," he predicted.

He was unable to supply figures on the number of checks certified to date or the aggregate in cash which they represent. Today, however, he will have at least an estimate. About $15,000,000 in $50 bonds was sent to some 28,000 Capital veterans and it is still conjectural what percentage of this amount will be converted immediately.

St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the Federal Government's Washington institution for mental cases, is making arrangements to administer the small fortunes which will go to those patients who served in the World War, it was learned.

Some May Lose Relief.

Where there is a guardian, he will be authorized to care for the patient's bonus. In the cases of those veterans now without a guardian, one will be appointed, either by the hospital or by the courts.

With Dr. William A. White, superintendent, out of the city, it could not be learned how many St. Elizabeth's patients are eligible.

Mailmen brought checks to patients in Walter Reed, Mount Alto and Naval hospitals yesterday. The bonds had been surrendered shortly after their receipt Monday. It takes 48 hours from the time the bonds are certified to deliver the checks.

Postal stations again will be open from 6 p. m. to 10 p. m. today for the certification of bonds, Postmaster Burke said. Tomorrow and thereafter, they may be cashed at these 26 neighborhood stations during regular office hours. The main postoffice will continue to certify bonds today during daytime hours.

Elwood Street, director of public welfare, indicated yesterday that veterans receiving substantial bonus payments will not be eligible for relief. No fast rule will be established, he asserted, but each case will be decided on its own merits.

Funds Running Low.

He pointed out that appropriations for relief are running short and several thousand needy residents have been dropped from the relief rolls, hence families favored with a Federal bonus will have to give up relief income in many instances.

From another bonus sector, Fort Thomas, Ky., came word that "America's outstanding soldier" is so busy helping his buddies collect their bonus he hasn't had time to get his own. He is Sam Woodfill, now assistant secretary of the Kentucky Ex-Service Men's Board.

According to the Associated Press, Woodfill has been spending all his time helping other veterans file applications, neglecting to go home to sign the registered letter containing his bonds. "America's outstanding soldier" was applied by Gen. John J. Pershing to Woodfill who single-handed cleaned out two machine-gun nests, killing 19 men and opening a path for his men to advance.

River Hut Dweller Disappears; Wife, Child in Poverty

Washington and Virginia police were searching yesterday for Wyatt Andrew Smith, poverty-stricken carpenter, who disappeared two days ago leaving his wife and small child penniless in their little shack on the river bank near Rosslyn, Va.

Smith came to Washington from Missouri less than a year ago to find work. Unable to afford a room he took his family to the river bank abode.

The spring flood washed away his meager belongings and his family would have starved but for the Arlington County Red Cross.

Recently he has been selling soft drinks to canoeists and bathers along the river to provide for his wife and child.

Two days ago he disappeared. His wife, who feared he may have drowned, call Arlington County police who started an investigation.

Compromise On Tax Bill Is Reported

Lagging Adjournment Hopes Sped by Break in Stalemate.

By Robert C. Albright.

Tentative agreement on a compromise tax plan that would scale down normal corporate income levies but give the Administration nearly everything it asks in undivided profits taxation, last night revived lagging adjournment hopes.

The break in the jam was announced at 10:20 last night, following two days of almost continuous negotiations between House and Senate conferees.

Although no formal vote was taken on the new corporate tax rates, and several less vital issues were left hanging in air, Representative Robert L. Doughton, spokesman for the group, said he hoped to turn over the completed bill to the legislative drafting service late today.

Rulings Await Estimates.

Decisions on whether the existing capital stock and excess profits taxes will be continued, and whether surtax rates on individual incomes between $8,000 and $50,000 will be stepped up 1 per cent, as provided in the Senate bill, will await Treasury estimates today on the yield of tentative corporate tax schedules.

"I hope we can get enough revenue without the surtax increases," Doughton said.

"Cushions" for financially weak corporations also will be subject to further debate.

Corporate Tax Is Key.

Most of yesterday's conference fighting came on proposals to graduate downward the normal corporation income taxes, so as not to penalize small corporations, while forcing a heavy load on the shoulders of the big companies.

Here are the normal corporate income tax rates on which the Treasury was asked for revenue estimates last night, and on which the latest agreement prospects center:

8 per cent on the first $2,000 of normal income.
11 per cent on the next $13,000.
13 per cent on the next $25,000.
15 per cent on corporate income in excess of $40,000.

This proposal was advanced, and apparently had majority support, in lieu of the Senate bill's provision for a corporation income tax graduation from 15¼ to 18 per cent. Stressing undivided profits taxation, the House bill had provided no corporation income tax whatever. Before yielding reluctantly to the Senate position, House conferees had contended the two should not be mixed.

Conferees last night lso reached a tentative understanding on a new schedule of undivided profits tax rates, which would be superimposed on the proposed normal corporate income tax.

Carry But Part of Senate Plea.

Here the House group apparently had maneuvered its own steeply graduated schedules to such advantage that the tentative schedules now under consideration carry only a shred of the Senate proposal. The proposed undivided profits tax compromise should prove completely satisfactory to the Administration, which backed the House bill.

As revised in conference yesterday, the tax schedule on undistributed corporate earnings would range as follows:

6 or 7 per cent on the first 10 per cent of income retained.
12 per cent on the next 10 per cent of income retained.
17 per cent on the next 20 per cent.
22 per cent on the next 20 per cent.
27 per cent on corporate income retained in excess of 60 per cent.

This proposed undivided profits tax schedule compares with the flat 7 per cent levy proposed in the Senate bill, and the broad graduation of rates ranging up to a maximum of 42½ per cent in the House bill.

The once strong front of Senate conferees against anything higher than a 7 per cent tax on undistributed earnings has been broken.

They are yielding to the House on this point, in return for House concessions on corporation income taxes, which Senate conferees in-

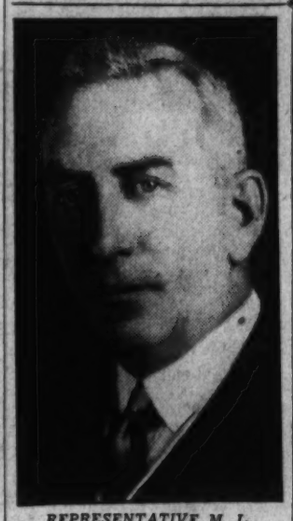
10 Million Fund For Ship Canal Killed in House



REPRESENTATIVE M. L. SWEENEY.

Coughlin Says Liberal Blocs Will Enter Candidate for President.

Representative William Lemke (Republican), North Dakota, refused yesterday to discuss reports that he will be a candidate for President on a third party ticket. At the same time, he declared he had no interest in either of the two old parties and that he would support "any liberal party."

The report that Lemke was about to become a candidate for President followed announcement by Father Charles E. Coughlin that a third party candidate would be put into the field, representing not only Coughlinites, but followers of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, old-age pension advocate, and the bloc represented by Lemke.

Lemke said he is seeking reelection to Congress, not as a member of a party, but as an independent. Lemke, with Senator Lynn J. Frazier (Republican), North Dakota, was author of the Frazier-Lemke inflationary farm moratorium bill and it was as a result of his constant effort that it was finally brought to a vote in the House.

Talk about Lemke as a Presidential possibility was only a part of third party activity yesterday. Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, announced that a conference of representative Progressives would be held shortly after the Democratic convention next week. Senator Norris (Republican), Nevada, an ardent New Deal supporter, indicated he would attend the conference. It is expected that Prgoressives of the La Follette-Norris type will continue to support the New Deal.

Sweeney on Warpath.

In the House yesterday Representative Martin L. Sweeney (Democrat), Ohio, an "original Roosevelt man," made a heated attack on the Administration. Sweeney was one of the three Ohio Democratic delegates to the 1932 convention who broke away from George White, the State's favorite son, and went to Roosevelt. Recently he has been receiving the support of the Coughlin group.

Offsetting this disaffection, came the announcement of Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia that he would support Roosevelt for re-election. He has been one of the most vocal and most active opponents of the New Deal.

At the same time, Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, predicted formation of a third party if the Democrats do not write a liberal money plank into their platform. He added, however, that he was a "regular Democrat," and would not bolt the party.

In addition to Norris, Senators Nye (Republican), North Dakota, and Benson (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, indicated they expected to Body Adopts Most Other Senate Changes to Relief Measure.

2 More TVA Dams Also Voted Down

$2,375,000,000 Bill Goes to Other Branch for Concurrence.

By Felix Bruner.

The House yesterday struck another blow—probably a fatal one—at the Florida ship canal.

All major Senate amendments to the deficiency appropriation bill, except one permitting the President to allot an additional $10,000,000 for the canal and another authorizing two additional TVA dams, were agreed to.

The measure, which totals about $2,375,000,000, and which includes $1,425,000,000 for relief, will go to the Senate for concurrence in the conference report before being sent to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature. The Senate probably will act today.

The vote disapproving the ship canal was 108 to 62.

Neither Project Approved.

The House, when it originally passed the deficiency bill, declined to include any provision for the canal or for the Passamaquoddy tide-harnessing project in Maine. Neither had ever been authorized specifically by Congress. Work on both developments had begun, with allotments from relief funds—$5,000,000 for the canal and $7,000,000 for the power project.

The Senate put into the bill a provision for appointment by the President of three engineers to investigate the canal and to report to the President.

Should the report be favorable, the President would be authorized to allot an additional $10,000,000. It was estimated that the total cost of the canal, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico, would be $142,000,000. A similar amendment providing for the Passamaquoddy development was rejected by the Senate.

Skirmish Forecast.

When the bill comes before the Senate for concurrence in the conference report, there probably will be a skirmish over the canal proposal, but it is believed a majority of the members will not insist upon it.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, active opponent of both projects, sat through the House debate on the bill. He described the outcome as "the end of a perfect dream." The most active proponent of the canal had been Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (Democrat), Florida, who died just a few hours before the House vote was taken. Work on the canal legislation may have hastened his death.

The only possibility of reviving either Passamaquoddy or the canal rests with President Roosevelt. Without specific authorization of Congress, he still may allot money to the projects. The money, however, must come from old relief funds, for the present bill provides that the President may not allot money for any project for which sufficient funds to complete the work are not available.

The only other major Senate amendment rejected appropriated $1,200,000 for construction on two additional TVA dams—one near Gilbertsville, Ky., and the other near Watts Bar, Tenn. It was argued that, while these dams are part of the ultimate TVA program, it was not necessary to spend the money at this time. The remaining TVA appropriation is $39,900,000.

Secretary Ickes won his fight to continue the Public Works Administration. The House, with little opposition, adopted a Senate amendment providing for the use of a $300,000,000 revolving fund for grants by the PWA for non-Federal projects.

The conference committee made its final report yesterday, and it was rushed to the House without even being printed. The deficiency bill was one of the two standing in the way of adjournment of Congress. With action by the Senate today, the tax bill will be the only remaining "must" legislation.

The bill, as it will go to the White House, will provide that all of the $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation shall be expended by the President. As the measure originally was passed by the House, the money would have gone to Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator. The measure, in what is probably its final form, will assure continuance of all the present relief organizations, including the Resettlement Administration, headed by Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell.

Opposition to the relief sections

Loud Speaker to Signal Ships Tested by Coast Guard Plane

A newly-constructed public address equipment light enough to be installed in airplanes, yet sufficiently powerful to shout hurricane warnings over a radius of one mile, was demonstrated yesterday by the U. S. Coast Guard at Fort Hunt, Va.

The new equipment is to be installed in several selected Coast Guard airplanes and cutters in the principal hurricane areas to facilitate the spread of warnings to fishermen of the sudden approach of a storm. The loud speakers also will be used in flood-stricken areas and to direct rescues at sea.

Weighing only 115 pounds, the equipment, consisting of an amplifier, microphone, loud speaker and mountings powered by a single 15 volt battery, giving off 55 watts of current, is sufficiently powerful to be heard for a mile around an altitude of 3,500 feet.

Yesterday the Coast Guard's radio test plane, piloted by A. P. Durham, assisted by C. T. Solt, chief radio electrician of the Coast Guard, circled over Fort Hunt at varying altitudes demonstrating the speaker.

The reception was best at altitudes of 250 and 500 feet but even when the plane mounted to 3,000 feet and higher the sound of the speaker could be heard distinctly over the steady drone of the propellors and engine. Lieut. Commander Edward Fritzche, supervising the tests, expressed himself "completely satisfied."

To secure clear tones despite the tremendous wind and air resistance, O. I. Price, designer and builder of the equipment, explained the tones of the speaker had to be given a nasal twang.

Work on the new equipment was started last October, shortly after the hurricane off the Florida Keys in which the veterans' camp was devastated and many killed. The new system

Hamilton Plans To Visit Every State in Union

G. O. P. Chairman, at Chicago, Outlines Wide Trip for Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 17.—John D. Hamilton, chairman of the National Republican Committee, arrived by plane from Kansas City tonight with the announcement that he was determined to visit every State in the Union in the forthcoming Presidential campaign.

"I expect to visit every State and I hope to see every county chairman in the country," the youthful Republican leader declared.

With several party chieftains who accompanied him from the conference at Topeka with Gov. Alf M. Landon and Col. Frank Knox, the nominees, he left immediately by plane for New York, where he said he would appear before the party's financial committee Monday.

Hamilton said he expected to assume command of the national headquarters here late next week, after a conference with Republican leaders in Washington. "I intend to spend a good deal of my time on the road after that, however," he said.

The present staff of the Western divisional headquarters here would be used as the nucleus of the new national headquarters, Hamilton disclosed.

Harrison Spangler, director of the Western division, would be in charge of regular organization of State, county and precinct Republican workers, Hamilton said.

Arthur M. Curtis, of Springfield, Mo., would be assigned to special organization work, such as that of veterans' organizations and the like.

McVeagh Given Post.

He added that all research work and publicity would be under the direction of Charleton McVeagh, of Armonk, N. Y.

Questions about the financing of the campaign were referred by Hamilton to C. B. Goodspeed, of Chicago, national treasurer, who flew in with him. Goodspeed said there was no announcement to make at present; that plans uder way for a year were nearing completion.

Those who continued East with Hamilton were A. L. Schultz, of Topeka; J. K. Bradley, of Westport, Conn., a director of the Young Republicans; Robert Burroughs, of Manchester, N. H., national committeeman; Walter S. Hallahan, of Charleston, W. Va., national committeeman; James Jappe, Hamilton's secretary, and two assistant secretaries, Catherine Hall and Elaine O'Daniel.

Organization Complete.

Topeka, Kans., June 17 (U.P.).—National Chairman John Hamilton raced through a half-dozen long distance telephnoe calls today and then announced completion of Republican party organization for the campaign to elect Gov. Alf M. Landon President.

Hamilton selected general and division managers to work with the national committee set up which was chosen yesterday in a conference of Landon, Frank Knox, his running mate; Hamilton and ranking party leaders.

As if in naswer to surprise which was expressed when eight "old guard" members were chosen for the party's executive body, while only seven new members were chosen, Landon today said:

"I'm going to run the show. So long as I am given the responsibility for the management of the campaign, I expect to assume the authority to handle it."

The aids picked today were Miss Natalie Couch, of New York, to handle women's activities; J. K. Bradley, of Connecticut, to head the young Republican activities, and W. B. Bell, of New York, to direct the finance committee.

Not a "Brain Trust."

Hamilton will maintain his headquarters in the Chicago office of the campaign when he is not away on speaking engagements. Miss Couch will work out of the New York office, which will be under direction of Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of North Attleboro, Mass. Bradley will be in the Chicago headquarters, maintain a statistical staff in Washington and work personally in Chicago.

"This statistical staff is not a brain trust," Hamilton said. "It is an organization to gather information, not to advise on policies or program."

On June 22, Hamilton will set off the opening shot of the campaign in a speech in New York City at a dinner sponsored by the finance committee for party workers. He probably will return West before the notification ceremonies in July.

Landon and Knox both planned summer vacations before opening their speaking itineraries. The Kansas chief executive still had to dispose of a special session which he had promised to call after the harvest next month.

Politics and People

Third Party Agitation Without Significance; It May Cost Roosevelt Some Votes.

By Franklyn Waltman

A GITATION for a third party this year, coming to the surface unexpectedly in the last few days among left-wing Democrats and Republicans, particularly those favoring further monetary experimentation, is one of those political developments which make good reading, but are without real significance.

WALTMAN.

Until it can be seen how far this left-wing third party movement will go, of course, its significance cannot be accurately appraised. But it does not seem to be written in the political heavens this year that a left-wing third party movement will cut any figure in the forthcoming campaign.

It is entirely possible that a ticket supported by Father Charles E. Coughlin, with the backing of the Townsend groups and the remnants of Huey P. Long's "share-the-wealth" followers, and dedicated to such legislation as $200 old-age pensions and the Frazier-Lemke plan for refinancing farm mortgages with greenbacks, might attract a fair number of voters in some States.

The possibility exists that such a third party coalition might attract sufficient votes in some States to weaken President Roosevelt's chances and increase the prospects of Gov. Alf M. Landon. It is almost certain that if anything of this sort happens it will attract votes that otherwise would go to President Roosevelt—since left-wing monetary experimenters would not vote for Gov. Landon after his telegraphic message on gold last week.

But it is highly improbable that such a third party ticket would have any effect whatever, even if it materializes. One reason for such a conclusion is that there is no one on the political horizon capable of effectively leading such a movement.

Father Coughlin as a political orator is a factor to be reckoned with, but his church affiliations prevent him from assuming active leadership of a political movement. Representative William Lemke's only claim to be the candidate of such a group is his sponsorship of the farm mortgage refinancing bill. The crushing defeat he recently suffered on that measure in the House would seem to indicate that his management of that legislation was nothing to boast about.

The truth of the situation is that the day Huey P. Long died last September the prospect for a left-wing third party this year went glimmering. Were Senator Long here today third party talk and aspirations might be taken seriously. He was the one man who could have attracted a following which might have given serious concern to President Roosevelt.

Indeed, the latter fully realized that the Kingfish might become a potential threat to his re-election and last summer sought to steal Long's thunder by proposing his share-the-wealth tax bill. Ever since Huey Long's death, however, Mr. Roosevelt has been making gestures to the right—not to the left wingers.

Another reason why a third party movement this year appears destined to be weak and ineffective is that some of the groups which are needed to give power and strength to such a development already have aligned themselves behind President Roosevelt. This is true of a large segment of organized labor.

The La Follette Progressives are ready to march alongside of the President, and their leaders have been consulted regarding the Democratic platform. Senator George W. Norris is in the Roosevelt camp and Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, is expected to be there again, as he was in 1932. The Olson Farmer-Laborites in Minnesota likewise appear to think that their program will best be served by going along with the President.

Of more concern to President Roosevelt and his advisers than left-wing threats is the bolt now going on among right-wing Democrats. On the extent of this bolt depends the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt. So far no outstanding Democratic leader has declared in behalf of Gov. Landon. But it is too early for that. Such statements will be saved until next September and October when they will have the greatest psychological value.

But so large a number of conservative Democrats already have started walking away from the party as to cause uneasiness in the Roosevelt camp. Al Smith is not expected to attend the Philadelphia convention, although he is a delegate. Senator Royal S. Copeland, one of New York's Senators and a favorite with Tammany Hall, has announced he will not go to Philadelphia, even though he, too, is a delegate.

Former Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts, refused to accept a place as a delegate to the Philadelphia convention. Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, has made it clear that he cannot bring himself to support President Roosevelt. James P. Warburg has gone after the New Deal again with hammer and tongs. Lewis Douglas remains unreconciled to the Administration of which he was once an important part.

The Tammany Hall and Maryland delegations will go to Philadelphia and vote for the renomination of President Roosevelt, but they have no enthusiasm for the task. Nor have Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia. They are in the same position as many other Eastern and Middlewestern Democrats who find the New Deal bitterly distasteful to them, but see only futility in seeking to block it or to reform it within the party.

There is the significant development in this year's election. What these men do and say between now and next November will have a far greater effect on the outcome of the election than any left-wing third party movements.

House Defeats Black Measure For LobbyCurb

Bill Is Termed Too Drastic; Senate Revival Now Believed Unlikely.

Antilobby legislation, as embodied in the Black-Smith bill, was killed in the House yesterday by a vote of 223 to 76. The lower chamber refused to accept the Senate amendments on the decisive roll-call vote, then on a motion by Representative William P. Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, it agreed to table the conference report. The latter action was construed as precluding any attempt by the Senate to revive the bill.

The vigor of the House dissent came as a surprise. The original bill, introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, passed the House March 27. A more stringent bill introduced by Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), of Alabama, was approved by the Senate unanimously February 24.

The measure sought to require all organizations collecting funds to influence legislation or Federal elections to file monthly reports with the clerk of the House of Representatives on contributors and money received and spent. Paid lobbyists were to be compelled to register quarterly with both the Senate secretary and the House clerk. Government departments were empowered to make their own regulations. Violators would have been subject to fine and imprisonment.

House opponents of the bill concentrated on the fact that it "virtually abolishes the right of petition." Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan, said the bill would apply with equal force to the American Federation of Labor and to the National Manufacturers Association. He declared the A. F. of L. opposed the bill because it would prevent the organization from expressing its views to Congress.

Representative Connery declared the measure was aimed solely at the activities of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and his organization, the National Union of Social Justice. It would apply with equal force, he said, to the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, the Townsendites, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans.

"These organizations embrace almost all of the American working people," Connery said. "I cannot vote to take from the right of petition."

Senator Black, co-author of the bill, expressed no surprise at the action of the House in defeating the bill. "I never comment on how the House has acted," Black said, "but I imagine a lot of lobbyists are very happy today."

Bolton, an insurance broker, was shot three times, once in the back, in his tenth-floor office Monday. His wife, sole witness, has insisted he took his own life.

Muriel Vanderbilt Divorces Phelps

Reno, Nev., June 17 (AP).—Dark-eyed Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps entered the Washoe County district court by a rear entrance today and emerged by the same route a few minutes later with a divorce from her second husband, Henry Delafield Phelps.

The tall, slender society heiress, dressed in a red and black plaid dress, left her hotel near the courthouse a few minutes before the trial. She frowned and shook her head to all inquiries.

The divorce decree was granted behind locked doors by District Judge Benjamin F. Curler after ten minutes of testimony. Mrs. Phelps charged her socially prominent husband with cruelty.

Her first husband was Frederick Cameron Church, jr., former Harvard athlete, from whom she was divorced four years after their marriage.

No property settlement was mentioned in the divorce papers.

Zioncheck to Stay Hospital Patient

Representative Marion A. Zioncheck remained in Gallinger Hospital last night. Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent, said plans for his removal had not been completed.

It was learned from Dr. J. L. Gilbert, chief psychiatrist at Gallinger, however, that the Washington State Democrat would not be released, except to another institution. Authorities refused to divulge what institutions are under consideration.

Meanwhile, between visits to her husband's psychopathic ward, Mrs. Zioncheck has moved their belongings from the Harvard Hall Apartment of Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young. Mrs. Zioncheck's mother arrived recently from Texarkana, Ark., and they are staying with friends.

3 Peace-Time Marks Are Set In U.S. Finances

By the Associated Press.

Three new peace-time high records in the Nation's financial structure—the gross national debt, expenditures, and the current operating deficit—were recorded on yesterday's Treasury statement.

Caused by mid-month financing transactions, also the largest in peace-time history, the gross national debt jumped $2,643,000,000 to the unparalleled peace-time peak of $34,331,000,000; expenditures for the present fiscal year soared to total $8,492,000,000, and the deficit went up to $4,684,000,000.

Mid-month financial operations included a cash borrowing of $1,106,000,000; an exchange of new securities for maturing obligations aggregating $1,025,000,000 and issuing in exchange therefor new securities for the same amount; issuance of veterans' bonds of about $1,500,000,000; payment of interest on the public debt amounting to $70,000,000, and other routine Treasury transactions involving both receipts and expenditures of approximately $65,000,000.

Yesterday's deficit, which included expenditures up to the close of business June 15, already exceeds President Roosevelt's estimated deficit by $1,450,000,000.

In his revised budget, made public last fall, he forecast the Government would be "in the red" to the extent of $3,234,000,000 at the close of the current fiscal year, June 30. This, however, was before Congress approved immediate payment of the bonus, and before the processing taxes, expected to produce $529,000,000, had been invalidated by the Supreme Court.

The Treasury's cash balance was boosted by $1,119,000,000 to a total of $3,434,000,000 on June 15. This sum, in addition to income-tax returns this month, is expected by officials to tide the Treasury over all requirements, including the bonus, until the next financing, September 15.

Treasury officials said the present gross indebtedness would be reduced sharply during the next few weeks as bonus bonds are presented for payment and redeemed. However, they added, there also will be further issues of bonus bonds which will tend to offset this decrease.

Ship Canal

of the bill was led by Representative Taber (Republican), New York. He said the measure places relief "a little more under political control." He called Ickes, Hopkins and Tugwell "the three most incompetent spenders in the history of the United States."

The only real controversy, however, was over the ship canal. It was defended by Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, who said it was unfairly criticized.

The relief section of the bill contains a provision that receipt of a soldier bonus shall not affect the status of a veteran on relief.

Nazi Police Merged Under 'Purge' Chief

Berlin, June 17 (AP).—A sudden consolidatoin of all German police tonight thrust Heinrich Himmler, high judge of the 1934 blood purge, into one of the most powerful positions in the Nazi state.

The 35-year-old bespectacled chief of political and secret police was made head of the new federal organization which embraces his own gestapo. The move was taken as indicating a further step in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reorganization of the government.

Himmler, who is in a position to know more about what is happening in the Third Reich than the Fuehrer himself, remains as supreme commander of the Schutzstaffel, the special Black Shirt guardsmen, who carried out the blood purge orders.

On that day of violence—June 30, 1930—he sat as one of the judges who condemned Storm Troopers and others to speedy death before firing squads.

Andorra Pretender Again Held in Spain

Madrid, June 17 (AP).—"Boris I," Polish pretender to the throne of tiny Andorra, who was expelled from Spain in 1934 and then exiled from France and Portugal, is back in Spain again for another try.

Discovered hiding in the outskirts of Madrid, "Boris" said he expected to be granted a conference with the government, with the object of obtaining a passport as "a man without a country." Disguised with a beard, the pretender said he reached Madrid late in May.

Picketing Continues At Power Commission

Thirteen members of the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians yesterday continued their picketing around the Federal Power Commission in protest against the dismissal of Robert Y. Durand, their secretary.

The federation, composed of various employes of the Government, charged that Durand was dismissed for alleged union activities. They established the picket line Tuesday after lengthy negotiations for Durand's reinstatement failed.

U. S. Prepares Gallows For Death of Kidnaper

McAlester, Okla., June 17 (AP).—The Government prepared a death warrant and a State prison gallows tonight for Arthur Gooch, scheduled to hang at dawn Friday for the abduction of two Paris (Tex.) officers.

The 27-year-old gunman, first man condemned to hang under the Lindbergh law, dispatched a last-minute plea to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, hoping she might intercede with the President, who declined Executive clemency several days ago.

Severe Beating Of Woman Laid To Black Legion

Witness Who Told Secrets of Gang Is Attacked in Detroit Home.

By the United Press.

Detroit, June 17.—The Black Legion, its activities temporarily halted by widespread investigation of vigilante terrorism, was believed tonight to have struck back at a woman who dared reveal its oath-bound secrets.

In a severe beating administered by an unknown assailant today to Mrs. William Guthrie, 33, authorities saw possible Black Legion retaliation for her disclosures of the hooded and robed order's night riding activities.

Less than two weeks ago Mrs. Guthrie and her husband were taken to police headquarters, where the wife told how the Black Legion members came to her spacious home for their meetings; how much of the Black Legion's literature was printed on her husband's presses.

A few minutes after Recorder's Judge John P. Scallen had ordered 15 alleged members of the Black Legion held for trial on charges of plotting the death of two prominent persons, an ambulance took Mrs. Guthrie, unconscious, to Receiving Hospital.

Later, hysterical and sobbing, she told how she had taken her dog for a walk after luncheon and had been attacked upon her return.

"I turned around to pick up the dog," she said. "Someone inside the door opened it and struck me. I don't know who it was. I didn't see him. I lost consciousness.

"I haven't any idea who it could have been because William and I are the only ones who have keys to the house. I haven't received any threats against my life nor has anyone said anything to me."

Inspector John Hoffman would not say that Black Legionnaires had attacked Mrs. Guthrie, but he did say that every indication pointed to retaliation.

"We understand Mrs. Guthrie was bound and gagged during the attack," he said. "She was not bound when my men arrived there."

Receiving hospital attaches, attempting to quiet the injured and hysterical woman, said her injuries were more painful than serious. It was believed that Mrs. Guthrie had received a possible fracture of the right rib. Her injuries were confined in the main to her legs, arms and face.

Husband Found Later.

Guthrie was picked up two hours later. Detectives found him waiting in front of the Irving School for his daughter, Shirley.

"I don't know a thing about it," he said.

Guthrie subsequently disclosed that he had been threatened by a member of the Black Legion Monday afternoon.

"A man came walking up to me, tossing a bullet up and down in his hand (the Black Legion signal)," he said.

"He put the bullet in my hand and said, 'See here, you don't know anything and don't you say anything.' He walked away before I could see who he was."

Two weeks ago Guthrie confessed to being a member of the hooded and robed order, but said that he and his wife had been forced into the organization against their will. His statement came after Mrs. Guthrie had revealed their home as a Black Legion rendezvous and the source of all of its propaganda disseminated in Michigan.

Steel Union Attacks Pay Rise 'Threat'

Pittsburgh, June 17 (AP).—Labor's drive for industrial unionization of the giant steel industry got under way today with a charge that the operators are trying to thwart the campaign to bring the Nation's 450,000 steel workers under one union banner.

The drive, mapped under the plans proposed by John L. Lewis and opposed by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, comes simultaneously with talk in the industry that the steel companies are contemplating a flat 10 per cent pay increase.

Philip Murray, chairman of the worker's organizing committee charged:

"Already the steel corporations, in an effort to thwart this campaign of organization, have granted vacations with pay. It is rumored that they also intend to offer wage increases to their employes to prevent organization."

The campaign threatens to widen the breach between Lewis and Green which many labor observers believe will bring a definite showdown between the two leaders. Green long has supported the unionization of industries by crafts.

Former Monk Reveals Plot To Murder Rasputin in 1914

Girl Armed With Knife Told Him She Was Going to Slay Priest, Russian Testifies in New York Court Slander Suit.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—Dusty secrets from the court of Czarist Russia were aired in supreme court today when the former Monk Illiadore told of a girl's plot to assassinate Rasputin in 1914.

Illiadore, now known as Sergius M. Trufanoff, testified in his $100,000 slander suit against the publishers of Rene Fulopmiller's book, "Rasputin: the Holy Devil."

He said the girl, Khionia Guseva, came to him with a long knife and said:

"HolyFather, Rasputin is ruining the throne of the Czar and Russia. I am going to stab him with this dagger. The prophet stabbed 400 false prophets. Give me your blessings."

Contrary to a previous version published under his name, Illiadore declared today that the girl had not received his blessings.

"Leave me alone," he said he told her. "You know very well what you are doing."

"Did you send her to assassinate Rasputin," his lawyer asked.

"No. God Almighty sent her," Illiadore replied.

Chicago, June 17 (AP).—Counting the Federal and State governments in for a 60 per cent share of his $18,000,000 estate, the late Cyrus McCormick, harvester manufacturer, willed the remainder to his family and 15 charities.

His will, offered for probate today, made his widow, Mrs. Alice Hoit McCormick, who once was his secretary, and his two sons, Cyrus, jr., and Gordon, his chief heirs.

Mrs. McCormick was given a specific bequest of $1,000,000, the town house in Chicago and the suburban Lake Forest estate, where the son of the inventor of the harvester, died of a heart ailment June 2.

Cyrus, jr., a resident now of New Mexico, was left $500,000 outright and the income of a $1,000,000 trust fund. An identical bequest was made to the younger son, Gordon.

Largest charitable bequests were $50,000 each to Princeton University, alma mater of Mr. McCormick, and the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund, an institution he and his first wife founded in memory of their only daughter who died as a child. It is engaged in child welfare work.

Politics Denied In Halting Long Aids' Tax Suits

Dropping of Charges After Senator's Death 'Routine,' Says Cummings.

A political situation stemming directly out of the dead Huey Long's regime in Indiana aroused keen speculation in Washington yesterday as Attorney General Homer Cummings attempted to dismiss the disposal of untried tax evasion cases in New Orleans as "purely routine."

He said:

"All the hullabaloo about this is purely synthetic."

Cummings received a letter recently from nine members of the New Orleans grand jury which indicted a group of Long's associates on income tax evasion charges. Under similar indictment by this jury, former State Representative Joseph Fisher was found guilty and sent to Atlanta Penitentiary.

Shushan Acquitted.

Then Huey Long was assassinated and Abe I. Shushan, his close friend and lieutenant, was tried and acquitted on tax evasion charges.

The letter from the jury members demanded the release of Fisher, claiming his sentence was "a gross and unwarranted official discrimination." Cases against the other men had since been dropped. The implication is that the cases were dropped because the leaders of the Long machine have since made peace with the Administration, as evidenced by the renewed flow of patronage to that State, after its withdrawal during the days when Long was attacking the President almost daily in the Senate.

Cummings, however, said yesterday at his press conference:

"The Justice Department has full confidence in Mr. Viosca, the New Orleans district attorney, upon whom the burden of these prosecutions would rest, and feels that there is no ground for criticizing his action.

"Manifestly, the disposition of the cases referred to has no bearing on the Fisher case and the sentence imposed therein.

Tried Strongest First.

"The Louisiana tax cases resulted in a number of indictments. The Government, selecting its strongest case, went to trial in the matter of Joseph Fisher, which resulted in a conviction. Following that, the Government moved the trial of its second strongest case, to-wit, that against A. L. Shushan, which resulted in acquittal. A number of oher cases were disposed of upon pleas of guilty which resulted in collection of upward of $116,000 in taxes, penalties and fines.

"There still remained undisposed of a number of cases concerning which, in view of the Government's experience in the previous cases, the question arose whether the available evidence might reasonably be expected to result in convictions.

"It was concluded to leave the decision entirely to the judgment and discretion of United States Attorney Viosca, who, upon review of the matter, concluded that convictions could not be obtained and that the only proper course to pursue was to dismiss the cases. His motion to dismiss was granted by Judge Borah."

Although the appearance of the evidence was purely circumstantial, observers held that unless the Administration prepared a very convincing answer, the case could be easily used as campaign fodder by opponents of the New Deal.

Farm Union to Oppose Frazier-Lemke Foes

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., June 17 (AP).—A militant campaign on a Nation-wide scale to re-elect all members of Congress who voted for the Frazier-Lemke refinancing bill and to defeat opponents of the measure was announced today by Edward E. Kennedy, Kankakee, Ill., secretary of the National Farmers Union.

Kennedy, on a tour of the Middlewest to visit State organizations, said the Farmers Union would carry the campaign "into every State in the Union."

Sheriff Denies Sharecroppers' Flogging Story

Governor Told 'Victim' of Beating in Arkansas Is Still Alive.

By the Associated Press.

Little Rock, June 17.—J. M. Futrell branded as "propaganda" today charges of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union that a colored sharecropper was beaten fatally because of activities in the East Arkansas cotton workers' strike.

The statement came at the conclusion of a conference with Sheriff Howard Curlin of Crittenden County, center of the strike area, who told the Governor he was "positive" Frank Weems, reported victim of the beating, was alive. Curlin said the farmer would be produced shortly.

H. L. Mitchell, secretary of the union, previously announced the death of Weems at the hands of men whom he said broke up a Crittenden County union meeting. He called a mass funeral yesterday "as a protest against the beating of union men and women."

"That was a mock funeral deliberately planned by Mitchell and his confederates as propaganda," Futrell said.

Curlin told the Governor "the only trouble we have in Crittenden County is from a bunch of foreign agitators who are there interfering. There is no strike and hasn't been."

Reported victims of the floggings were the Rev. Claude Williams, 41, Little Rock Presbyterian minister; Miss Willie Sue Blagden, 29, former social service worker of Memphis, and Roy Morelock, 35, sharecropper.

Attorney General Cummings said yesterday that he "may have to send an investigator" into Arkansas again as a result of new developments in the cotton workers' strike, according to the Associated Press.

He said Sam E. Whitaker, special assistant to the Attorney General, who conducted an earlier investigation into charges of "peonage" and "kidnaping," may be asked to return to Arkansas to investigate new charges that Miss Willie Sue Blagden and the Rev. Claude Williams were flogged near Earle, Ark.

2 Naval Fliers Fatally Burned In Plane Crash

Craft Stalls in Take-off on Formation Flight at Norfolk.

Lieut. Charles K. Mallory, 26, of Bethesda, Md., and Radioman William C. Gray, 22, were burned to death yesterday when their airplane crashed shortly after a take-off at Norfolk, Va., the Navy Department announced today.

The plane, piloted by Mallory, had taken off to fly in formation with two other naval planes when it apparently stalled and plunged downward, bursting into flames on striking the ground.

The Navy Department explained that the plane had hit the "slip stream" of another plane, meaning that it had been caught in the partial vacuum created by an airplane which had taken off just previously.

A more detailed report of the accident is expected today.

Efforts to rescue the fliers proved fruitless as the plane had been turned into a flaming furnace by the time the station crew reached it.

Both men were attached to the U. S. S. Indianapolis, now undergoing repairs in Brooklyn Navy Yard. The three planes were based temporarily at Norfolk, Va.

The son of Lieut. Comdr. Charles K. Mallory, retired, Lieut. Mallory was appointed to the Naval Academy from Maryland in 1928. After graduation, he served on the U. S. S. Chicago and New Orleans. Last year he was sent to the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla., qualifying as an aviator only two months ago.

He is also survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy P. Williams Mallory, of New Orleans. Lieut. Mallory's home is listed in naval records as Bethesda, Md.

Gray enlisted in the Navy in 1933.

The seniors were presented for their degrees by Dr. Edgar C. Higbie, president of the college. Degrees and diplomas were conferred by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education.

Farley Arrives In Philadelphia, Finds All Ready

Democratic Chief Asserts Kansas Is 'Splendid,' But Doesn't Explain.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 17.—Chairman Farley of the Democratic National Committee came to town today beaming his approval of arrangements for the national convention and announcing an opinion that "Kansas is a splendid State."

For publication, that was all he would say regarding his recent reference to Gov. Landon, the Republican Presidential nominee, as the "Governor of a typical prairie State," critically interpreted by some as an unfavorable allusion to Kansas.

"Why not make it 'a typically splendid State?'?" a reporter asked.

"No," Farley laughed, "let it stand."

He was as breezily confident as ever of President Roosevelt's re-election prospects and thought there should be little difficulty over the abrogation of the two-thirds nominating rule.

The city already was dressed up for the convention. Flags and bunting lined the streets, "Welcome Democrats" signs were in every window. There was, however, a single discordant note, and that less than a block from the Democratic National Committee's headquarters.

The Union League Club, traditional home of Philadelphia Republicanism, was dressed up for the Democratic show, too. The feature of its decoration was a big electric sign: "Landon and Knox, 1936, Love of Country Leads."

Farley, stopping off en route to New York "to attend to some political matters" and to see the Louis Schmeling fight tomorrow night, received newsmen at the committee's headquarters.

"I am fully confident," he said, "that the electorate will give complete approval of the Roosevelt Administration by the re-election of President Roosevelt in the same substantial manner as in 1932."

It was his "belief," he added, that the two-thirds rule would be abrogated.

Asked whether there might not be some objection from the South, which traditionally has guarded the rule as an important protection for its interests, he replied:

"Southern States generally have been opposed to abrogation, I cannot speak for the delegates to the convention and have no idea what their attitude will be."

He had no comment to make on any plans for relinquishing any of the three jobs he now holds—postmaster general, chairman of the national committee and chairman of the New York State committee.

The national committee, he observed, will meet Monday morning and an indication of his plans might be epected at that time.

Talmadge for Party.

Atlanta, Ga., June 17 (U.P.).—Eugene Talmadge, firebrand Georgia Governor who once threatened to lead "2,000,000 discontented Dixie Democrats" out of the party, came back to the Democratic fold tonight almost on the eve of the Philadelphia convention.

Shaking a graying forelock out of his eyes in an uproarious meeting of the Georgia State executive committee, Talmadge shouted today that he still is a Democrat and will support his party's nominees and platform though he still maintains his embittered feud with the New Deal.

It was a strange and grudging profession of faith in the Democratic Party—a pledge of regularity intermixed with a tirade against the "mikados" of the New Deal and Democrats who believe they must be "tin monkeys" to be regular. But it was a pledge that he will not follow Al Smith and former Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts, should they carry out their threats to "take a walk" at Philadelphia.

"My heart and prayer go to Philadelphia," said Talmadge. "I hope I can agree with the platform adopted there.

"I am a party man."

Nancy Traylor Swift Divorces Packer Heir

Chicago, June 17 (AP).—After a three-minute hearing, Mrs. Nancy Traylor Swift, 22, daughter of the late Melvin A. Traylor, was granted an uncontested divorce on grounds of cruelty from Nathan Butler Swift, 24, grandson of the founder of the packing company, by Judge Joseph Sabath today.

Mrs. Swift waived alimony and did not ask to resume her maiden name.

They were married November 29, 1934.

Her father was president of the First National Bank of Chicago and prominent in Democratic politics.

2,000-Gallon Still Seized in Virginia

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 17.—County, State and city officers combined forces today and captured what they described as the largest and most modern still ever seized in Frederick County.

Of 2,000 or more gallon capacity, the still is too large to move to Winchester and officers were debating whether to destroy it with dynamite or attemp to dismantle it. A hundred barrels of mash and 50 gallons of rye liquor were found.

The still was in a game sanctuary, the officers said, in a mountainous section of western Frederick County. No arrests were made.

Farley Denies He Askd Funds Of Postal Aids

Asserts He Did Not Know of Letters Soliciting Gifts to Party.

Chairman Farley of the Democratic National Committee yesterday replied to charges that fourth-class postmasters were being solicited to contribute to the Democratic campaign funds with this statement:

"I wish to state with absolute definiteness that I never signed such a letter, that I never saw such a letter nor authorized nor countenanced the signature of such a letter."

Farley added:

"It is possible that some overzealous individual, desirous of swelling the receipts from the meetings that will be held all over the country to listen to the speech of acceptance that will be delivered from Franklin Field, Philadelphia, may have affixed a rubber stamp signature as I understand the letter carries. But if so, it was entirely without my knowledge or consent."

Cites Letter's Form.

Taking notice of a letter made public by Representative Halleck (Republican), Indiana, "who says that the letter illustrates the manner in which the entire postal service is being mobilized as a campaign machine in behalf of the New Deal," the Democratic national chairman said:

"It is perfectly obvious from the form of the letter that it never emanated from me, for it begins by stating that 'Mr. James A. Farley has aranged to finance the entire national campaign by selling Presidential nominator tickets at $1 each in every section of the country,' and then purports to be signed James A. Farley. Furthemore, no such letter was issued through the Democratic National Committee headquarters, either here in Washington or in New York."

Issued Through Postoffice.

Although Farley is in Philadelphia, the statement was issued through the press section of the Postoffice Department. He is Postmaster General.

"The Postoffice Department has been particularly careful to warn postmasters to keep within the law in any political activities."

It added that Farley had inserted in the Postal Bulletin, going to every postoffice in the country, an order reading:

"It has been brought to my attention that letters and statements have been circulated bearing my name and purporting to be approved by me urging postal officials and postal employes to purchase tickets for participation in events of a political character. All officials and employes in the postal service are admonished to give no credence to such letters and statements, as I have not and do not approve of the use of my name in connection with such solicitations by or from people in the postal service."

New Charges.

Halleck yesterday added to his previous charge today by stating:

"It is reliably reported to me from my own State that on Tuesday, June 9, the postmaster at New Albany, Ind., was solicited over long-distance telephone, by Postmaster General Farley in person, to manage sale of 'nominator tickets' in that section. This telephone call came from Washington, D. C."

Halleck said the letter he sent the Civil Service Commission was the second which "has come to my hand from Massachusetts in as many days."

The letter sent to the commission, he added, bore the purported signatures of Farley and Joseph McGrath, as chairman of the "Roosevelt Nominator Committee, Hotel Bellvue, Boston, Mass."

"In each case the postmaster pleads for protection against such political demands," Halleck said, adding that similar demands had been reported to him from New Albany, Ind., and Springfield, Joplin and Poplar Bluff, Mo.

attend the LaFollette Progressive conference. Frazier who has been supporting Roosevelt in spite of the Senator's Republican label, said he might vote for Alf M. Landon. He said he is writing a letter to Landon asking him to expand his views on money.

Sweeney, in his House speech, predicted that Roosevelt, who carried Ohio by 70,000 in 1932, would lose State by 100,000 this year. He said that while he did not agree with Roosevelt, neither did he agree with Landon. He told the House that the New Deal had a "hole card," which was "the ace of political expediency."

"I want to see an executive whose word means something," he said. "I want to see an executive who, when he says on the steps of the Capitol 'I am going to drive the money changers from the temple,' drives them from the temple.

Opposes "Straddling."

"I do not want to see a President who one day walks down one side of the road with the Chamber of Commerce and the next day walks down the road with labor. I do not want to see a President who walks down the road with the veterans one day and the next day walks down the other side of the road with the enemies of the veterans."

Meanwhile, George L. Berry, chairman of "Labor's Non-Partisan League," supporting Roosevelt's re-election, reported that the league had completed organization in every State. After a conference at the White House, Berry said the league is working through more than 100,000 officers and members of trades unions.

The Associated Press reported from Milwaukee that Dr. Townsend declared that his organization was not indorsing anyone at this time, but that "if they come to us with any kind of satisfactory offer, we'll consider it."

Orken Is Dead; Noted Disabled Veteran Leader

Campaigner in Philippines Led Fight for Pensions to Maimed Soldiers.

Every maimed American war veteran has cause to grieve because Jacob Orken, who not only was one of them but who always led the way in fighting their pension battles, is dead.

The ravages of an incurable disease, directly traceable to his service in the Philippine Insurrection more than three decades ago, which also cost him a leg, finally won out yesterday morning as Orken lay in Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park, Md.

Death, which he fought off for years to carry on aggressively for wounded soldiers like himself, arrived almost on the eve of one of his greatest victories.

Lauded by Hines.

Now in conference, having passed both Houses, is a bill which would increase benefits to veterans who have been disabled in peacetime. Orken worked hard to put that measure through. Its final passage and signature by President Roosevelt is expected this week.

A naturalized citizen, having migrated to the United States when in his teens, Orken was well known on Capitol Hill and in the Veterans' Administration. He was proud to be a lobbyist for the maimed veterans.

"He was not only a good soldier but a fine veteran," said Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, last night in paying tribute to the dead campaigner of the Spanish-American and the Philippine wars. "He was loyal to his companions, for whom he helped work out an adequate and sensible pension program. He will be sadly missed."

To Have Been Honored.

Orken was secretary-treasurer of the Maimed Soldiers League. For the last two or three years he had been confined, at frequent intervals, in Mount Alto Hospital and later Washington Sanitarium, but that did not hinder his work for the cause.

A ceremony had been planned for tomorrow night by Mount Vernon Chapter, Military Order of the Purple Heart, at which a stand of colors owned by Orken was to be presented to the patriotic group.

"It is hoped," said the announcement, "that Mr. Orken will be able to hear this portion of the evening's program as he has a radio at his bedside."

But Orken will be buried tomorrow instead. Services will be conducted in Arlington National Cemetery by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Purple Heart and interment will be with full military honors.

Orken was about 56 years old, according to the man who was probably his closest friend, Joseph J. Harvey, a disabled veteran who lives at 428 Fourth street northeast. He cabled the news yesterday to Orken's family, all members of whom live in South Africa.

Promoter Sentenced.

the Capitol, as he plodded along the corridors, usually with an unlit cigar in his mouth, served throughout the emergency period of the New Deal as chairman of the keystone Banking and Currency Committee.

There he piloted banking laws, stock market control legislation and the securities act through vigorous opposition and on to the Senate floor. There he acted as presiding officer during the Pecora investigation of Wall Street and the large banking houses, using his mellowed wisdom to preserve a sane course during the hectic days when a midget sat on the lap of J. P. Morgan and heated words surged about the scene.

President's Message.

Immediate tribute came from all sides yesterday:

President Roosevelt said: "The country has lost an able and conscientious servant in the death of Senator Fletcher."

"As chairman of the great committee on Banking and Currency throughout a period of unprecedented financial upheaval, his steadying influence was reflected both in emergency and in permanent legislation which rescued the entire banking structure of the country from utter collapse and destruction.

"Throughout a long and distinguished career in the Senate he was ever actuated by motives of high patriotism and unselfish devotion to the public welfare. In his passing a fine and gallant gentleman goes from our midst."

Fletcher's death was hastened, it was said, by his stout and unswerving battle for the Florida ship canal project. He was prominent in efforts to obtain the original allocation for it last year and had defended it repeatedly since against all attacks.

Only a few weeks ago the Senate refused by a single vote, 36 to 35, to appropriate additional money for its continuance. Two weeks ago he fought the battle all over again, winning this time, with an amendment to the relief bill authorizing a new study of the canal, with additional funds hinging on a favorable report.

Other Comments.

Comments by others on his death included:

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho: "If ever a man sacrificed his life to his duties, it was Senator Fletcher."

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska: "God knows we need more men like Senator Fletcher in the Senate."

Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee: "Few men have accomplished more than he did for the public good during his long years of public service."

The tribute paid Fletcher by Vice President Garner on March 4, 1934, at the occasion of a dinner in the Floridian's honor, was recalled last night. Garner said then:

"He's a gentleman, a real, sweet, kindly Christian gentleman. He's an honor to Florida and the Nation. As long as the States continue to send such men to the Senate the Nation is safe."

Born in Georgia.

Fletcher, born in Sumter County, Ga., on January 6, 1859, studied at Vanderbilt University. He practiced law in Jacksonville for some time, becoming a member of the Florida Legislature in 1892, and being elected Mayor of Jacksonville the following year.

He had begun his Senate service in 1909. He was the oldest member in point of service except for Senator Borah, of Idaho, having begun his career at the same time as Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), South Carolina.

Funeral services will take place in Jacksonville Sunday, it was indicated at the Senator's office.

Associated Press dispatches from Tallahassee reported that Secretary of State Robert A. Gray said a special primary will be held this summer to nominate Democratic candidates for the State's two Senatorial offices. Senator Loftin was named by Gov. Dave Sholtz of Florida to serve only until the November elections. Sholtz in Washington yesterday, expressed himself as deeply grieved.

Committee chairmanships probably will be realigned because of Fletcher's death, it appeared. Sen. Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, now head of the powerful Appropriations committee, was next in line for the Banking and Currency chairmanship. If he continues to hold his present post, Sen. Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, will be the likely chairman of the banking committee, it appeared.

Milk Price-Fixing Test Case Delayed

Richmond, Va., June 17 (AP).—Attorneys for Luther W. High and the Highland Farm Dairy and the State consented today to await the decision of a three-judge Federal court in litigation over enforcement of the Virginia Milk Commission's regulations in the Arlington-Alexandria market.

High and the dairy are seeking an injunction against price-fixing stipulations of the board on the grounds that the State agency is interfering with interstate commerce. High buys milk from the dairy in the District of Columbia and sells it across the Potomac.

U. S. District Judge Robert N. Pollard asked the litigants to withhold further action until he could arrange with members of the Circuit Court, now in session, to sit with him on the case, probably in July. He pointed out that appeal from a three-man court could be taken directly to the United States Supreme Court.

Assistant Attorney General E. H. Gibson represented the board and John S. Barbour, of Fairfax, appeared on behalf Virginia and Maryland producers. T. Justin Moore and associates, of Richmond, appeared for the petitioners.

Grand Army Commander Visits Mount Vernon

G.A.R. Chief Visits Mt. Vernon To See How Washington Lived

Gen. Oley Nelson, 91, Eager to Learn How First President Operated Plantation; Now in Capital to Prepare for Encampment.

Commander in Chief Oley Nelson of the Grand Army of the Republic yesterday visited the home and last resting place of his hero, George Washington.

Eager to see everything and miss nothing, the keen-minded 91-year-old veteran, who, as a 19-year-old Wisconsin farm boy, joined the Union Army after his father died at the front, enjoyed his visit at Mount Vernon.

He questioned attendants on the crops raised by Washington. He wanted to know which pieces of furniture were originals and which reproductions. He gazed upon the key to the Bastille presented to Washington by Lafayette and he was curious to know how many slaves had been kept on the plantation.

And finally Gen. Nelson stood in reverent silence at the tomb of the founder of a nation which this white-haired old man helped protect in '64 and '65.

Gen. Nelson, whose home is in Iowa, has visited Washington two or three times during the past year, making arrangements for the G. A. R. encampment to be held here in September, but not until yesterday did he have an opportunity to make the Mount Vernon trip.

He was accompanied by his secretary, Miss Katharen Flood, and Mrs. Myrtle Buckles and Mrs. K. P. McElroy, of the Daughters of Union Veterans.

Gen. Nelson left his classes in the University of Wisconsin to go to war in May, 1864. He would have enlisted earlier, but his father, marching off to battle, had commanded him to stay behind to look after his mother.

The blond-haired Oley was one of the 1,000 Wisconsin boys under 21 who left high school and college to form the Fortieth Wisconsin, nicknamed the University Regiment.

Today he will leave Washington to attend the New Jersey G. A. R. encampment at Atlantic City. When he returns in September for the national reunion, he will call his blue-clad comrades to order with a gavel made from wood taken from the hospital in which his father died.

Nice to Retain Garey as Head Of State Police

Baltimore, June 17 (AP).—Maj. Enoch Barton Garey, who led a party in which a State trooper died on the ice off Crisfield, will retain his post as superintendent of State Police.

Gov. Harry W. Nice announced today he had decided to retain Garey. In doing so, he went directly against recommendations of a special board of inquiry, which investigated the death of Sergt. Wilbert V. Hunter, the trooper.

That board recommended that Garey be asked to resign and, if he failed to do so, that he be dismissed. Board members uniformly declined comment on Nice's action.

Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, president of St. John's College and Garey's counsel during the inquiry, expressed gratification at the Governor's action. "I am deeply gratified and am sure the Governor has made no mistake," Woodcock said.

Garey himself declined comment. He was with the Governor when the announcement was made.

Hunter in Expedition.

Hunter was a member of an expedition which set out during a blizzard last February to carry supplies to grocers on Tangier Island, Va. Maj. Garey led the expedition.

The expedition never reached its first goal, the Coast Guard cutter Travis, in the channel four miles off shore. A rescue party from the Travis found Hunter and a few others after Maj. Garey and other members reached the Travis and requested aid.

Hunter was dead when the rescue party arrived. He, Maj. Garey and others had fallen through the ice.

"I am compelled to choose between the only two courses open to me," Gov. Nice said.

"The first and probably the obvious course would be simply to follow the recommendation of the majority of the commission and ask for Maj. Garey's resignation.

"The other course is the one which would lead me away from mere administrative routine and involves the consideration of the whole matter in its larger aspects."

Nice cited seven reasons for his decision. They were:

Maj. Garey's "meritorious and distinguished" record and the wide public approval that greeted his appointment last September.

A resolution of the last Legislature commending the expedition for its brave efforts at relieving the islanders.

A statement in the report of the board that the investigators agreed Maj. Garey was convinced there was urgent need of supplies on Tangier Island.

Grady Honored Upon Leaving Trade Division

U. S. Officials Give Dinner to Hull Assistant in State Department.

A farewell dinner, attended by Government officials and members of the State Department was held last night in the Carlton Hotel for Harold F. Grady, "mainspring" in Secretary Cordell Hull's trade agreements policy.

Grady who is chief of the Division of Trade Agreements, Department of State, and the man responsible for the 14 trade agreements with foreign countries sponsored by Hull, will return next month to his former position as dean of the College of Commerce at the University of California.

Honor guests including, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State; Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, and Daniel Roper, Secretary of Commerce and nearly 70 others attended the dinner.

Charles S. Haight, admiralty lawyer of New York and a Republican, who defended the trade agreements, pledged his support to Hull's program. He was the first speaker, and said:

"There are many persons in the Republican Party besides myself whose swords are drawn and regardless of New Deal policies will defend the movement to the utmost."

Robert L. O'Brien, chairman of the Tariff Commission, also a Republican, congratulated Grady on his work while chief of the Trade Agreement Division.

Secretary Hull spoke "with regret" of Dr. Grady's leaving his department and congratulated him on his accomplishments while a member of the State Department.

The diners, seated about a horseshoe table, were clad in informal attire. They joked with one another about the nonpartisan attitude in admitting two Republicans to a New Deal function.

Grady will be succeeded by Harry C. Hawkins, assistant chief of the Division of Trade Agreements.

Still Free To Bargain.

The decision of the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals denying the right of the National Labor Relations Board to order the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. to reinstate employes dismissed for alleged union activity should not be allowed to encourage "die hard" resistance to the spread of collective bargaining.

It would be a serious strategic blunder for employing groups to act upon the assumption that the future of collective bargaining depends upon judicial determination of the constitutionality of the Wagner act. Even if the Supreme Court should declare existing legislation invalid, there is nothing to prevent organized labor from proceeding with its campaign to unionize hitherto unorganized industries. Nor is there any legal obstacle in the way of the efforts of John L. Lewis and his supporters to set up independent industrial unions within the mass-production industries.

In fact, the company unions established with employer encouragement in the steel industry and other unorganized industries are already struggling to attain the status of independent bargaining agencies free to affiliate with outside groups. Unwittingly, managements seeking to counteract the spread of an effective form of unionism have laid the basis for a vertical type of labor organization capable of enforcing its demands without relying upon the support of State or Federal guarantees. The success or failure of these agencies of collective bargaining will not be determined by statutory declarations of the rights of workers to bargain through representatives of their own choosing or by legal prohibition of unfair employer practices.

Nevertheless, the manner in which both labor and representatives of industry meet the issue presented by collective bargaining will determine the character and scope of legislation regulating employer-employe relationships. If employers refrain from all attempts to coerce or intimidate workers, and if organized labor makes no excessive demands upon employers, collective bargaining can be established on a firm basis through mutual understanding, without the constraint of laws or the intervention of governmental boards or regulatory agencies.

But if labor is irresponsible in exercising self-won rights to bargain collectively or if industry short-sightedly resists the legitimate attempts of labor to assert its independence of employer domination, public sentiment will veer toward legislative enforcement of collective bargaining, to the long-range detriment of both sides.

An Ineffective Remedy.

It is virtually certain that the Guffey coal stabilization bill will pass the Senate as expeditiously as it went through the House. The substitute proposal, designed to take the place of the measure recently declared to be unconstitutional, tries to meet legal objections by dropping the labor provisions of the original act. But, with some modifications, the price-fixing clauses and the marketing provisions of the invalidated law are retained as well as penalties disguised as taxes upon producers who fail to comply with the coal code.

Grave doubts still exist as to the constitutionality of the revamped measure, and efforts to enforce it will doubtless lead to extensive litigation. Apart from considerations of legality, however, the new Guffey bill is economically indefensible. It makes no attempt to correct basic evils which urgently call for remedial action, but imposes upon the industry a system of price-fixing that would aggravate existing evils. A socially desirable form of stabilization would involve restrictions upon the development of new mines and elimination of existing high-cost output with the object of curbing ruinous competition and conserving our natural resources.

Provisions for fixing minimum prices based on average production costs in defined marketing areas would be more likely to keep the marginal high-cost mines in operation, while assurance of obtaining certain minimum prices would lead to the opening of new mines in some areas. Furthermore, higher prices would encourage consumption of other kinds of fuel in place of coal. With union labor pressing for passage of the new Guffey bill, in the belief that higher prices would result and that increased wages would thus be made possible, the prospects for constructive solution of the problems of overdevelopment (or underconsumption) are far from promising.

Pending such time as Congress is willing to formulate a control plan that strikes at the real difficulties of the industry, the producers might better be left free to organize under voluntary agreements to regulate the production and marketing of coal.

The Wagner Housing Bill.

Passage of the Wagner housing bill through the Senate was doubtless encouraged by the silence of the Republican platform on the subject of abolishing slums. The Administration has a fine opportunity to capitalize an issue of far-reaching importance to the country and of popular appeal to millions of Americans who are improperly housed. But there is also a dark side to the picture. The Senate apparently rushed the measure to passage for political effect, with only casual discussion of some very questionable provisions.

The commendable objective of the Wagner bill is to promote slum reclamation and thus eliminate the unsocial conditions under which a considerable portion of our urban population lives. It is only some of the policies chosen to promote that objective which are open to criticism. For example, subsidies permissible under the bill would be excessive. The proposed United States Housing Authority could make grants to public housing agencies up to 45 per cent of the value of their projects. It could also make loans covering the remaining 55 per cent of the cost of low-rent dwellings, and these loans could run over a period of 60 years at such rate of interest "as may be deemed advisable by the authority."

With this wide latitude, the proposed Housing Authority could reduce rentals to very little more than operating expenses. In view of the extensive need for low-cost housing, and the limited funds available, it would be extremely unwise thus to concentrate benefits. Moreover, the form of the subsidy does not accord with the most modern practice. Benefits granted by writing off 45 per cent of building costs tend to become permanent. Experience has demonstrated, however, that many families now in need of better living quarters will not be permanently dependent upon public assistance. Their needs might be met more economically and just as effectively by rental subsidies guaranteed over long periods.

Senator George pointed out the adverse effects of increased governmental spending even for desirable purposes. A still more serious objection to the loose terms of this bill may be raised from the viewpoint of the sociologist interested in better housing. The generous subsidies voted by the Senate would not be confined to elimination of slums. And even where slum areas are reclaimed there is no assurance that the benefits of new housing would be confined to their inhabitants. The subsidized projects would be available to any "families of low income." That term is loosely defined to mean "families who lack sufficient income, without the benefit of financial assistance, to enable them to live in decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings and under other than overcrowded housing conditions." Under such terms, subsidized public housing might actually increase the shortage of dwellings through unfair competition with private enterprise.

One other weak point in the bill is its failure to provide for the definite coordination of existing housing agencies. It would merely give the President authority to make such consolidations. At the same time the way appears to remain open for housing grants to the RA and the PWA if they could win the favor of the proposed new agency.

In spite of the reasonable prospects that a carefully planned housing program would result in widespread social and economic benefits, nothing could be gained by passing a sloppy measure for political effect. If Congress lacks sufficient time before adjournment to correct the weaknesses of this bill, further consideration of it might better be deferred until next year.

A Sign Of Decay.

The weakness displayed in the Maine primary elections by the Coughlin and Townsend organizations is symptomatic of their declining political importance.

Of the six candidates indorsed either by the National Union for Social Justice or the Townsend group, or both, four fell by the wayside. Of the two successful candidates indorsed by these organizations, one, Ralph O. Brewster, who sought renomination in the Third Congressional District, had no opposition.

In view of this poor showing it seems at first glance surprising that the Coughlin, Townsend and related organizations should be discussing the establishment of a third party which is to hold its convention "in the near future" and name a candidate to oppose both President Roosevelt and Gov. Landon for the Presidency.

Actually such a move would be an indirect admission of the fact that the Coughlin and Townsend movements are fast losing their strength. If that were not the case one or the other of the major political parties would be bidding for the large number of votes which these movements claim but obviously cannot deliver.

It is because the major parties have largely discounted the threat to them embodied in the hostility of the Coughlin and Townsend elements that the latter are sending up trial balloons to test sentiment for a third party. This sort of thing has happened frequently in American history.

If the experience of the past is repeated, as is not unlikely, the coming election may sound the final doom, individually or collectively, of the League for Social Justice, Dr. Townsend's O. A. R. P. and the late Huey Long's "Share the Wealth" movement, now captained by Gerald L. K. Smith.

Treasure It Reverently.

Those District school teachers who are hastily destroying the Blanton questionnaire are making a great mistake. Any collector of Americana will recognize at a glance that this is an historic document, which in years to come will command high price as a museum piece. And its value is enhanced by the fact that the edition is strictly limited. It is alleged that Mr. Blanton is himself keeping a few copies as a gilt-edged investment. But aside from these almost the whole output is now in the hands of the teachers of Washington, together with the franked envelopes without which the questionnaire loses a part of its value.

As in the case of the bonus recipients, a word of warning should be addressed to the fortunate possessors of this windfall. Of course, no teacher should make any attempt to fill in or otherwise mar the naked beauty of the questionnaire. Copies should be carefully wrapped in tissue paper, tied with baby-blue (not pink) ribbon and then placed reverently in a safe deposit box. For teachers who are too communistic to believe in safe deposit boxes a communal repository might be provided by the Board of Education.

Inevitably there will be attempts to counterfeit this precious document. For that reason every owner of an original should study it carefully so as to be able to detect spurious copies later. Such examination will disclose, for instance, that in the authentic issue the question: "Do you believe there is a God?" is carefully spaced and no room is left for any agnostic quibbling on the issue.

The real questionnaire also shows a slight favoritism as between the questions asking the recipient whether he approves of the writings of (a) Dr. George S. Counts and (b) Dr. Charles A. Beard. There is nearly one-eighth of an inch more space for the reply to the latter. And, as the copy which Mr. Elderman insists on reproducing on this page today attests, there is no truth in the canard that the Blanton questionnaire asks teachers whether they have stopped beating their wives; answer yes or no.

In short, we disagree with those of our contemporaries who regard this latest Blantonism as an atrocious assault on the American tradition. It is as American as Coney Island, and vastly more amusing. There was nothing permanent about poor Mr. Zioncheck's crude escapades, but Blanton's unconscious buffoonery mounts in a gradual crescendo to ever more ecstatic heights. His place in the story of national comedy is assured and it is a safe bet that future biographers will pay highly for copies of this questionnaire to reproduce as a frontispiece to side-splitting narratives of the life of the gentleman from Abilene.

And while his is a lily which needs no gilding there is an additional chuckle in the fact that the dreadful name of Marx adorns the letterhead on which this immortal specimen of future incunabula is written.

Henry B. Walthall.

When Henry B. Walthall achieved success as the "Little Colonel" in "The Birth of a Nation," little did he dream that this fame was to prevent his getting numerous subsequent roles. For, after the sensitive portrayal of a Southern officer under the direction of D. W. Griffith, he was forever "typed" in producers' minds. Yet, strangely enough, his death this week at the age of 55 follows his appearance in a modern picture as an airplane inventor. He had been cast in a minor role with the China Clipper the paramount interest.

Walthall knew the motion-picture industry in its infancy. The Gish girls, struggling for a foothold; Mary Pickford earning less than $25 a week; D. W. Griffith, hailed as the master of directors—all this cinema history was in the making when Walthall was at his prime. Stars then were made by the public—not by strange silences and canny press agents. The "Little Colonel" was an outstanding example of this period. It is little wonder that it was hard for a casting office to see him in any other but a kindly and sympathetic role.

A Good Job—Half Done.

From the Chicago Tribune.

It is a singular coincidence that scheduled flying, first conceived as an aid to mail service, has become a far greater convenience to the business man himself than to his correspondence.

While it is not only possible, but frequently occurs, that a business man may leave Chicago in the morning to attend a meeting in New York and return the same day, mail deliveries even to nearby points on the date of writing are practically nonexistent. True, the same ship that handles the passengers will also handle the mail, but the Postoffice Department has produced nothing to continue the expedited service beyond the airport unless a special delivery stamp is affixed in addition to the air-mail postage. The previous Administration gave the country air service. This one does not take advantage of it.

The Postmaster General rested on his laurels with the job half done. The benefits of speedy transit should extend from sender to receiver, which can be accomplished only through the elimination of cumbersome postoffice machinery in which an air-mail missive is "just another letter."

Non-Partisan Election.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The patriotic, non-partisan appeal of Senator Norris, a Republican leader, for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election strikes right to the heart of the spirit that so obviously motivates the President's campaign. The unshakable confidence of the people in him lies in their firm conviction that it is their cause, and not his own aggrandizement that enlists his high, strenuous devotion as even such political opponents as know him must in all honesty admit.

They must also acquit him of lust for power; for they are aware that at any time these three years he probably might for the asking have been made absolute dictator of these United States. But a searching analysis of all his acts and methods will reveal that he was and is completely obsessed by the leveling urge, the equalizing of advantage and opportunity of this great people, who having abjured and escaped the thrall of monarchy were groaning under the growing and equally intolerable oppression of an aristocracy of wealth.

With that dry rot at its core, the days of this gretaerest of all nations were numbered. It was headed for revolution and dissolution. Not imminent, but deadly progressive. Wholly enthralled by this noble concept of a great reform and concurrently confronted by the country's thretached financial collapse, he subordinated to the suituation such of his platform promises as obstructed his program, and boldly charted his course, the wisdom of which has been fully vindicated and will inevitably be indorsed at the polls in November.

This will be a non-partisan election. Whether or not it will be so nominated on the hustings, the people bid fair to take their case over the heads of politicians and it will be one verdict of, for and by the people, and so nominated in the bond. President, Roosevelt will be accorded opportunity to round out his humane and comprehensive program, and the Ship of State will sail on from there, on even keel to the complete fulfillment of her great destiny. Compared to such proud achievement, political patries are, by the people, apt to be regarded as non-essentials, this good year of 1936.

GEORGE E. GARY

On Cashing Bonus Bonds.

To the Editor of The Post— Sir: It may appear like injecting a sour note into the symphony of joy and gladness incident to the bonus distribution to sound off this pipsqueak battery in criticism of certain features and processes of procedure that seemed needless.

So strongly did I feel on this subject that I gabbed with several Representatives and Senators in their lairs, urging elimination of the bond idea, except that bonds be issued on application as optional. That they'd get more investors that way than by the involved process. A few agreed, but a small majority stressed the value of investment features and even got in a few boosts about the New Deal when they found I had a vote.

Doling out the debt in the shape of bonds is looming up as a foolish piece of red tape, serving no useful purpose except vast expense of bond manufacture and distribution (93 per cent, it is estimated, being turned in at once for cash). The bonds aren't kept long enough for proper admiration of their esthetic beauty.

Many vets have not yet put in for their cut, and are in no panic of haste to do so. It might be a good thing if Congress, before it leaves to go stumping, took a few minutes to simplify the law applicable to the remaining cases, thus saving the Government enough dough to pay the salary boost they got last year. Cosideration should also be given to the direct application of bonus credits to premiums and loans on regular Government insurance policies. Cut out the bond delivery feature, I mean.

Or is such a suggestion too piffling for notice under a coin-tossing administration such as the present?

T. W. THURBER.

In Reply To Senator Norris.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the radio address delivered by Senator Norris last Sunday night, the Senator is not quoted as having in any way explained his inconsistent position in, on the one hand, masquerading as a Republican and using that party's background for what he can get out of it and, on the other hand, in recurringly supporting Mr. Roosevelt and now advocating the latter's re-efection.

The Senator implies that Gov. Landon would not follow an independent course but would be subservient to "bosses." Perhaps the Senator has not read Landon's telegram to the convention concerning his interpretation of certain parts of the party platform.

Senator Norris also says of the Republicans, "they will be careful in this coming campaign not to appear in the open." Perhaps a reading of the statement made by Mr. Hamilton in Chicago on Sunday last will cause the Senator to conclude that his prophecy was a bit premature.

Further, Mr. Norris tells us, "the moral, intellectual and spiritual objective of our people" can be achieved "simply" by re-electing "Franklin D. Roosevelt." The Senator is impertinent in his presumption of the people's gullibility as to the meaning of "simply."

Protective Laws For Women.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Amidst all the excitement over the Supreme Court decision, there has been lost sight of the fact that some women's organizations fought this law. Neither the United States Supreme Court nor the New Dealers can make or unmake economic laws.

If this law had been upheld, the women for whose benefit it was enacted would find themselves out of jobs, no matter how great their need. Of course, in the meantime many not-so-needy New Dealers would find political sinecures as investigators Conciliation—Antidote for Strikes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Two years ago the Pacific Coast Marine worker's strike caused the loss of millions of dollars. Since then, in spite of old and new labor legislation, strikes still wield their wrecking sway; irrespective of the discomfort of striker's homes and anxiety to employers. So far there have been only temporary settlements of disputes. Recurring strikes prove this point.

Why cannot a national conciliatory plan of operation be put into effect in industry; and thus eradicate completely and forever this incessant brewing of industrial strife.

I can almost hear the voice of caustic censorship denouncing such an idea as an illusive dream. No matter what condemnation it may receive, I substantiate my entire argument on the proven fact that wherever a sound conciliatory plan has been instituted in any particular plant or factory, peace and harmony have prevailed. The evidence in support of this statement is too well known to warrant any contradiction.

Co-operative plans in industry have existed in the United States, Canada and Great Britain for many years; with the resultant effect that peace and happiness have replaced misery and fear. The Pottery Industry in England is the great outstanding example.

Is not the principle of the balance wheel used both in watches and in steam engines? Does not the principle remain the same, wherever it is applied? Therefore, cannot the principle of conciliation be employed with equal success collectively as it has been beneficially applied individually?

If, as the result of a definite co-operative plan, harmony exists in a factory where there are a thousand men employed, will not the same plan work as effectively where there are fifty thousand workers?

Has it ever been advocated that national concilation should be adopted? Such legislation placed on the statutes of any country would insure industrial peace and contentment; and any political party supporting such a policy would receive the indorsement of labor as a whole. Is not such an aim worthy of serious consideration? Should not capital and labor cast aside all acrimony and heat of passion, and strive earnestly towards the practical application of such an ideal?

Both employers and labor unions fear the inroads of communism. Its tentacles are worming their way not only into industry, but into our social and educational life. How is this menace to be defeated? Surely, by conciliatory methods, which are the very antitheses of communistic despotism. Communism cannot exist where good-will is persistently practised. The former is destructive; the latter constructive. Furthermore, where Communists have been intimately associated with sound co-oprative activities in industry they have become good citizens.

Where are the men with the vision to grasp it? Where are the men with the courage to put it into effect?

Gambling In Churches

Following are abstracts from an article by Marguerite Harmon Bro in the Christian Century.

SOMEONE is hunting a chord on the Sunday school organ in order to start the doxology . . . you are being led to your place . . . when someone plucks your sleeve.

"Would you like to buy a chance? They're only 10 cents." A sweet weathered face looks up at you.

"A chance?" you say, drawing the dime from your purse, thoroughly pleased to have a bond with this characterful countenance. "A chance for what?"

"A chance on the turkeys. They're all milk-fed from the Kimball's farm."

Obviously, you are mystified. And so she explains in words of one syllable—as it was explained to her—exactly how a lottery works. She has the gambler's own enthusiasm for the scheme although, bless her heart, she'd probably drop dead in her tracks if she knew she were gambling. This is just a new idea that the president of the ladies' aid picked up when she was a delegate downstate to the meeting at Park Street Church. They raised twice as much as any year since the depression just by selling chances on all kinds of things. And besides you should see the excitement at the drawing.

Months pass by and you have grown accustomed to finding gambling devices in churches. You never blink an eye at the good old grab bag, nor at money prizes for bridge. You scarcely notice treasure hunts and guessing games. You've seen all sorts of things raffled, from a registered setter dog guaranteed to have at least five puppies two weeks from date to a cut-glass bottle of water from Lake Galilee. You've been offered chances on a house and lot, a pearl tiara, and a barrel of clothespins.

• • • •

You've heard all the arguments, some of them relative to gambling in churches and some relative to gambling in general. You could recite the arguments in your sleep:

"Americans will spend their money for changes. Do you know that half a billion dollars is said to pour out of this country every year to foreign sweepstakes and lotteries? Why shouldn't we keep that money at home?"

"All of life's a gamble anyway. You take a chance every time you cross the street."

"Life's drab enough. I say if anyone can cook up a little honest excitment, I'm all for them."

"Gambling's the oldest human instinct. What can you do about an an instinct?"

"If you can get something for nothing, why not?"

"It's good psychology to get a lot of people thrilled about the same thing. Make them patriotic."

"Sure if I win, a lot of people have to lose, but I should worry. I don't know them."

"It's no worse for the church to take illegal money from these harmless lotteries than for the church to take unethical money from skinflint capitalists."

"What else will our church do? We've tried everything and it seems like this is the only way we can get the money."

And for this last argument, you have at least a second degree sympathy. It is the reason most frequently advanced by earnest, honest, responsible, fuzzy-minded church members.

• • • •

Why should Protestant leadership be concerned with the advent of gambling within the church? Is there a categorical imperative which "ought" to operate against its encouragement? Or, at the other extreme, is it viewed as antagonistic to the fullness of life only because it is contrary to traditional standards? In behalf of those who feel gambling to be anti-religious in its tendencies the following considerations are offered:

Gambling within the church spreads a blanket of ethical approval over a form of social action economically unsound. Like the sales tax, gambling falls proportionately most heavily upon the group which can least afford to curtail its expenditure for necessities.

Gambling is psychologically unsound because it effects a diversion of energy from creative purposes . . . Gambling is an excitment outlet, a high-pitch uncertainty, and it arrests emotional energy at a low level. The church which utilizes lotteries will find itself hard pressed to draw a line between "approved" and "unapproved" forms of gambling. The excitement must go on.

• • • •

The acceptance of gambling devices among the approved folkways of Protestant churches may well cause sober-minded individuals to look to their orientation. As approved by current ethics in the name of the church, gambling takes on a time-dimensional relationship. "The best in the long run" is an acid test but a fair one to demand of any custom approved by the group which, more than any other, has set the moral standards for the civilization of which it is part. When priests sit hesitantly on the sidelines, it is time for the prophets to arise. And prophets generally arise from the ranks, the humble ranks of those who see so clearly the worth of the personality of their fellows, that throwing the moneychangers out of the temple becomes as inevitable as sweeping out any other social rubbish.

Kansas Controversy

The Wichita Beacon has made a fearless editorial attack on your correspondent in response to some well-meant observations regarding the Commonwealth and the state of mind known as Kansas, written during the Republican convention in Cleveland. The Beacon seems to resent more than anything else the suggestion that Kansans are not drunkards or good fellows in the colloquial sense of the term.

"He could have been taught better were he to visit Wichita," the editorial says. "He would find out here some of the most prodigal spendthrifts on earth. We could point out to him at least 10,000 individuals possessed of quenchless thirsts, inherited and acquired, any one of whom could put the average Broadway columnist under the table."

This is not the first time your correspondent has placed himself in this difficult position. About a year ago from Cincinnati there appeared a little story regarding the so-called annual convention of the Hoboes' Union under the chairmanship of Jeff Davis, who calls himself the King of Hoboes. Having known Mr. Davis for many years, your correspondent ventured to say that he was not a real hobo but, on the contrary, a cottage-bound, faithful, domesticated homer with a devoted family, including grandchildren. In fact, the last time your correspondent had seen Mr. Davis he was complaining of lonesomeness and vowing to return home to his family as soon as he could accumulate railroad fare.

This catalogue of the standard American virtues would seem to be pleasant enough, and almost any libel lawyer would be tempted to deliver offhand judgment that it was safe to level such accusations at any man.

Nevertheless, Mr. Davis was seriously annoyed and demanded a retraction, claiming that his reputation had been injured. Always glad to make amends, your correspondent then looked up the word "hobo" in several dictionaries and discovered that a hobo is a vagabond, often a petty thief and, generally speaking, an undesirable character. Mr. Davis received satisfaction accordingly, but nevertheless he seemed a little cool when your correspondent encountered him again last week in Cleveland.

The Wichita Beacon seems equally difficult. Certainly if anyone were to write an article describing Kansans as drunkards and spendthrifts Kansas would resent that. Your correspondent hesitates to accept the hint even from a Kansas paper for fear of a kickback.

* * * *

Kansas seems a good deal like a large family whose members include some rather frisky characters with a tendency to hang around the roadhouse late at night drinking spiked beer. They admit within their intimate circle that there are such brothers in the household, and they doubtless do criticize them very frankly over the table at night. But let an outsider suggest as much and there is a row on.

On the other hand, they betray a certain pride in the devilishness of their gay dogs, as the editorial in the Wichita Beacon indicates.

On the whole, however, they are a pretty narrow-minded family, as they often reveal in their utterances about New York. New Yorkers know Kansas only by hearsay, and are likely to admit that the State is a mysterious land to them. Kansans, on the other hand, pretend to know all about New York and the temperament of the New York people, though every remark of theirs bringing in Broadway proves their utter ignorance of the city. They know New York from the movies, the color supplements and the Broadway columns and from their experiences as tourists and buyers at the night clubs and skin-shows.

* * * *

True, this phase of New York life receives more publicity than the life in the dumbwaiter apartments, the factories, and the endless rows of all-alike houses, many of them with little gardens, stretching for miles into the suburbs. Home news of the common man in New York would not sell in Wichita, but they like to read about the Stork Club. Kansans never consider that human beings live in New York and the vast outlying sections who work at their little jobs, if they can find jobs, spend their evenings at home listening to the radio, try to pay their bills, mind their own business and get along. In this matter of minding their own business they are unlike the true, typical Kansan, for they never did care whether Kansas had prohibition or not, whereas Kansas was very positive that prohibition ought to be imposed on them. Otherwise, however, the majority of New York's 10,000,000 know very little more about Broadway than they do about Kansas. And most of them never visit night clubs at all. They can't afford it, with prodigal spenders in from Wichita running up the prices.

Your correspondent dislikes controversies, however, and aims to please.

Would it be sufficient apology, therefore, to admit that there is a broken heart for every light in Wichita?

300 Boys, Girls Protect Bicycle Tax Proposal

Oskaloosa, Iowa, June 17 (AP).—More than 300 boys and girls paraded along Oskaloosa streets today protesting a proposed city wheel tax on bicycles.

Many of them carried signs stating:

Revolt In Quebec

Overthrow Of Taschereau Ministry After Exposures Throws Province In Confusion Wih Signs Of Fascism Now Developing.

By William Marchington
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

THE CANADIAN Province of Quebec, lying along the shore of the lower St. Lawrence, has for months past been the storm center of Canadian politics. It is now the scene of a crisis of first-rate importance both for the province itself and the fortunes of the political parties of Canada.

Quebec is fundametnally conservative in its political, social and economic outlook. For years the French-Canadians were one of the chief bulwarks of political conservatism in Canada. But after the Liberal Party chose as its leader a brilliant French-Canadian, the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as its leader, racial pride in his genius and great career took the majority of the French-Canadians into the Liberal camp toward the end of the last century. There most of them have remained ever since. Rare have been the elections since 1896 that the Liberal Party has not carried at least three-fourths of the 65 seats allocated to Quebec in the federal parliament and since 1897 the Liberals have controlled the provincial legislature without interruption.

In the provincial field this party has during the last 30 years been led by two dominating figures, first by the late Sir Lomer Gouin, who was provincial premier from 1905 to 1920; then by Alexandre Taschereau, who, born in 1867 and beginning his political career as long ago as 1900, had held the premiership from 1920 until yesterday.

Premier Taschereau Of Old Quebec Family.

TASCHEREAU belongs to one of the leading families of Quebec, which has given a series of able men to the service of the state and church, and he has long been rated one of the most skillful and subtle politicians in Canada. Calling himself a Liberal, he is extremely conservative in his economic and social views, but ever since he assumed the premiership completely he has dominated his party. A year ago it seemed as if nothing could shake his hold upon the government of the province. But as the result of a series of strange developments the foundations of his strength have rapidly crumbled and his position has become so untenable that on Friday he handed in his resignation to the lieutenant governor and apparently brought to an end his long public career.

His troubles began when two years ago a group of young Liberals, dissatisfied with the conservatism of the Taschereau ministry and evidence of corrupt administration, organized an insurgent party styled L'Action Liberale Nationale. Gradually it acquired formidable strength all over the province. When a provincial election came around last fall its leaders decided to form a working alliance with the provincial Conservatives. A plan to avoid splitting the anti-governmental vote by allocating seats between the two parties was devised and so successfully did it work that the alliance came within an ace of defeating the Taschereau ministry and actually polled a popular majority. The Nationale Liberale Party captured 26 seats and the Conservatives 16, which gave them a total of 42 as against 46 secured by the Liberals.

Such a result was a moral defeat for the Taschereau ministry, and when the legislature met last March it found itself fighting for its life with a bare majority of six against a militant opposition which was determined on its downfall. Nevertheless Taschereau managed to keep his followers in line and beat off all attacks in a series of stormy debates. But when the opposition got th public accounts committee summoned and forced a resolution inquisition into a variety of administrative transactions it got abundant grist for its mill in a series of unsavory scandals, which were uncovered.

Scandals Involved Premier's Brother.

ANY DETAILED account of these scandals would be superfluous, but the deadliest blow was struck when Antone Taschereau, brother of the premier, who was accountant of the legislative assembly admitted that for years past he had been drawing for his own personal benefit interest on a large amount of governmental funds, sometimes as large as $75,000, which were entrusted to his care and which he had deposited in a bank managed by his son. His resignation immediately followed, and then another shock to the ministry came when Charles Lanctot, who, in the role of deputy attorney general, has for years been one of the powers behind the throne at Quebec City, refused to answer questions as to whether while a public servant he had accepted fees from big business interests and tendered his resignation.

These and other disclosures furnishing convincing proof of gross corruption and graft in the administration and it became obvious that the game was up for Mr. Taschereau. Last week he bowed to the gathering storm and in his place the Lieutenant Governor has appointed Adelard Godbout, the Minister of Agriculture as provincial Premier.

Mr. Godbout, who was a professor of agriculture before he entered politics, is, if a less brilliant man than Taschereau, a very presentable figure. But it remains to be seen whether the reorganization of the ministry which he is now undertaking will regain the confidence of the voters for the Liberal Party. As the budget and most of the estimates are not passed he has no alternative but to seek a fresh mandate and a provincial general election has been fixed for August 15. Hopes are cherished in Liberal circles that M. Godbout may be able to win back some of the Liberal malcontents, who objected only to Taschereau but there are not much signs of their realization.

For the Federal Liberal Party the loss of control of the province of Quebec would be a serious matter and the date of the election has been set back obviously in order that the 60 Federal Liberal members from Quebec may take a hand in it. So the next two months promise to witness in Quebec as hectic and a bitter a campaign as a community whose favorite diversion is politics has ever witnessed.

Downfall of Liberals Would Echo Everywhere.

APART FROM the downfall of Taschereau the campaign will have a special significance as the opposition forces, in which the Liberal National element dominates, have gradually developed a program which smacks strongly of fascism. They promise to break by all means the grip of the financial institutions, the hydro-electric trust and a ring of newsprint corporations. They threaten to fight the coal, gasoline, and bread trusts by resorting to State competition if necessary. They seek to destroy the power of a combine of milk-distributors by uniting in a closed association all the milk producers of the province. They propose a policy of rural electrification under public ownership and a tightening of the Combines act.

Furthermore they will undertake to redistribute taxation in order to insure a more equitable levy on great corporations and certain classes now enjoying unfair exemptions, to convert the provincial debt at the lowest rate possible, to reduce the rate of bank interest and also interest rates on mortgages. Altogether they propose to bring about a wholesale reform of the economic system of Quebec. They also inveigh against chain stores and threaten them with special taxation and the Jewish element in Montreal, who control several important lines of business, are the target of their special attack. Many of these proposed measures seem decidedly socialistic but their sponsors denounce both socialism and communism and openly laud Hitler and Mussolini as model statesmen.

Moreover they have given their program a racialist basis and are raising the cry that they intend to rescue the French-Canadians from slavery to corporations controlled by alien elements, either English-speaking Canadians or Americans. "French-Canada for the French-Canadians" is their slogan and it is bound to have a powerful appeal under present conditions.

The regular Liberal party is obviously at bay and much will depend upon the attitude of the leaders of the Roman Catholic Church which at one time gave the insurgent movement considerable encouragement but now seems to be rather frightened by later developments. The battle is now on and, as there are millions of dollars of American capital invested in Quebec, its outcome should be watched with anxious interest in the United States.

Indian Again Sentenced To Die for 2 Murders

Globe, Ariz., June 17 (AP).—For the second time, Earl Gardner, Apache Indian, accused of killing his wife and baby, today heard a Federal judge sentence him to hang in accordance with his expressed desire to "get it over with."

"I don't believe you," the Indian told Judge Albert M. Sames through an interpreter, after the sentence had been related to him.

"You didn't kill me the last time you said were going to. Now I don't believe anything you say. I don't want to talk with you."

Gardner first was sentenced to hang May 1, but an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals, made over his protest, delayed the execution.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Imaginary Interviews.

(President Roosevelt and Gov. Landon.)

Mr. Roosevelt—Well, Governor, congratulations. I wish you all the luck in the world.

Mr. Landon—Oh, come, Franklin, let's be honest with each other at least!

Mr. Roosevelt—I mean it. It's a fine feeling when one is named for the highest office in the land, isn't it?

Mr. Landon—A feeling you never have twice.

Mr. Roosevelt—I hope there's nothing personal in that.

* * * *

Mr. Landon—Did you listen to the convention on the radio?

Mr. Roosevelt—No, I haven't had to take anything to make me sleep in months. But I read the platform on which you were nominated.

Mr. Landon—That's encouraging. Sometime you may get around to reading the one on which you were nominated.

Mr. Roosevelt—Oh, stop talking like Al Smith.

* * * *

Mr. Landon—That was a fine ovation they gave Hoover, wasn't it?

Mr. Roosevelt—Hoover? Hoover? Oh, yes, I remember meeting him.

Mr. Landon—He often refers to you.

Mr. Roosevelt—So I understand. It's a small world, isn't it? I hear you were born in the East.

Mr. Landon—Yes, but I like it better in the great open spaces.

Mr. Roosevelt—There are no more open spaces.

Mr. Landon—That's what you think.

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt—Do you like Topeka?

Mr. Landon—Very much; I'd hate to have to leave it.

Mr. Roosevelt—Don't worry; you won't have to.

* * * *

Mr. Landon—Remember, Franklin, it was Republican votes that elected you.

Mr. Roosevelt—Yes, and that was before most of the Republicans were put on the regular Democratic pay rolls. Lissen, do you really favor balancing budgets?

Mr. Landon—Of course, but, then, my opinion on that wouldn't interest you; I'm just a businessman. I don't believe in piling up debts on future generations.

Mr. Roosevelt—The future generations can take care of themselves.

Mr. Landon—They'll have to!

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt—I might mention that, despite your economy claims, your State accepted millions from the Federal Treasury under the New Deal.

Mr. Landon—I didn't want to be caught without a bowl when it was raining soup.

Mr. Roosevelt—Even a Kansan can be practical, eh?

* * * *

Mr. Landon—Well, now that we understand each other perfectly, I guess I'll go.

Mr. Roosevelt—Where are you going?

Mr. Landon—I'm not positive.

Mr. Roosevelt—Good. Then no matter where you finish you won't be disappointed. If you're ever in Washington drop in at the White House.

Mr. Landon—Thanks. And after January—I invite you to feel at liberty to do the same.

Samuel Butler

By William Lyon Phelps.

English Writer.

The novelist Samuel Butler died on June 18, 1902. On his deathbed he directed that his manuscript novel "The Way of All Flesh" should be published. Accordingly, it appeared in 1903. He had been writing it for many years; he had finished it a good while before his death, but unlike Mr. Santayana, he adhered to his original determination not to see it himself in a print dress.

When Butler died, I had never heard of him. He had written a number of books, but they had failed to attract general attention. His fame began with the appearance of his masterpiece, and it seems clear today that "The Way of All Flesh" is a permanent addition to English literature.

* * * *

Of course, Butler knew well enough that if this novel had been published in the eighties, it would have made a tremendous rumpus; but as he intensely enjoyed fighting and especially loved to shock respectability, I wonder that he kept it hidden.

Butler was born in England December 4, 1835. Like his father and grandfather, he was graduated from St. John's College, Cambridge. In 1859 he went to New Zealand and became a successful sheep farmer. In five years he came back to England and painted pictures. He translated the "Iliad" and "Odyssey." And it is interesting to observe that he, so skeptical in matters of religion, was so credulous in other ways. He thought he could prove that a woman wrote the "Odyssey."

* * * *

It is interesting to read "The Way of All Flesh" in comparison with Clarence Day's "Life With Father." Mr. Day loved his father while laughing at him; and every reader laughs and loves, too. But Butler hated his father and longed for his death. His great novel is a terrible indictment of parental discipline, Victorian morality, accepted ideas, and in fact of nearly everything generally believed. Thus it is a good thing to read Butler, for we all need intellectual opposition. I cannot forget Butler's remark that churchgoers would be equally shocked if anyone doubted Christianity or if anyone practiced it. There is enough truth in such an epigram to make it hurt.

Wreck, Bodies on Tropical Key Point to End of 'Treasure Hunt'

Hulk of Vessel Believed That of Mysterious 'Girl Pat' Found on Tiny Island in Eastern Bahamas, Near Legendary Cache of Pirate Gold.

By the Associated Press.

Nassau, the Bahamas, June 17.—Colonial authorities received unconfirmed reports today that shipwreck and death on the pink sands of a tropical coral key may have overtaken a crew of British fishermen who turned their prosaic trawler into a treasure-hunting argosy.

A wrecked vessel, flying the British ensign and answering the description of the missing vessel, Girl Pat, was found on a tiny island in the Eastern Bahamas, the report said, along with three bodies. There also were personal effects, navigating instruments and a Bible.

The sloop, Dove, from Acklins Island made the find. Its crew buried the bodies and reported its discovery to a second sloop, the City Train, which relayed the word here.

The scene of the shipwreck was Samana, also known as Atwoods Key, about 300 miles southeast of Nassau and just northwest of Silver Bank, where legend says 17 Spanish galleons loaded with treasure were sunk by pirates.

A meager description of the wrecked craft indicated it might be the Girl Pat, a modern, 25-ton motorship, with a crew of six, which left Grimsby, England, April 2, presumably bound for the North Sea fishing banks, but later as a fanciful freebooter.

While the owners filed charges of barratry and underwriters' agents in many ports were ordered to watch for her, the Girl Pat put in northwest Spain April 12, took on $1,175 worth of stores charged to the owners and abandoned her chief engineer.

She next showed up at Dakar, Senegal, took on more supplies, left another member of the crew, and vanished when the British consul sought her papers. At that time there were reports of a woman on board.

The ship next was reported flying a distress signal flag off French Guiana June 10. Another vessel answered the distress call and was told the Girl Pat lacked fuel and food. When the capital asked for the papers the vessel fled again.

The same day she took on fresh water at Les Iles du Salut, the Devils Island prison colony, and sailed without clearance papers.

Two War Lords Pledge Support To South China

Gen. Ma and Ex-Cabinet Chief Demand Campaign Against Japan.

Copyright, 1936, by United Press.

Canton (Thursday), June 18.—Two potent war lords today telegraphed the southwest political council declaring their support of the demand of the South China provinces that the central government in Nanking lead a national war to expel the Japanese army from North China.

The militarists are Marshall Feng Yu-Hsiang, one-time Nanking war minister, and Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, "hero of the Nonni River," who held up Japan's conquest of north Manchuria in 1931 for weeks.

The council announced that Feng's telegram was addressed to Chen Chi-Tang, military head of the Canton region, and the Kwangso Province war lords, Li Tsung-Jen and Pei Tsung-Hsi.

Ma Chan Shan's telegram concluded:

"The whole nation stands by you."

Ma has been in retirement since he was defeated in north Manchuria by the Japanese. Feng, until recently, has been in refuge in the Tai-Shan monastery in Shangtung Province under protection of his former subordinate, Gen. Fu-Chu, the Shantung ruler. Feng still has a considerable military following and might prove a deciding factor in the South's campaign to force Nanking into a war against Japan. His old personal army still is partly intact in areas along the Hankow-Peiping Railway. Ma's troops were scattered after his defeat by the Japanese.

The council also announced that it was receiving telegrams from student organizations throughout China pledging support. The student societies want to expel the Japanese forces and are opposed to the civil war which South China has threatened.

Sanctions

reached a decision regarding recognition of the Italian King's assumption of the title of Emperior of Abyssinia."

Hoare categorically denied current reports that the empire's chief naval base in the Mediterranean will be transferred from Malta to Cyprus.

Sir Samuel's affirmation that Malta will remain the chief Mediterranean naval base, indicated that Anglo-Italian tension is rapidly disappearing. It reached a dangerous height last September when the British fleet steamed into the Mediterranean as a precaution against a possible war-like act by Italy following application of sanctions.

Economic Parleys.

Rome, June 17 (AP).—Conversations to "regulate various Italo-German economic problems" have begun at the Italian foreign office, it was officially announced today.

(The Italo-Ethiopian war caused Italy to swing much closer to Germany as she was resentful over sanctions applied by League members. A political agreement may follow economic ones, informed observers assert.)

Believed Practical.

Geneva, June 17 (AP).—The decision of the British cabinet to lift sanctions from Italy was generally considered in Geneva circles tonight an inevitable practical measure of political wisdom, but a profoundly unfortuate one for the prestige of the League.

Advocates of removing sanctions profess to see in their continuance dangerous political unrest in Europe with Italy probably seeking an alliance with Germany and the division of the Continent into two armed camps.

Opponents of sanctions abolition said such an action would encourage future aggression.

Although the view prevails that any reform of the League will be slow and painful, it was believed likely regional pacts of military assistance for the victim of aggression would develop, since universal military sanctions are held impossible.

Great Britain is expected to make an earnest effort to get Germany back into the League along with negotiations for security pacts to replace the scrapped Locarno Treaty.

France is expected to make similar efforts on the ground that Germany holds a key position in Europe.

Street Fighting Marks Strike In French Port

Marseilles Parade Attacked by Leftists; Algeria Reports Violence.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 17.—Street fighting between Nationalists and Leftists in Marseilles and violence in far-off Algeria darkened the French strike picture tonight.

Several were wounded at Marseilles. Mobile guards intervened when a group of 5,000 striking members of the Leftist People's Front attacked a parade of 3,000 Nationalists on the main street. Many fought with knives.

The center of the town was evacuated by order of authorities. Police and mobile guards patrolled the streets.

In Algeria, officials said agricultural workers led by "foreign agitators" in some sections plundered the countryside. Appeals for reinforcements from barracks in Algeria were granted.

In Paris the Senate quickly voted bills giving workers paid vacations and relieving veterans who are job holders from a reduction in their pensions. Debate on a 40-hour week and collective bargaining measures will be held Thursday.

The bills were hurried through the Chamber of Deputies by Leon Blum, the new Leftist premier, in an apparently successful effort to remove a dangerous strike crisis here.

Leftists, alarmed by a bristling statement by Col. Francois de la Rocque, leader of the Nationalist Veterans' Organization, Croix de Feu, asserted his 700,000 followers were preparing to march on Paris.

De la Rocque challenged the government to disband his group and promised "renovation by Frenchmen of a strong and reconciled France."

A rise in the prices of commodities was noted in Algiers today, wheat nearly doubling.

Stores Closed.

The strikes in North Africa flared as the movement quieted in Paris and northern France saw a stay in strikes launched by workers in many trades.

Algiers department stores closed their doors, granting workers paid vacations lest they occupy the premises. Building, metallurgy, oil and port employes "folded their arms."

The first strike in this country in the ranks of government employes occurred at Lille, where social insurance occupied their offices. The number of those idle in the Metz region reached 18,000 when iron miners walked out.

The ministry of the interior reported there were but 60,000 strikers left in Paris, half of whom were department store employes.

Figures of the Senate finance committee estimate the government's labor bill would add nearly 4,000,000,000 francs (about $264,000,000) to the acknowledged 2,000,000,000-franc budget deficit.

Strike Nears End.

Madrid, June 17 (AP).—A strike of some 50,000 Asturian miners seemed near solution today when a tentative agreement was drafted whereby the employers grant wage increases and pay bonus claims over a period of 10 years. Sale of coal would be regulated by a commission of workers.

A Madrid construction strike involving nearly 100,000 and a tailor strike of nearly 13,000 cutters and fitters continued, but there were no disorders.

Belgians' Demands Met.

Brussels, June 17 (AP).—Premier Paul van Zeeland announced tonight an agreement had been reached giving Belgian strikers satisfaction on four principal points in their demands.

The four points were a "minimum wage, paid vacations, government guarantees of trade union liberties, and a 40-hour week."

While delegates undertook to recommend these terms to their respective labor associations the Brussels Federation of Trades Unions decided to ignore the communique and urged Brussels workers to join in the strikes.

The premier's announcement followed a seven-hour conference between delegates from employers and workers. The minimum wage specifically calls for from 30 to 32 francs (about $1.97) per day, according to the respective trades.

The conference was held as armored cars and baton-armed police went into action to quell strike tumult today.

The armored cars, wheeling through the streets of citadel-like Liege, broke up street-corner crowds, defying an order which forbids more than three persons to congregate.

Court Upholds 2 of Canada's Reform Laws

2 Other 'New Deal' Acts Ruled Unconstitutional by High Tribunal.

By the United Press.

Ottawa, Ont., June 17.—Canada's "New Deal" won and lost today in a momentous decision by the Dominion Supreme Court, the highest tribunal in the land.

Of eight reform laws enacted by the government of Premier Bennett, two were found constitutional and a third was held to be partly valid. Two acts were ruled unconstitutional. On the other three laws the court was evenly divided—three to three—resulting in no decision.

Amendments to the criminal code to prohibit unfair business practices, such as discriminatory discounts, were upheld, four to two. The farmers' credit act was upheld in virtually all sections by unanimous decision. The Dominion trade and industry commission act, organizing a commission to supervise business and insist on fair trade practices, was upheld in part, but some sections were voided.

Employment Act Invalid.

The employment and social insurance acts and the Dominion marketing act were declared unconstitutional. The first provided insurance for unemployed, based on contributions of employes, industry and government, and a series of employment bureaus all over Canada.

The minimum wage act, the 48-hour week act and the law for one day of rest in seven, all designed to improve labor conditions, were bunched in one reference. On these three acts the court split evenly in tie verdicts.

In each case, it was announced, there will be an appeal to the Privy Council in London. The Canadian government will appeal in those cases where its jurisdiction was not upheld, and the provinces will take similar action where they consider their jurisdiction was invaded by decisions upholding the central government.

The acts that were declared unconstitutional were invalidated solely on the ground that they came within the legislative competence of the provinces, not the national parliament.

Immediate Effect.

The decisions are expected to have little immediate political effect. Premier MacKenzie King's bill for revision of the Canadian constitution was defeated in the Senate last week. If the privy council concurs with the court's decisions, it is expected that Premier King will renew his attempt to revise the constitution.

Much of the reform legislation was based in principle on legislation sponsored and enacted by the Roosevelt administration in the United States, later invalidated by the United States Supreme Court. But, unlike the action of the United States Supreme Court, the decisions of the Canadian Supreme Court are not final, since supreme authority rests with the Privy Council in London.

Pay Cut Threatens Frederick Schools

Frederick, Md., June 17 (AP).—The county commissioners today apparently faced the alternative of increasing the tax rate or reducing the salaries of school teachers during the last four months of this year.

A group of about 25 teachers from various sections of the county appeared before the board yesterday to ask that salaries be maintained. They said that Frederick now pays the salaries allowed by the State and that only recently was the salary restored to the 1933 level, before a 10 per cent cut was imposed.

The General Assembly reduced the amount allowed the counties for schools, and the cut in Frederick's allowance amounts to about $16,000. The commissioners said they have promised to include in the budget an additional $14,565 for new school buildings at Point of Rocks and Catoctin Furnace. To make up the reduced State allowance for ten years and to provide the new buildings, they said, would increase the tax rate by 8 or 9 cents.

BEST UNDER the SUN

Sarthe and Sarthe-St.Croix

Best when lying in charred oak casks on the sunny shores of the sleepy Caribbean—best under our own summer sun in a tall glass with clinking cubes of ice.

Get under the sun with Rhum Sarthe in a cool clinking Collins. Rhum Sarthe makes a stimulating highball, too, and an old-fashioned like bonded whiskey.

For a Daiquiri or the usual rum cocktail insist upon Sarthe-St. Croix. It, too, has that under-the-sun distinctive flavor from the Caribbean.

Any rum aged and mellowed under tropical suns has the punch and character that discriminating drinkers look for.

SARTHE-ST. CROIX is a superior blend of Sarthe from Haiti and St. Croix rum from the Virgin Islands.

One hundred million miles of air travel! Equal to four thousand times around the earth! The figures are amazing but the fact is clear . . . United Air Lines has written one of the thrilling pages of transportation history.

This international air line record embodies early pioneering, and development to world leadership. It stands as a tribute to courageous imagination, sound operation . . . and fine gasoline. United flew every mile with Stanavo . . . the brand of aviation gasoline made by the makers of Essolene. For 10 years this gasoline has fully met United's requirements for reliability, power and mileage.

Millions of motorists use Essolene for the same reasons. Essolene is the product of Esso Marketers, the world's leading oil organization. Get Essolene today and see how much better performance you get from your car.

FORD V-8

FIRST AGAIN IN MAY!

FIRST 5 MONTHS, 1936

Washington's favorite motor car in 1935 continues to be the District's choice this year. Month after month the demand is for the Ford V-8—for the performance that has put more than 3,000,000 Ford V-8s on the highways of the world.

What is the reason for this popularity that keeps Ford ahead of the field? V-8 engine power, speed, and smoothness! Centerpoise riding comfort! Safer body and chassis construction! Sure-action, super-safety, mechanical brakes and easier handling! The many extra "luxury car" features and appointments that cost you nothing extra! It is not one, but a combination of all these things—plus the fact that maintenance and repair costs of today's Ford V-8 are exceptionally low.

Your Ford Dealer invites you to spend 10 minutes behind the wheel of a Ford V-8 and learn these reasons for yourself.

Varied Element In Diet Is Aid To Digestion

Proteins, Minerals and Small Amount of Sweets Needed.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

In yesterday's article we wasted a lot of valuable space in inconsequential chatter concluding with a few general statements on food.

The time never will come when we can indulge in a full meal by swallowing a capsule or two—regardless of what the chemists prophesy. The alimentary tract would atrophy and the distance from the mouth to the rectum under such circumstances would not be much more than a few inches. In fact, evolution would develop a new race. The 20-odd feet of intestinal tube, however, are needed to digest the foods that we now eat—those provided by nature.

Fundamentally we consider water as food, as it is a chemical that takes part in every step of digestion. A goodly portion of our solid food is water. Without drinking a drop we receive from 15 to 25 ounces with our regular meals. There is nothing particularly bad about it; on the contrary, a swallow or two of water a dozen times during the course of a meal is decidedly advantageous. We must dilute our food slightly in order that it may be mixed properly with the normal gastric juice of the stomach.

Minerals Vital Need.

Some of us forget that we need minerals. In fact, these elements are of greater importance than are calories. We peel fruit and hull grains so as to make them more palatable and thus throw away quantities of iron, calcium and phosphorus. When we cook food in water we leech out the mineral water and all too often discard it. We say that milk is good only for babies, failing to realize that it is one of the principal sources of calcium for the adult. Iron is found in most red, green and yellow foods—namely, red meat, liver, yolk of eggs, carrots, etc. Phosphorus is needed for the growth of cells, the maintenance of the firm bony skeleton and the functioning of all glands. To keep level our supply of phosphorus we require eggs, milk, whole grains, beans, etc.

Proteins—meat, eggs, fish, cheese, beans, peas, etc.—we must have in order to replenish muscle waste. Those of animal origin are of higher life giving value. Meat and fish are particularly gratifying to the appetite. If one can obtain animal protein the digestive tract is saved considerable work as a far greater quantity of nitrogenous food of plant origin will be demanded. In addition, meat and eggs greatly stimulate the production of gastric juice and move rather slowly through the intestinal tract thus insuring the maximum of absorption. Some writers have indicated that high protein diets are harmful. As far as can be determined, no reliance need be placed upon this doctrine. Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, attributes the longevity of the Eskimos to their exclusive meat diet. These tribes exhibit neither kidney disease nor high blood pressure in as large a percentage as dwellers in the North Temperate Zone.

Starch, Sugars Are "Fuel."

The body utilizes starches and sugars more easily than other sorts of food. They are relatively cheap, and if in normal amount will furnish energy that otherwise would require the burning of protein. In other words they are protein savers. Wheat (bread), after all, is our best and most economical food because of its richness in carbonhydrate and protein. Furthermore, it is reasonably stable and but little care is necessary to keep it in edible form. Wheat, however, must be supplemented with other materials because it lacks minerals and vitamins, and its protein cannot replace that derived from meat.

All carbohydrates are transformed by digestion into glucose (sugar). If glucose or sugar in any form is used, it is burned with but little digestive effort. Unfortunately we can generate a large amount of energy from sweets, and many of our cases of obesity are due, not so much to overeating, as to the disproportion of sugars in the diet. Furthermore, carbohydrates are likely to undergo fermentation yielding carbon dioxide and water, without the production of the normal amount of energy.

Black and White Vogue Returns

The black and white sheer ensemble above is the last word in midsummer chic. The loose swung jacket has a white tuxedo collar finished with white shoulder flowers. The black patent leather belt and black velvet beret emphasize the present trend for combining dull and shiny surfaces in the black mode. For information call The Post Fashion Editor, National 4200, Branch 323.

Black and White Decreed Smartest Midseason Dress

If you wan to be smart, slim and cool-looking, the new sheers in black with white accents are fashion's prescription for midseason attire. Following the Paris decree, "there is nothing smarter than black," which has also been taken up by those criterions of style—the Hollywood cinema stars—Washington women this summer have adopted the black with white theme.

At this time of the year, black is particularly welcome—as a delightful deviation from bright clothes. And, with traveling and summer commuting again part of the American scene, black plays a very important role in the fashion picture. For town wear, the sleek and sophisticated black sheer ensemble may gadabout from morning until night with complete assurance.

Accessories lend eternal variations to the black and white sheer. White gloves and handbag and either black patent or black suede shoes are effective with these black summer outfits. A black patent-leather handbag to match belt and shoes may be substituted for the white one.

Pompadour Returns.

The pompadour coiffure, another relic of the 90's, is reported having a vogue in Paris. First tried out with evening clothes it is now appearing with sports costume.

College Graduates Called Immature

"Intellect but not intelligence" is responsible for the fact so many college graduates are unable to hold jobs, in the belief of Dr. Andrew J. E. Akelaitis, of the University of Rochester.

"College graduates can discourse very learnedly and dispassionately about the forms of government of Plato or the parallelistic doctrine of Spinoza," he said recently. "But when they have to decide some everyday problem they become flustered and often leave it unsettled, complaining of a headache.

Women Urged To Show Their Power at Polls

Feminist Leader Bewails 'Sob Campaigns' but Is Still Optimistic.

WOMAN'S voice in public life and in politics will be a weak one until women unite to show a large voting strength. "Getting out the vote" for the coming election is therefore the immediate and most tangible task before informed feminine workers today, in the opinion of Eudora Ramsay Richardson, widely known writer and feminist, of Richmond, Va.

In Washington recently to address the District of Columbia Business and Professional Women's Club, Mrs. Richardson talked on some of the ideas she has elaborated in her forthcoming book, "The Influence of Men—Incurable," to be published in the fall by the same company that brought out John Erskine's controversial volume, "The Influence of Women—And Its Cure."

Still Optimistic.

"In recent years women have been made victims of 'sob campaigns' turning on the man-made theory that if all wives were forced back to the home the problem of unemployment would be solved," she said. "As a result of this and the plight of German and Italian women, we have lost much of what we gained through bitter campaigns for equal rights. Proof of our slipping strength lies in the fact that in 1932 there were 88 feminine delegates to the Republican National Convention. This year there were 58. I am sure the Democratic National Convention will likewise have fewer than 208 women delegates—the total for its 1932 convention."

Yet Mrs. Richardson is optimistic about the future of women and feels confident that, "Many are now waking up to the fact that our rights and privileges are being taken away. I think we will regain all ground we have lost and eventually raise our status to a level with men's; but we will have to change our tactics. We will have to be militant inside and feminine, compromising and comradely outside. We must strengthen our force through effective women speakers and workers who know the technique for participating in the work of party organizations. We must use all the established methods of political parties—that is, all those not at variance with high principles, and we must unite to achieve in party groups equal representation with men until there is a reasonable number of highly qualified women in elective and appointive offices. We can never do this until the majority of women show enough interest in good government and in the status of their sex to vote."

Lauds Women's Clubs.

As the qualifications necessary for effective participation in politcis, Mrs. Richardson mentioned diplomacy, clear thinking, a broad grasp of current questions, the ability to remain impersonal and non-partisan and skill at expressing one's ideas in public.

"The average woman on the platform," she said, "is better than the average man because she never attempts to talk in public without being prepared. Recently listening over the radio, I was much impressed with the women speakers who seconded Gov. Landon's nomination. Each had something definite to say, and said it without resorting to the trite terms and flowery phrases that characterized the men's speeches. It was obvious the latter got more applause because their comments obviously played to the gallery."

The woman's club is an excellent practicing ground for the potential feminine political speaker, Mrs. Richardson believes. "The woman who learns to express herself effectively before her own group can do as much before any other gathering," she said, "but this is not the only advantage to be gained in the woman's club. What women have accomplished thus far has been largely the result of feminine mass movements."

In view of this she feels many recent indictments of leisure-class women who organize for "causes" have been unjust. "To condemn all women's clubs is both narrow and unnecessary," she said. "Many of them have worked steadily toward worthy and well-defined goals, and have helped not only women but the country as a whole." She called particular attention to the work of the American Association of University Women ("which seeks to lift standards of education for women and to make a place for educated women in public life"); the League of Women Voters ("certainly not concerned with pink teas and nut-cups, but with training women in citizenship"); the National Woman's Party ("which has been continuously concerned with gaining equal rights for women") and the Business and Profesional Women's Clubs ("which has as their goal the safeguarding of the occupational status of women").

Praises Feminine Spellbinders

EUDORA RAMSAY RICHARDSON says the average woman public speaker surpasses the average man on the platform because she never approaches it unprepared and rarely resorts to the trite terms and flowery phrases that characterized the old-fashioned orator.

Child Learns Honesty From Parents' Acts

Precepts of Little Value If Not Backed by Strict Adult Example.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

Adults are apt in the course of business or pleasure occasionally to leave the strict paths of honesty. When, however, the children do the same, the parents fail to see the flattery of the imitation and complain bitterly of the deceitful behavior of the young. Father may not lean over backwards when he turns in his income tax blank, mother may rejoice over something smuggled through the customs, both parents may break road rules every day.

When Tommy, however, robs the cooky jar or the candy box, or lies his way out of a scrape, no one considers it funny or smart, and he is probably severely punished or scolded. How is he to reconcile the dishonesty of grownups with the rules they lay down and the maxims they teach? Why must he be honest when they openly evade the the very laws which they, presumably, have made for the protection of the public? The answer is, "Don't get caught."

To teach honesty to children, it is essential that the teacher himself be strictly honest. No amount of precept is of any use unless the example be there first. The child who is brought up in a home where truth and honesty are respected and practiced may go through a phase of lying and petty theft, but is pretty sure to ougrow it and end up trustworthy.

Nothing can be worse for a child, however, than for parents to be sharp in business, lax about the ethics of everyday occurrences such as evading the police, avoiding taxes, cheating about fares, and then blame and punish the youngster for peccadillos of the same kind. In such a case resentment is bred in the child and he is apt to grow worse rather than better, taking good care not to be found out.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Has Washington Any Constructive Vacation Time Projects for Girls of Grammar School Age?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a boy, 12, and a daughter between 9 and 10. During the winter they are occupied and contented and until I moved to my present location last summer, they had no real difficulty in keeping happily occupied playing with the children around the neighborhood. In this neighborhood there are a great many children but their main object in life seems to be out-shrieking each other and seeing who can get in the hardest blows, kicks and what-not. The other diversion is an amazing amount of gossip for children.

* * * *

Last year I solved my son's difficulty by getting him a membership at the Y. M. C. A. and letting him go all day every day of the summer. He learned a great deal, had pleasant companionship and proper supervision. He will do the same thing this summer.

But what to do about my daughter is the problem. She has been worrying for the past few weeks about what to do when she is no longer in school. At Easter-time she was miserable the whole week. If I were at home during the day I could probably work out something, but being employed makes it difficult. If I could afford a camp that would also solve the problem very well, but I cannot do so.

* * * *

Do you know of anything in Washington for little girls that would be similar to the Y. M. C. A. project for boys? If there was something that would not be too expensive for modest means, that would provide her with an interest in life and some helpful way of occupying her time, it would mean a great deal to her and me. Your suggestions will be very much appreciated. Very sincerely yours,

PUZZLED MOTHER.

'Ask These Persons.

DEAR PUZZLED MOTHER: Miss Hettie Anderson, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest, MEtropolitan 2102, or Miss Mabel Cook, Girl Reserves' secretary, at the same address, will be happy to take your problem under advisement and help you get your daughter enrolled in a suitable vacation project I discussed your appeal with Miss Anderson this morning, and we agreed it would be best for you to get in direct touch with her She will need a little time, she said, to make inquiry into what projects exist for girls of your daughter's age; and will make every effort to see that the right project is found It was she who suggested Miss Cook might prove your best adviser, and she indicated a conference between the three of you might be the best first step to take. I suggest you telephone Miss Anderson, using my name as an introduction, and ask for an appointment. She is expecting to hear from you. M. H.

'Advice to 'Mary Anna.'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please tell "Mary Anna," the wife whose letter was published in your column of June 12, not to walk out of her comfortable home and leave it to her brute of a husband, who visits such vile verbal abuse on her unoffending head. If anyone must leave, let him leave. Anyone who has been through a similar situation—and I have been—can see what his little game is. He is trying to put her in wrong and justify himself in bringing some designing little huzzy into the home to take her place after she has gone. I'll wager some woman is backing him up in his ugly treatment of his wife: some woman who is hoping to get a home for herself on the no payment plan. If he forces a divorce, let him bear the brunt of the action and the expense.

* * * *

Attention: "Patricia."

NOTE TO PATRICIA S.: Under date of May 29 you wrote me quite a long letter, stating a personal problem in detail and asking my advice. In conclusion you said: "I wish you would answer me, but you won't print it, will you, for various reasons." If you do not wish either your letter or my advice to be printed, it will be necessary for you to give your name and address if you wish a confidential reply. I believe the better approach, however, would be a confidential personal interview, I shall be glad to talk with you any afternoon if you will call in advance and make a definite appointment. M. H.

And Call It Accident

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

SYNOPSIS.

Though her childhood sweetheart, faithful George Dwight, pleads with her to come home to America and marry him, Ruth Starling insists on staying in London and using her recently inherited wealth to go on the stage. Her London lawyer, Mr. Singleton, and Mrs. Singleton, arrange for Ruth and George to have dinner with Capt. Philip Trefane and his wife, Iris. Capt. Trefane is interested in theatricals, though short of capital. His aunt, the Marchioness of Cicester, is loaning the Trefanes her old Cornwall castle for the summer and Mr. Singleton suggests they might take Ruth as a paying guest, though he warns her to leave financial arrangements in his hands. Trefane arranges to have Ruth's life insured in his favor. Iris takes Ruth to a fortune teller who tells her to trust in the Trefanes and also gives her a veiled warning.

CHAPTER EIGHT.

MRS. SHIPTON went and pulled down the blinds of her two windows, and then, sitting down, she shut her eyes for a few moments.

At last she opened them wide, and cupping her face with her two hands, began staring intently into the glass ball.

Then in a low, monotonous voice she began: "I see you on a horse; a man is holding you in front of him; you're in a river in flood. The horse is struggling desperately in the water. Now you are being carried away and nearly drowned."

She waited a moment: "You are in a cabin on a big ship. The porthole is partly open, and suddenly a big wave of sea-water rushes in."

She looked fixedly across the table into Ruth Starling's face.

"Yes! Yes! It's all true!" cried the girl excitedly. "It all happened just as you saw in the crystal!"

Mrs. Shipton said in a low tense voice: "Beware of water. Not only salt water, but spring water, too. Every man and every woman has to die some day. It may be your fate to be drowned. But that will be better than being burnt to death, for I see danger from fire, too, in my crystal."

Ruth suddenly remembered that someone had once said to her that of course there is a great deal of thought-reading in what fortune-tellers tell those who consult them. How else account for that vision of herself as a child rescued from the swirling waters of a river in flood? As also the frightening incident on the great liner when in the midst of a storm a lot of sea water had rushed in through the porthole? And once she had been imprisoned in an automobile which had caught fire. George Dwight had rescued her, and he had his hands burnt—while she had escaped with only a singed fur coat. It had been an awful experience, and one to which neither ever referred.

Two Men in Her Life.

"There are two men in your life, the one is dark and the other is fair," went on Mrs. Shipton.

She was not gazing now, into the crystal. She was staring straight before her. "You haven't got to worry about the dark man, I reckon though he's always thinking of you, and will always be there. It's the fair man you've got to beware of. I see him hating you, for all you were so generous to him, and he'll do you a mischief if he can."

She waited for what seemed to the girl a long time.

Ruth laughed, a slightly hysterical laugh. She knew who the dark man was. It would have been strange indeed if any thought reader hadn't picked him out. No one could look into her mind and not find George Dwight there. As to the fair man who would do her an injury if he could, she knew him for an actor who had played opposite her in New York, and who had been furious at the failure of their play. He had behaved both with lack of good feeling and of chivalry, yet when they had finally parted she had given him, much against the advice of those about her, $5,000, because she believed that, all unwittingly, she had injured him in a professional sense.

"Can't you tell me something about the future?"

A New Entanglement.

"Yes, for there is another man coming into your life. He wears something on his head—why, it's a crown!"

At that Ruth smiled broadly.

"There's nothing to laugh at, for you're a player, aren't you? I think you are his player queen, and he is your player king. Am I right?"

"I expect you are right," said Ruth, and the smile faded from her face. "I am an actress."

"You'll play a part in his life, and he'll play a part in yours. You'll like him, too. But not as well as he will like you."

'Can you tell me anything about my life as an actress?" Before Mrs. Shipton could answer she went on, frankly, "the real reason I have come to England is that I may act here, in London. I do so want to know if the play I'm putting on in October will be a success."

Jane Shipton opened her mouth. Then she shut it again. "I can't see as far as that. The power is leaving me," she muttered. "But I see eyes—eyes—eyes—" she stopped.

"Whose eyes?" asked Ruth.

Mrs. Shipton sighed. "The bright eyes of danger," she muttered.

Leaning forward, again she gazed into the crystal ball. Then she shook her head. "I'm getting tired, tired, tired——"

Ruth opened her bag and took out a notecase. But as she took out a little wad of one-pound notes, the fortune-teller exclaimed: "I don't want you to pay me anything, for I don't feel I've earned any fee." As words of protest rose to Ruth's lips: "I mean that—I really do!" she said firmly. "Come again soon, and I'll give you a real sitting. Come next Thursday, and I'll try and have something worked out about the future for you by then."

"I can't come on Thursday," said the girl, "for I'm leaving London on that day——"

A Final Warning.

There came an impatient knock on the locked door giving on to the landing outside the waiting room.

"Are you going away with her?" asked the soothsayer in a low voice.

"Yes, I am to spend five weeks in a beautiful old castle in Cornwall."

"Don't tell Mrs. Trefane anything of what I saw in the crystal. Just say what I told you was coming in the way of success, and roses, roses, all the way."

"Mayn't I tell her how you saw the things that had happened to me when I was a child—the river in flood, and in the boat coming over?" She hesitated, "And how you saw I had once been nearly burnt to death?"

"It's best never to repeat what's been seen in a crystal," said Mrs. Shipton, tremulously. "Oh, and I want you to remember that the moon is your friend, but be careful when she's just a slip in the sky. Is that clear?"

Without waiting for an answer, she went on and, unlocking the door, let Iris Trefane in. When her two clients had left her, and she could still hear them talking and laughing on the stairs, she let herself fall into a chair. Filled with terror and amazement she groaned aloud, for what she had seen in both Ruth Starling's hands had been the murder sign.

Two Arriving From Egypt For Wedding

Miss Stevens' Aunt, Uncle Are Expected to Reach Capital Today.

Brother of C. P. L. Greyer to Act as His Best Man at Ceremony.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Guests from Alexandria, Va., are not unusual at Washington weddings, but it is seldom they come from Alexandria, Egypt, to be present at a ceremony here.

Miss Martha McClelland Stevens, daughter of Mrs. John Leo Coontz, whose marriage to Mr. Chrales Peyton Lewis Greyer, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Greyer, of Morgantown, N. C., will take place tomorrow, will have the distinction, however, of having her uncle and aunt, Judge and Mrs. R. L. Henry, here from the Egyptian city for the wedding. They will arrive in Washington today, to be guests for a few days before continuing a tour of the United States. They have made their home in Egypt since 1924, when Judge Henry was appointed judge of the Mixed Court at Alexandria.

Miss Stevens will be married at 5:30 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Her wedding reception also will be in the nature of a farewell for her matron of honor, Mrs. Lynn Woodworth, and Mr. Woodworth, one of the ushers, who will leave immediately afterward for New York, to sail aboard the Champlain Saturday noon for Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth go to France each summer, where they are associated with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ross MacJannet, distinguished educators, in conducting a boys' and a girls' camp in the French Alps. Mr. and Mrs. MacJannet were their guests here a few months ago and were honored at several affairs during their stay in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth expect to remain in France until September 13.

In addition to Mrs. Woodworth, Miss Stevens will have as her attendants, Miss Annita Ker and Miss Elizabeth Springer. The best man is to be Mr. Joseph Warren Greyer, of Morganton, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers, Mr. Woodworth, Mr. Alvan Read Henry, of New Haven, Conn.; Mr. Alex Mull, of Morganton, and Mr. William Taylor Page, jr.

After a motor trip, Mr. Greyer and his bride will return to Washington to live.

Other guests from out of town who will be present at the wedding will include the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Greyer; Mrs. Curtis Chappelier and Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Chappelier, of Delaplane, Va.; Mrs. Henry Schneider, Mrs. Alvan C. Read and Mrs. John Beall, of New York, and Mr. Amasa McClelland Henry, of Oxford, England.

Mrs. Jones Wed To Dr. Bayne

Former Edith Jenkins Is Married in Church of the Covenant.

Mrs. James Elwood Jones was married yesterday to Dr. J. Breckinridge Bayne in the Church of the Covenant. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCarthy.

Mrs. Bayne wore a traveling costume of blue sheer crepe with a matching hat. After the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Bayne left for a motor trip to New York and New England. They plan to spend the summer traveling and will return to Washington in the fall.

Mrs. Bayne was Miss Edith Jenkins before her marriage to Mr. James Elwood Jones. Mr. Jones died in 1932. She has a son, Mr. James E. Jones, jr.

Miss Nourse Plans Study Of Japanese

Sister of Mrs. Hobart to Spend 12 Months in Orient.

Will Write Companion Volume to Her History of China.

By Dudley Harmon.

First-hand observation of life in Japan, research work at the University of Tokyo and visits to historic shrines of Korea and Manchukuo, will occupy Miss Mary Nourse during the 12 months she is allowing herself for a new historical work on the Orient. It will be a history of Japan, a companion volume to "The Four Hundred Million," her history of China, published a year ago.

She gathered material for her first book while she was a professor at Ginling College, in China. She now is professor of history at Mount Vernon Seminary and is taking sabbatical leave to write her book on Japan. "The Four Hundred Million" was translated into French last winter and now is to be translated into German.

Miss Nourse is a sister of Alice Tisdale Hobart, whose novel, "Oil For the Lamps of China," was not only a best seller, but also was later made into the successful film of the same name. Mrs. Hobart, whose first novel was based on her life in China, where her husband was executive for an oil company, now lives in Washington and has just completed another book, to be published in the fall. She and Mr. Hobart will leave the Capital the first of September to reside in California.

Mrs. Hobart recently entertained at a small farewell tea in honor of her sister at her apartment in Sedgwick road.

Their brother, Mr. Edwin G. Nourse, with whom Miss Nourse is staying until she leaves, is director of the Institute of Economics of Brookings Institution. She will leave July 3 for Portland, Oreg., to sail for Japan, going West from Chicago on one of the new streamline trains, which makes the journey to the Coast in 39 hours.

The appointment of The Netherlands Minister to Belgium, Jonkheer Tfarda van Starkenbergh Stockouwer, as Governor General of the Dutch East Indies is of interest here because his wife is the former Christine Marburg, of Baltimore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Marburg.

At the time her father was in the diplomatic service of his country and Minister to Belgium in the Taft Administration, Miss Marburg frequently was a guest at the White House and other places in Washington.

Mme. Stockouwer and her children are on their way to this country and will spend the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Marburg at their summer home in Bar Harbor. They will return to Belgium in August to accompany the Minister to his new post.

The latest recruits to art are the Military Attache of the British Embassy, Col. F. Maurice Day, and Mrs. Day, who often take groups of friends to some picturesque spot near Washington for picnic luncheon and an afternoon of sketching and painting. Last winter Col. and Mrs. Day were students at a life class in a Washington art school. The departure of Col. Day from his post at the British Embassy is a matter of regret to his many friends.

Mrs. Day, the former Miss Eleanor C. Carroll, of Washington, was one of the most beautiful debutantes the season she came out, and she still maintains that reputation for beauty.

The Days also have a penchant for gardening. Some years ago they moved into the quaint house in Georgetown formerly occupied by Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland. The Senator had established an unusually lovely garden, which the Days brought to even finer perfection of horticultural beauty. Late Col. and Mrs. Day moved to a house in Primrose lane, Chevy Chase, Md.

Washingtonians who may recall meeting the late French Ambassador Jules Jusserand on his morning walks through Rock Creek Park and along Piney Branch will recognize the appropriateness of the plan of placing a bench in his memory near the bird fountain given by him and Mme. Jusserand before he left his post here.

The bench, a gift of the Jusserand Memorial Committee, was designed by Joseph Freelander, New York architect.

Mr. Walter Bird, Miss Holliman To Wed Tonight

Dr. and Mrs. Bird and Their Daughter in Savannah for Ceremony.

The Rev. Dr. Andrew Reid, pastor of Pilgrim's Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Bird and their daughter, Miss Imogene Bird, are in Savannah, Ga., for the marriage tonight of the Birds' son, Mr. Walter Moore Bird. Mr. Bird will wed Miss Nina Way Holliman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen J. Holliman, of Savannah, in a ceremony to take place at Midway Church, Liberty County, Ga., at 6 o'clock.

Miss Imogene Bird recently returned from Baldwin College, in Staunton, Va., where she was graduated last week with a bachelor of arts degree.

She was a high honor student, a member of the honor society, a house president, member of the student council, secretary of the President's Forum, president of the Modern Language Club and president of the French Club. She had been president of her class and freshman representative on the annual staff. In her junior year she was assistant editor of the annual. Miss Bird had as her guests at commencement her parents and her brother and Mrs. Walter W. Moore, of Richmond, Va.

The senior gift of the college was a portrait by Bjorn Egel of the former dean, Miss Elizabeth Pfohl, whose marriage to Mr. Edmund Douglas Campbell took place Tuesday in Winston-Salem, N. C. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will make their home in Cherrydale, Va. At the commencement exercises it was announced that the new dean would be Dr. Elizabeth Hoon.

Miss Mary Delia Nichols, of Washington, also received an A. B. degree from Mary Baldwin. She was the winner of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan award for service to the college. Miss Nichols was president of the Student Government Association and chairman of the President's Forum. For four years she has held important positions on the newspaper staff and as a junior was president of her class.

Lose Big Hips Fat Stomachs Double Chins

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Banding and Rolling Exercises.

There is no mystery about this method. Doctors have been prescribing it for years. It is based on a scientific discovery of the medical profession that excess fat in many cases is caused by a little gland that does not work well.

Every drop of our blood goes through this tiny gland sixteen times a day. It produces about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours. The action of this fluid on the blood is much the same as the action a good draft has on the burning of coal in a furnace. It turns on the "draft" that increases the speed with which food and fatty tissues "burn up".

If this gland doesn't pour out about one and one-half drops of its vital fluid a day, many people take on fat.

Doctors find a simple easy way to remedy this condition is to feed this gland the substance it lacks. Then, many people get rid of the excess flesh that swells out their figures in ugly bumps and lumps.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method so generally used by modern doctors. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is given in every package so you know what you're taking.

For 28 years millions of fat people have found Marmola Prescription Tablets effective for the reduction of ugly fat. Don't take chances with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Get a box of Marmola from your druggist today.

Reserve Board Notes Marked Business Gain

Increase Exceeds Record of Previous 4 Years in 5-Month Period.

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported last night that business "taken as a whole" increased more during the first five months this year than in the corresponding period of any of the four preceding years.

Many types of business activity were at the highest levels since early 1930, the board added in its monthly bulletin.

"The most marked increases in production during the past year, as in other recent years," the board said, "have been in the durable goods industry. Output of durable goods, however, is still far below pre-depression levels, owing largely to the lag of recovery in construction activity."

The board noted that in the past year there has been an increase in construction, reflecting larger expenditures for residential, industrial and commercial building as well as increased outlays for publicly financed projects.

Increased output has been accompanied by a growth in the number of persons employed and, reflecting principally an increase in the average number of hours worked, by a somewhat larger pay roll, the board reported. However, it said unemployment has remained large and there has been relatively little change in the total number of persons on relief or employed on works projects financed by public funds.

Agricultural income, which had increased considerably in the last three years, has shown a further growth this year, the board said, adding this reflected larger income from the sale of farm products, offset in part by a decline in governmental rental and benefit payments.

Stocks of cotton were reported to have been reduced during the last four years, but are still at a relatively high level.

Blanton

Representative Young (Democrat), of Ohio:

"I'm absolutely against any procedure of that sort."

Text of Statement.

The text of Blanton's statement follows:

"Authority duly designated by the Federation of Citizens Associations to represent such federation on local school matters here in Washington, earnestly requested that such a questionnaire be submitted to the officers and teachers. It was submitted under the belief that the fathers and mothers of Washington wanted it done.

"The contention was made that since it is the money of the fathers and mothers of Washington, and of the Government, that pays the salaries of the officers and teachers, and pays the expenses of the Board of Education, that such fathers and mothers have the right to know whether or not their children are being taught by teachers who believe in communism, and believe in indoctrinating it, and who do not believe there is a God, and who do not believe in some form of religion.

"The contention was made that any teacher who does not believe there is a God, and who does not believe in some form of religion, but who believes in communism, had no right to teach in the schools of Washington without letting the parents of their pupils know about it.

"There was no attempt whatsoever to find out their religious belief, but merely whether they believed in some form of religion.

Right of Appeal Conceded.

"We felt that since our sub-committee passed upon all school matvided in our bill all appropriations ters appropriated for, and profor officers and teachers of the local schools, that the fathers and mothers of Washington, through their duly delegated authority, had the inherent right to appeal to us, and to request that we submit such a questionnaire.

"While we were assured that the great majority of the splendid men and women who serve the schools here, without hesitation, would gladly, willingly, and promptly furnish the information requested, which many have done, that we would find that the school board would do everything within its power to interfere, that it would try to prevent us from getting a list of the teachers, that it would contend that Congress had no authority over either the board or the teachers, and that it would try to influence the teachers not to give Congress any informaion.

"We did not expect Mr. Marcantonio, Mr. Scott or any of the others who have been working overtime in attempts to repeal the law that stops communism from being indoctrinated in the public schools to approve our getting this information for the fathers and mothers of Washington. But even without their approval or help we will get the information either now or later. We are not going to allow a few radical officers and teachers ruin our local schools with communism, when practically all of the officers and teachers do not approve of it."

Eclipse Broadcast Abandoned; Scientists in Russia Too Busy

National Geographic Society Announces Expedition in U. S. S. R. Cannot Fulfill Radio Plans, but Effort Will Be Made to Inform U. S.

The National Geographic Society yesterday announced it had abandoned its effort to broadcast to the United States the story of the sun's total eclipse from Kustanai, U. S. S. R., tonight—an eclipse during which the moon, moving between earth and sun, will darken a 50-mile belt of the world's surface from the Mediterranean, across Asia, Turkey and Russia to northern Japan and Alaska.

An attempt will be made tomorrow, however, to inform American listeners of the success of the Geographic-Georgetown University and other astronomical expeditions in photographing and studying the eclipse, officials asserted.

They added that the initial plans had to be given up because the scientists stationed in the far-flung path of the eclipse would perhaps be the busiest persons in the world during the cant 127 seconds during which the sun will disappear completely behind the moon.

The eclipse will be visible at 8:40 a. m. tomorrow at Kustanai, but because of the difference in time, which is 10 hours, the broadcast would have been heard in the United States at 10:40 p. m. today. This same difference in time will enable the scientists to analyze their results and report on the same day the eclipse occurs.

Color Pictures.

Efforts of the Geographic-Georgetown Expedition will be concentrated on obtaining the first true color pictures of the sun's corona. This is the ring of pearly light which will be visible around the moon's disk, resulting from hot gases shooting 350,000 miles into space from the hidden surface of the sun.

The Geogrphic-Georgetown group, led by Dr. Paul A. McNally, yesterday was in readiness to take measurements of the time beginning and end of the eclipse for the Naval Observtory here to provide a check on man-made clocks an dto determine, among other things, whether the universe is running on schedule.

To fcailitate this work special time signals will be broadcast through the observatory from the Arlington Naval Station one hour before an done hour after the eclipse. The observatory has been testing those signals for the last week and a half.

Since radiations of the sun affect such diverse mundane things as human health, the weather and radio transmission, results of the eclipse observations are expected to prove highly valuable not only to scientists, but to people in general.

The postponed broadcast of the findings of the astrotnomers will be on the air tomorrow from 1:45 to 2 p. m.

Finest Instruments.

In the long, black path the eclipse will cast from the Mediterranean northward the astronomers and scientists of many nations were gathered with the finest instruments men have devised last night to study all the solar phenomena that ordinarily they may not observe because of the fierce intensity of the sun's rays.

In virtually the whole path of totality last night cloudy weather was reported, with cold winds and rains in some sections.

For weeks observers have been stationed in remote spots in Russia, Japan and Turkey, testing equipment for the event, which will not be visible in any part of the United States.

At many isolated villages natives who never have witnessed the march of science gathered in their narrow streets and strange-smelling market places and gazed in wide-eyed wonder at the men who came with mechanical eyes and wiered, metal devices.

In an eclipse, the moon's shadow, racing along the earth's surface at the rate of 984 yards a second, brings total darkness for a width varying from 50 to sometimes 100 miles for a period from a minute to more than two.

Tomorrow the eclipse will give the obesrvers little more than a minute of complete absence of the sun's rays. It is for this brief time that they have been waiting, for then they will be able to observe the corona, least understood of the solar features.

Usually Hidden.

The corona ordinarily is hidden by the blinding intensity of the solar rays, and can be studied only trhough the spectroscope. Still another feature of which more ma be learned is the chromosphere This is the dense, intensely heated atmosphere, several thousand miles deep, which surrounds the sun.

From Moscow came the announcement yesterday that the Soviet radio stations had begun a five-day period of tests to determine the effect of the eclipse on short-wave transmission.

Near the Geographic-Georgetown Expedition, at Kustanai, is camped the Harvard-Massachusetts Institute of Technology Expedition, headed by Dr. Donald H. Menzel. This group is on a hill nine miles out of Akbulak, a city of 9,000, where camesl still are the principal means of transportation.

A British Astronomical Society expedition last night was at Omsk.

Butmore than 130 experts, in a score of stations, had made their headquarters in Kamishari, Hokkaido, Japan, a primitive village on the southeastern slope of Mount Shari, whose snow-covered peak rises 5,000 feet above the nearby waters of the Pacific.

Astronomers there included leading observers of Japan and 16 foreigners, including an American, some British, Chinese, Poles and a Czech.

The only independent American observer was Dr. Josef Johnson, of the California Institute of Technology, armed with a four-inch telescope.

Easier Study Plan Attacked By Mrs. Doyle

D. C. School Board President Addresses Women's Class at U. of M.

The tendency to make studies in the schools easier was termed as a "trend in the wrong direction" by Mrs. Margaret Wade Doyle, president of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia, in an address to the rural women attending the annual Short Course at the University of Maryland.

Taking issue with those who advocate the abolition of text books and examinations, Mrs. Doyle outlined some of the new trends in education and referred to some which she considered danger points.

"On the whole," she said, "education is growing more sane; it is more generally teaching the child, rather than the subject. The greatest single trend i a toward individualizing education for the child."

Attending this year's session were six women who have attended all sessions of the course since its instigation 14 years ago. They include Mrs. Bertha Miller, Allegany County; Mrs. J. G. Stevens, Frederick County; Mrs. Notley H. Davis, Mrs. George C. Hilton and Mrs. Alice Kinsey, Montgomery County, and Mrs. W. F. Mulligan, Prince Georges County.

Other speakers at yesterday's session were Dr. Kate Karpeles, medical adviser to women at the university, who spoke on the importance of a feeling of securit; in the home as a factor in child development. She declared that a very large percentage of criminal and insane patients come from homes that are unstable or broken.

She advised motbers not to nag children about misdeeds, but to "deal with naughtiness once and have done with talking about it." She further warned parents about being too sure they are right in dealing with children. "There are often wide differences between what we think is reasonable and necessary and what they regard so," she said.

Dr. Theodore B. Maney, professor of sociology, told the women in his address that there is greater marital stability in the country than in the city "because of fear of criticism from neighbors."

He said that co-operation is lacking among farmers because the farm is a factory within its own bounds and there is not the independence found in industrial centers.

More than 800 women are attending the course this year over which Dr. Harry J. Patterson, deun of the College of Agriculture of the university, is presiding. At a special convocation Friday morning 73 women will be awarded certificates in recognition of their having attended the course for four years.

D. C. Student Honored.

Philip Lansdale Pillsbury, of 2216 Wyoming avenue northwest, son of Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant chief of engineers, U. S. A., was among 18 members of Princeton University's graduating class selected for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national honor society, it was announced yesterday.

Judge Frees Defendant in Number Case

Sale by 'Honor System' With No Receipt, Held Evading the Act.

A technicality through which "numbers" operators may escape conviction was revealed yesterday by a directed verdict of acquittal in a gaming case before District Supreme Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

Justice Letts, instructing a jury to release an accused lottery operator, based his decision on defense evidence showing that no receipt was passed from "numbers" writer to player.

Under a recent ruling by the United States Court of Appeals, holding the game to be a form of lottery, it was pointed out that some sort of "ticket" entitling the player to a return for his investment must be included in the transaction.

Immediately following announcement of the Court of Appeals' decision several months ago, "numbers" operations in the District began to dwindle, police reported. Accused operators were prosecuted and convicted under the lottery laws and authorities were convinced they held the upper hand.

Scheming racketeers, however, apparently spotted the "receipt" clause and the game continued to flourish under an "honor system" policy, police said.

Courts, in lottery law rulings, have recognized a distinction between the original record of a "numbers" bet, which is kept by the operator, and the carbon copy receipt given to the player. The copy, it has been held, is the lottery slip because it entitles the player to a prize, but the original ticket is merely a record of the transaction.

Justice Letts' instruction freed Jesse Edgar Rogers, newspaper vendor at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, indicted after allegedly accepting bets from a police investigator. Defense Attorney Charles Ford contended his client gave no receipt for the bet and a notation of the transaction allegedly found in Rogers' pocket did not entitle the bettor to a chance of winning a lottery.

The Government argued that marked money was found on the defendant's person when he was arrested, but admitted that no receipt was passed. On the basis of this, Ford successfully moved for a directed verdict.

Many local gamblers have adopted the "no receipt" method in order to evade prosecution, Lieut. George M. Little, police vice squad commander, said yesterday.

"I am greatly disappointed in the court's action," Little declared. "We were sailing along very smoothly when this setback came. Now we are right back where we started. The racket may thrive—and there is nothing we can do. All the smart racketeers have stopped giving receipts."

Explorers' Supplies Lost as Ship Sinks

The Department of the Interior was notified yesterday that a Geological Survey exploring party en route to interior Alaska lost practically all its scientific equipment when the steamer Klondike, in which they were eraveling, rammed into a rock and sank in the Yukon River.

Boats, motors, provisions, camp equipment, maps, instruments, cameras, film and personal belongings went down with the ship, the report stated.

The party of three left Washington in May to explore the Porcupine region of northeastern Alaska. They were to tsay three months, collecting geological and scientific data from th earea, which is sparsely settled and little known.

Geological Survey Director W. C. Mendenhall, informed of the disaster, said it would be impossible to send other supplies to the scientists before the winter season closes in and that the party would abandon the Porcupine project and confine its activities to more accessible portions of Alaska.

While other students enjoyed the end of school with the usual expressions of exuberance, pupils in the first grade at Francis Scott Key School enjoyed their own efforts at being a circus.

Youth Indicted By Grand Jury In Threat Case

Defendant Is Accused of Attempting to Extort $5,000 in Lettre.

Jesse Miller, 22, of Thurmont, Md., was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of sending a threatening letter through the mails to Mrs. Stephen McKevett Farrand, wife of a Department of Justice attorney.

The Marylander was arrested last week. In the letter to Mrs. Farrand he is alleged to have asked for $5,000 on the threat that he would kill the Farrand's infant son. It is said he confessed having written the note.

The Farrands live at 3011 Gates road, Chevy Chase, Md. Prosecution of Miller will be based on the recent act of Congress, growing out of the Lindbergh case, which made it a felony to send a so-called "kidnaping letter" through the mails.

In another action yesterday the grand jury indicted William B. Tippett, 22, cab driver, on a charge of attacking a 13-year-old girl, whom he allegedly enticed into his cab near Union Station several days ago. The girl was walking about the station when she got into Tippett's cab. She asserted she had been attacked in Southeast Washington and had been brought back to the station, where she met her mother and related a story that resulted in Tippett's arrest. Police said she had picked the suspect out of a "line-up" of six young men.

Claude M. Shaw, Anderson Howie, James J. Naylor, Ellis H. Styles and Hunter W. Satterwhite, assault with a dangerous weapon; Lawrence T. Pratt, assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge; Robert Nalle, carnal knowledge; Hattie Bigginbotham, George Dorsey, Mary G. Parmes, John Davis and Kathryn E. Davis, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; John Albert Boone, Booker Cureton, Charles Williams, Ella Sue Williams, Ernest Davis, Oliver Masters, Cole Briggs, Cadillac Reds, gaming charges; Reuben Rose, narcotic charges; Wilmer B. Tippett, rape, and Jase Miller, extortion.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were Joseph Green, robbery; Victor R. Daly, destroying public records; Robert Williams, grand lareeny; Agrapino DeVera, forgery and uttering; Helen E. Stolaman, assault with a dangerous weapon, and Leroy W. Brent, joy-riding.

Body of Child, 9, Is Found by Uncle

The body of 9-year-old Herman Poe, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Poe, of Washington, was recovered from the Elizabeth River at Norfolk yesterday by his uncle, who dragged the waters. The boy had been missing since Tuesday.

City Coroner C. D. J. MacDonald ruled that the boy's death was a case of accidental drowning. Herman had been living with his aunt, Mrs. R. F. Conklin, in Norfolk. The body was recovered by Samuel C. Lampkin. The boy's mother and father left last night for Norfolk.

Pupils Mark End of Classes With Own Home-Made Circus

By Virginia Lee Warren.

Tigers switched their tails furiously, a lion grunted and a giraffe stretched his neck out of shape yesterday, all in celebration of the last day of school. While other pupils showed their appreciation of the close of the term by merely throwing their books into the air or making undignified gestures in the general direction of the buildings, the first grade youngsters of the Francis Scott Key School gave a circus.

They drank cup after cup of the lemonade they'd made themselves, laughed until they were weak at the antics of their own clowns, cringed at the fierce growls of the animals, and, in general, had such a good time that they were sorry when it was time to troop out of the building.

Ends Four Weeks' Effort.

Yesterday's performance came as a climax to four weeks of effort. Ever since the big circus was in Washington, the boys and girls in Francis Scott Key's first grade have been in the animal manufacturing business.

Under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Mary Deane Adams, they turned out a giraffe, using an orange crate for the torso and a couple of soda straws fr the hrns. Babe, the elephant, was built on a similar plan, while a broomstick formed the main part of Sheila, the dancing horse.

Other animals were created by covering small boys with paper, cut and painted to imitate lion and tiger skins.

James Goroum, the lion, was held together pretty much by paper clips and stepped n his swishing tail every time he tried to spring on the ringmaster, Sammy Gibson, done up in a tail coat and peaked hat.

The tigers—Richard Vandergrift and Richard Burgess—had such a difficult time with their long paper tails that finally one of the boys tore his off. The children in the audience immediately imagined it was a snake so they'd have something else to be scared of.

Girls Have Minor Roles.

While the boys portrayed the wild animals, the girls were content to be clowns, tight rope walkers and to play in the band. Shirley Deffer and Dolores Bokman doubled in brass before and after they balanced themselves on a rope, on the floor.

Virginia Hash, Carlee Tammaro, Ann Miller and Margaret Welch put on a clown act that would have had the youngsters rolling in the aisles if there'd been any aisles.

The performance was closed with a Wild West show in which four daring cowboys—Richard Bosin, Lewis Fuller, Wade Hubbard and Bobby Harton—staged a rodeo. When Sheila, the broomstick horse, showed signs of not being able to take it, her rider tossed her into the audience and galloped about on his own legs.

The show was closed with a blare of music, conducted by Pat Graham. Then the guests, mothers of the performers and members of the kindergarten class, visited the menagerie, where paper animals glared from between the slats of orange crates.

Lemonade, animal cookies and circus lollypops were passed over the counter of a booth made of wrapping paper.

"This is more fun than I have at home," sighed one 6-year-old girl as she let herself go on her fifth glass of lemonade and an elephant covered with pink frosting.

Noted 'Cellist Agrees to Help Concert Series

Services of Wallenstein Obtained for Summer Programs Here.

The Washington Summer Concerts Association announced yesterday it had obtained the services of Alfred Wallenstein, noted cellist and orchestra leader, as one of the conductors for its proposed series of "symphonies on the Potomac" this summer.

Wallenstein is the third conductor to agree to serve with the new summer concerts association. It was announced a few days ago that Antonia Brico, woman conductor who appeared here last summer, and Nikolai Sokoloff, director of the WPA Federal Music Project, had accepted invitations to lead the summer concerts.

The association plans 24 concerts at the Water Gate site on the Potomac with several conductors working alternately.

C. Marshall Finnan, National Capital Parks superintendent, held a conference with Thomas J. Mullikin, but later declined to reveal whether he had granted the musicians permission to use the Water Gate site. Mullikin is business manager of the Summer Concerts Association formed by National Symphony Orchestra members after the governing association of the orchestra decided not to hold summer concerts this year.

Wallenstein has appeared as solo cellist with the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia orchestras.

Trade Group Plans Outing on Potomac

Next Thursday will be a holiday in Northeast Washington. The Northeast Businessmen's Association is going on an outing and members will close their stores and steam down the Potomac for the first of a series of picnics.

The men will sail on the City of Washington to Marshall Hall Downs, where they will be entertained by horses, mules, music and bathing beauties. Services of the Riding Rodeo, an amateur concert band, horses for a race, have been obtained.

There will be a bathing beauty contest too, and the prettiest girl will be crowned "Miss Washington." Visitors will have the privilege of visiting a Navy destroyer, on exhibit at Marshall Hall docks.

Among guests, outside of the organization, who have been invited to attend are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Commissioners Melvin Hazen, George Allen and Dan I. Sultan, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; and Col. Kenyon A. Joyce, former commandant of Fort Myer.

Senate Group Stands Firm On City Fund

Discord at Parley Today Probable; Blanton Is Adamant.

With a conference scheduled for 11:30 a. m. today on the District appropriation bill, Senate conferees were preparing to stand firm, it was understood, on the Federal contribution of $5,700,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau.

The only condition under which the Senate managers will accpe a lower figure, it is said, is that the House conferees agree to the establishment of a fiscal relations commission.

Even then, it is stated, the Senate will not go below 15,000,000.

The compromise proposal of $4,200,000, representing a split between the $5,700,000 and the $2,700,000 originally voted by the House, will be rejected unless the Senate conferees change their minds.

To date Representative Thomas L. Blanton, acting as spokesman for the House conferees, has rejected every plan suggested by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, to set up a fiscal relations commission to determine a formula for future years.

Blanton has said he would not accept any plan that would not allow him to be a member of the commission. Thomas has been equally adamant against any set-up that would include members of the House and Senate usb-committees on District appropriations.

Should the conferees fail to reach an agreement today, adoption of a continuing resolution would appear to be the only course left.

2 Playground Pools Will Open Today

Water Programs to Start at Roosevelt and Howard.

The annual water program of the Playground Department gets under way today with the opening of the pool at Rosedale Playground and the pool for colored persons at Howard. James N. Christianson, newly appointed superintendent of pools, announced yesterday. The Georgetown pool will open Saturday.

Christianson, former supervisor of the Rosedale pool, succeeds Gordon Stone in the office of superintendent. He is a graduate of Catholic University and for the last five years has been affiliated with the American Red Cross Life Service.

Pools will be open daily from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. From 6 to 9 each morning the pools will be reserved for adults. Classes in regular and advanced swimming and Red Cross life-saving will be held daily.

Bolstering the city's water program will be 12 wading pools for younger children and 12 new shower heads to be attached to hydrants in congested areas. During the hot weather the shower heads will be used at 50 stations in the heavily ppulated sections of the city.

Carroll Robb, playground engineer, announced a new shower house has been completed at the Georgetown pool. Before entering the pool each person will be required to pass through showers and a disinfecting foot bath.

170 Leaders From 40 States Pitch 4-H Camp Tents Here

Young Farmers to Remain a Week; Hear Director Farrell Outline Rules; Will Tour City and Attend Daily Conferences.

The boys who raised this year's prize pig and the girls who put up the tastiest strawberry jam in 40 States are in town. Camped in neat white tents near the Monument grounds are 170 of them.

They were chosen from among 1,000,000 of the country's rural youth to attend the tenth national 4-H Club camp, which was formally opened in the Department of Agriculture auditorium last night.

Throughout the coming week these youths, who range from 16 to 25 years of age, will attend daily morning conferences on the conservatio of human and natural resources and spend tehir afternoons in and out of buses learning why so many persons visit the National Capital.

At the opening ceremonies last night the delegates, who have won their right to attend the camp after five or ten years spent learning the practical workings of the 4-H principles—head, hand, heart and health—listened to several speeches on the camp's objectives and what they have meant to past delegates.

Erna Riedel told how she came to the 1928 camp from a poverty-stricken home and derived enough inspiration to put herself through college. Recently she received from Maryland University her master's degree in home economics.

George E. Farrell, camp director, told the group that there were no rules. But, he added, a number of customs had grown up in the last ten years. He then diplomatically outlined the rules under the guise of "customs."

Among them were the following: Washington is humid; don't eat too much candy. A boy never takes a girl's arm; she goes under her own power. It's not the best idea to go out for an auto ride, even with your father's best friend, without consulting us. No one smokes in camp; we're on show for a week and want to look our best. Keep your green and white uniforms spotless. Write to mother and dad, if you get a stomach ache, go see the nurse.

Other speakers were George L. Farley, Massachusetts State club leader; J. Keith Pickens, West Virginia county agent, and Dr. C. B. Smith, assistant director, extension service, Department of Agriculture. The department's orchestra played the "Blue Danube."

After a 7:15 breakfast in the Commerce Building cafteria this morning, the group will be addressed by Secretary Wallace.

Blaze Destroys Barn On Fairland, Md., Farm

A small barn on the property of William Edwards at Fairland, Md., was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The Silver Spring and Sandy Spring Fire Departments were called and prevented the blaze from spreading to nearby buildings. Damage was estimated at $500.

The rescue squad of the Silver Spring department had just completed first aid to Mrs. F. Harold Harmon, wife of the fire chief, who was painfully burned by scalding water, when the alarm was sounded. Mrs. Harmon was reported last night to be resting comfortably.

House Adopts Plan to Grant Funds to ADA

Continuance of Alley Work Is Assured by Amendment.

Way Also Is Paved for Payment of Overdue Wages to 4,200.

Continuation of the activities of the Alley Dwelling Authority on a somewhat restricted scale was assured yesterday as the House adopted the Senate amendment to the deficiency bill relating to ADA funds.

The amendment provides that the Authority may utilize all unexpended appropriations during the next fiscal year and any revenue that accures before July 1, 1938. Altogether this will amount to about $200,000, according to John Ihlder, ADA administrator.

The House originally rejected a $300,000 new appropriation recommended by the Budget Bureau for the ADA and made no provision for its operation after June 30, 1936.

The Senate, recognizing the legal question involved in making a new appropriation, adopted an amendment requested by Ihlder as a substitute.

The deficiency bill also includes about $900,000 in funds for various District government expenses.

More than 4,200 Federal and District employes whose pay has been held up by the delay of the deficiency bill are assured payment by adoption of the conference report, but they will not be paid until the Senate acts on the measure and until the bill is signed by the President.

It is expected that the pay roll will be drawn up the latter part of this week or early next week.

Livingstone Nominated To Head Lions Club

John C. Livingston was nominated to succeed E. Francis McDevitt as president of the Silver Spring (Md.) Lions Club at a meeting at the Brooks Tea House, Blair road.

Holmead, second vice president; Joseph Waters, third vice president; Truman Dodson, secretary; Harry Trainor, treasurer; William Holmead, lion tamer, and Walter Crossan, tail twister; Alan Gardner, Lowell Hendrick and Edwin Warfield, for two vacancies on the board of directors.

Society Plans Excursion.

A moonlight excursion on the steamer Potomac will be held by members of Congressional Council No. 809, National Union Assurance Society, tomorrow to raise funds for use in the organization's charities. Harry Selinger is chairman of the outing.

Film Plays of Unusual Merit MarkNewWeek

Stage Bills and Al Fresco Resorts Also Add to the Attractive Outlook.

Jean Hersholt, elevated to stardom as a reward for his splendid work in "The Country Doctor," will be the pictured star of the bill beginning tomorrow at Loew's Fox Theater. His vehicle will be "Sins of Man," described as one of the most poignant dramas of the year —the story of a father's affection for two motherless sons; the heartbreak and sorrow, turmoil and triumph of their lives. Foremost in the supporting cast is Don Ameche, a recruit from radio, making his first screen appearance. Others in the cast include Allen Jenkins, J. Edward Bromberg, Ann Shoemaker, Fritz Leiber and Francis Ford. The stage portion of the bill will be headlined by Molasses and January, the two blackface comics of both stage and radio renown. Other acts will be contributed by the Dare Devils, Mickey King and Little Jack Heller, Ben Bernie's singing protege. Phil Lampkin returns to the conductor's stand with a new overture.

Marion Davies and Dick Powell are filmed in the principal roles of "Hearts Divided," the chief screen feature of the bill announced for the week beginning tomorrow at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. In the supporting cast of this Napoleonic romance will be Claude Rains, as Napoleon; Charles Ruggles, Edward Everett Horton, Arthur Treacher, Walter Kingsford, Henry Stephenson and Halliwell Hobbes. The story is that of the beautiful Betsy Patterson, Baltimore belle, and Jerome Bonaparte, brother of the Little Corporal. On the stage, Edgar Kennedy, celebrated screen comic, will headline the bill in person in a specially written skit in which Mrs. Kennedy also appears under the name of Patricia Allwyn. Others on the living program include Loretta Lee, C. B. S. songstress; the 18 Bebe Berri Dancers and Brown and Ames, "Two American Tourists."

"Border Flight" is the expository title of the screen feature to be presented at the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The story concerns the adventures of the intrepid airmen constituting the United States Coast Guards' border patrol. John Howard and Frances Farmer are cast in the romantic leads, supported by Roscoe Karns, Grant Withers, Robert Cummings and Samuel S. Hinds. Aerial fur smugglers are among the figures in the play who lend it melodramatic thrill. The bill will be augmented by short-reel subjects and full 15-minute newsreel.

"Fury," one of the most gripping and most salutary of the year's films with a definite social purpose, will be continued for a second week, beginning tomorrow, as chief screen feature of the bill at Loew's Palace Theater. The principal roles are played by Spencer Tracy and Sylvia Sidney, with Walter Abel, Bruce Cabot, Edward Ellis, Walter Brennan, Frank Albertson and George Walcott also assigned to important parts. The supplementary features, including the color cartoon, "The Old Mill Pond," also are being continued.

Ronald Colman and Claudette Colbert, supported by Victor McLaglen, Rosalind Russell, Gregory Ratoff, Nigel Bruce, C. Henry Gordon and numerous others of note, will take possession of the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater four the week beginning tomorrow in a revival of the downtown popularity of the film version of Ouida's widely read story of "Under Two Flags." The bill will be augmented by abbreviated camera subjects and newsreel.

"Show Boat," Universal's new picturization of the novel by Edna Ferber and the Ziegfeld stage music-drama of the same name, will be held over for a fifth consecutive week at RKO-Keith's. The stellar role of Magnolia is played and sung in her best manner by Irene Dunn, supported by Allan Jones, Helen Morgan, Paul Robeson, Sammy White, Queenie Smith, Charles Winninger, Helen Westley and scores of others. As an extra attraction, the new issue of "The March of Time" will be added to the bill tomorrow.

"Flying Down to Rio," starring Dolores Del Rio and presenting Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in their first sensational screen dance creation, "The Carioca," will continue throughout the remainder of the current week at the Little Theater. Beginning Sunday, it will be succeeded by a revival of "The 39 Steps," costarring Robert Donat and Madeleine Carroll.

The distinguished bill now on view at the Belasco Theater, consisting of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "The Guardsman" and the Government's "The Plow that Broke the Plains," will be continued through Saturday night of this week. With close of business Saturday, the Belasco will be closed for the summer, reopening late in August.

Genuine midsummer temperatures this past week have steadily stepped up attendance at Glen Echo Park, the nearby amusement center where the therometer always registers several degress under city "highs." Immaculately kept up, well gardened and scrupulously conducted, Glen Echo rates the popularity it enjoys. The Crystal Pool, Spanish Garden Ballroom, and a total in excess of 50 amusement devices guarantee wholesome diversion for every taste. Spacious picnic groves afford ample facilities for family and organization outings.

The inauguration of special family excursions on Tuesday and Wednesday at reduced bus fare has served to whip up midweek interest in the many amusements supplied at Seaside Park at Chesapeake Beach, Md. Water sports, fishing, boating, dancing and other entertainment features are available in abundance at this popular bay resort, easily reached by train, bus or private car.

The sentimental romantic drama of "Smilin' Thru" will be offered by the Blackfriars Guild of Washington in the National Sylvan Theater next Tuesday night at 8:30 as second of the 1936 summer festival programs, under the auspices of the Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks. Nell Orton will appear in the role created on the stage by Jane Cowl.

About The Showshops

IT MIGHT be a feasible thing to get the record straight with regard to the closing of the Belasco Theater for the summer on Saturday night of this week.

The last of the regular bills, then, is the one currently playing—Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "The Guardsmen" and the Resettlement Administration's stark, documentary film of "The Plow That Broke the Plains," plus the short subjects—which will be continued through Saturday night, when the Lafayette Square playhouse, insofar as its regular policy is concerned, will become officially dark. Three "one-night stands," to be sure, are booked for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights, but that winds it up.

BELL.

Despite rumors to the contrary, there will be no midweek reopening next Wednesday for a five-day run of "Give Us This Night," co-starring Jan Kiepura and Gladys Swarthout, according to assurances of the management late yesterday afternoon.

However, this sudden closing of the Belasco for the season does not at all nullify the prospective booking of the PWA's production of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" by an all-colored cast of actors, which was exclusively intimated in this space several weeks ago as a tentative attraction for the week of June 28. That date now is definitely out, but not the booking. The hitch lies in the matter of funds necessary to finance the proposed tour of the "Macbeth" troupe—an item of some expense owing to the size of the production and the excessive number of its personnel.

If pending appropriations now in committee are made, as Harry Hopkins expects them to be, "Macbeth" will be presented in the Belasco some time around the middle of July. If not then, some time in August.

Manager Jack Thoman, of the Belasco, is remaining in town through Tuesday night's activities, but plans to leave Wednesday for New York, where he will spend the greater part of the summer. Happy landings, is what I always say.

From Ruth B. Palmer, secretary, comes a cordial invitation to attend an informal open house, on Friday night at 8:30, at the headquarters of the New Theater Group, 810 F street, "as a get-together to afford you an opportunity to become further acquainted with us and with our aims, purposes and interests." It would be a pleasure, but—the opening of the new theater bills and Sunday make-up combine to make Friday the one impossible night of the week for this desk. But that's the way life is!

When the Ziegfeld "Follies" reopens in August for a tour that will include Washington, Bobby Clark will be found cast as a co-star with Fannie Brice in the Shubert recollection of what one of the late Flo Ziegfeld's "Follies" was like.

This will mark the first time since the old burlesque days at the Gayety that Bobby Clark ever has been seen locally except as half of the button-popping team of Clark & McCullough. That billing was permanently relegated to the limbo of negation when Paul McCullough came to an untimely end under most tragic circumstances a few months ago. Theirs was so perfect a balance of comic power that one wonders just how effective Bobby will be without the lunatic "feeding" of his old partner.

Another newcomer to the "Follies" cast will be Gypsy Rose Lee, who does a satire on the many "strip tease" acts prevalent in modern burlesque, as regular patrons of Col. James Jeremiah Lake's Gayety can testify. While the names of Cherry and June Preisser and Stan Kavanaugh, the Antipodean juggler, still appear upon the roster, one sees nothing of Gertrude Niesen, recently seen at Loew's Fox, in the prospectus that comes to hand from C. P. Greneker, the Shubert's stentor.

It is pleasant to note, however, that Fannie Brice has completely recovered from the attack of neuritis, or arthritis, or whatever it was, that closed the "Follies" late in the spring and, after a brief visit to her husband, Billy Rose, who is staging the Texas Centennial Exposition at Fort Worth, will carry on with all of her old-time zip, zingo and zowie. And, as Mr. Wimpy would say, she has plenty of both!

• • • •

The real names of those lads billed both as Molasses 'n' January and Pick and Pat for purposes of their radio broadcasts are Pat Padgett and Pick Malone. So now I don't have to worry about that any more. They come to the stage at Loew's Fox tomorrow to headline the vaudeville bill. Very funny fellows—especially at sunrise breakfasts!

The death of Henry B. Walthall, the "Little Colonel" of David Wark Griffith's monumental production of "The Birth of a Nation," prompts this column to depart from a reasonably fixed rule to omit mortuary comment and cite with what a heavy hand Death has fingered the lists of the theater's great and near-great during the past year.

The June issue of Equity, the official organ of the Actors Equity Association, publishes an obituary roll of 101 Equity members who died during the year from April 1, 1935, to March 31, 1936. Included in this somber tabulation are the names of such notables as Herbert Bunston, Leo Donnelly, Junior Durkin, John Gilbert, George Grossmith, Sam Hardy, John F. Hazzard, O. P. Heggie, De Wolf Hopper, J. Moffett Johnston, David Landau, Cecil Lean, Philip Leigh, Robert Loraine, Paul J. McCullough, William Morris, Lennox J. Pawle, Larry Rich, Will Rogers, Gordon Westcott, Francis Wilson and scores of others.

A heavy toll to take of any profession and one that tugs mightily at the heart.

Back-from-Nature Note.

It is Mr. John Elliott, of Fredericksburg, Va., who mails in a penny postage card to say that the movies are helping out Nature in his town, the marquee sign on Pitts' Colonial Theater announcing the following in electric lights:

Morrow estate at North Haven, Me., is being readied for occupancy . . . Rumor is that the Lindberghs will return late this summer and complete their vacation there . . . When the famous Central Park Casino exploded, the force of the blast drove it from New York to the Jersey side of the Hudson . . . Bernatti, the Casino headwaiter, is now filling the same post at Ben Marden's Riviera across the river . . . And the noted Casino bar, where once the country's millionaires sat and ordered, is now part and parcel of the refreshment concession at Palisades Park.

"Is It True What They Say About Dixie?" was Apollon's special material, but the whole country beat him to it . . . Postmaster General Jim Farley, in drawing the fire of the Landon leaders to himself rather than to F. D. R., must be credited with the No. 1 red herring of current politics . . . H. B. Walthall, 'Little Colonel' Of Films, Dies

Screen Actor Played Role in 'Birth of a Nation' for D. W. Griffith.

By the United Press.

Monrovia, Calif., June 17.—Henry B. Walthall, the immortal "Little Colonel" of the great silent picture, "Birth of a Nation," died in a hospital here today after 27 years on the screen. He was 55.

Walthall won world acclaim as the grave little colonel in the epic of the American Civil War, only to go into eclipse with the advent of sound pictures. His voice was high and squeaky. For years he struggled against obscurity.

Then science devised microphones and methods that made his voice seem different from what it was, and he came back in good roles in pictures such as "Viva Villa" and "The Tale of Two Cities."

His career in pictures embraced almost the entire life span of the industry itself to date. His first part was as a ditch digger in 1909 at Fort Lee, N. J. He swung his pick with such artistic abandon that David Wark Griffith immediately cast him in more important roles. Walthall and Mary Pickford entered the infant industry together under Griffith's direction.

His last picture, in which he played the role of an airplane inventor, was "China Clipper," finished three weeks ago and not yet released.

He was born in Shelby City, Ala., in the reconstruction years after the Civil War, and grew up on a Southern plantation. He knew intimately his greatest role, "the Little Colonel," for it depicted the life to which he was born. He was educated on his farmer's plantation by private tutors.

He served in the Spanish-American War, where he acquired the soldierly bearing for which he was famous. Then he bobbed up in New York as a lanky young actor. Handicapped by his voice and his Southern accent, he found few parts.

Then one day he and James Kirkwood were at the Players Club discussing the new nickelodian cinema. Kirkwood remarked that he believed Walthall would "screen" well. The next day Walthall called on Griffith, and the course of his life was fixed.

4 Killed in Blast At Oil Refinery

Bakersfield, Calif., June 17 (AP).—Four persons died today from injuries received in a gasoline explosion at the Producers' Oil Refinery last night.

The dead are Mrs. James Sims, 46; Mrs. Lee Smith, 49; Lynn Coffin, 29, and Doyle Taylor, 31. The women were among a group watching a test run in the plant. Several others were burned.

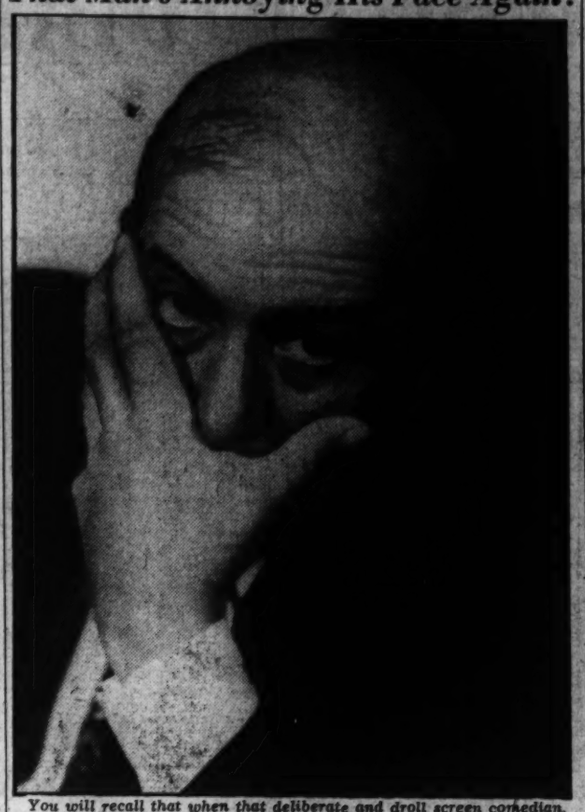
The explosion, believed caused by an electrical short circuit, threatened the 15,000,000-barrel tank farm of the Standard Oil Co., nearby.

Ray School Graduates 2 at First Exercises

Graduation evercises of the J. Enos Ray School, Takoma Park, Md., were held last night at the auditorium. It was the first time a special graduation program was given.

There were only two graduates, Edythe Beeber and Thomas Williams. Following a musical program by the pupils awards for perfect attendance and patrol certificates were made. Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, member of the town council of Takoma Park, made an address, while Judge H. C. Heffner, of the Takoma Police Court, gave the invocation. The school was presented a banner by Mrs. J. Enos Ray, member of the Prince Georges County Board of Education. Mrs. C. N. Thomsen, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, presented the diplomas. The awards werewere made by Mrs. Ralph Brown, a trustee.

That Man's Annoying His Face Again!



You will recall that when that deliberate and droll screen comedian, Edgar Kennedy, reaches the end of his patience he quietly begins drywashing his face as a signal of the impending cyclone of his wrath. You will recognize this expressive bit of business from the likeness of Mr. Kennedy appearing above. You will meet the comic gentleman face to face at the Earle Theater next week, where he will appear in person in a stage skit, beginning tomorrow.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, June 17.

Carole Lombard is sitting on a chair in her dressing room as if she were on the deck of a boat posing for the cameraman. Carole says: "I believe I've got a movie boner for you." She proceeds to tell about the flicker "Boulder Dam," and the scene in which Lyle Talbot invites Ross Alexander to have a drink. Talbot puts two coins on the bar, paying for the drinks. After a little dialogue, in which Talbot and Alexander have an argument, they leave the bar, and Talbot pays for the drinks again. "Very nice, eh?" says Miss Lombard. "I'm almost tempted to take the train to Boulder Dam and open a bar."

CAROLE LOMBARD.

As a matter of fact, Carole goes to Alaska in a couple of weeks. For there is where her next picture, "Spawn of the North," is to be filmed. It is a Technicolor picture.

Franchot Tone is walking to his dressing room from the set of "The Gorgeous Hussy." And while walking with him, he tells of a boner he saw in Shirley Temple's flicker "Poor Little Rich Girl."

Now for the movie fans. Concerning the flicker "Furry." Arthur Murray writes that when Bruce Cabot and the mob are unable to reach the keys which the trunkey has thrown within the gates, Cabot sets fire to a pile of papers inside the jail, starting the blaze which burns down the jailhouse. Later, in the sequence in which the newsreels are shown in the courtroom scene, the fire isn't started that way. In the newsreel, Bruce Cabot is shown pouring gasoline on sticks piled up outside the jail, and a woman tosses the first brand into the pyre which sets off the fire.

Also, Murray would like to know what happened to the other prisoners in the jail. They couldn't have been released, because the mob wasn't able to get inside.

In the flicker "Trouble for Two," claims Theodore Suzman, Robert Montgomery leaves his open cigarette case on a restaurant table and walks out. Later, the same evening, Montgomery is seen taking a cigarette out of the cigarette case.

Grace More, in the flicker, "The King Steps Out," is splattered with mud by a carriage, according to Albert Walch. Miss Moore removes some of the mud from her gown, yet a few seconds later, the gown is perfectly clean.

About the same flicker, Frank King writes: "Grace Moore and Walter Connolly are in the forest and Miss Moore is holding some flowers. Then she throws the flowers away and goes home. When she arrives home she has the flowers. I wish," says Frank, "Miss Moore would tell me how she does those tricks." And although the flicker is titled, "The King Steps Out," it is really the emperor who steps out.

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

After 15 years' service in many parts of the world and a three-year absence from Government service, H. Lawrence Groves says "it feels like home" to be back working for Uncle Sam.

He has recently taken the job of assistant to the director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, to which he was appointed by Director Alexander V. Dye.

After his graduation in 1918 from Harvard, Groves came to work for the Department of Commerce and soon became a commercial attache in the foreign service. He is familiar with almost every large city of Europe and says the one and only drawback about being in America is that everyone is so busy that there is no time for mountain climbing, hunting and fishing.

Three years ago he resigned from Government service and became executive secretary with the Drug Institute of America. The urge to get back into more familiar surroundings was too strong and he returned to Washington several weeks ago and recently took up his new duties.

When he resigned he was stationed in Berlin, at the beginning of the Hitler regime, which he says has added to the strictness of trade restrictions. But he hastily pointed out that these had begun even before the advent of Hitler.

His first foreign assignment was to investigate agricultural machinery in France, then he was sent to Zurich, Switzerland, to report on general economic and commercial conditions. Groves takes the place formerly occupied by Johnston Avery.

Another new appointee in the bureau is J. E. Peebles, who has joined the staff of the Division of Commercial Laws where he will temporarily have charge of the division's new function of certifying contractors' claims. Peebles comes to Washington from Portland and was the former trade commissioner to Australia.

Because Arkansas is celebrating its one hundredth birthday, the city of Little Rock was given the new centennial stamps for prior distribution. And Little Rock did quite a job in disbursing them, for the first-day sales, as reported here to the Postoffice Department, amounted to $15,000 or 500,000 stamps, of which 376,693 were canceled during that time. For Little Rock that meant almost as much work as the distribution of the bonus bonds. Yesterday the stamps went on sale in postoffices all over the country.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Commerce Branch, Local No. 2, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, meets to hear about the work of the Bureau of Marine Inspection. This is in line with the idea of familiarizing the membership with the diversified work of the department by taking up special fields at each session.

"The World Is Yours"—especially if you listen to the radio on Sunday mornings at 10:30. That is the time the Smithsonian Institution's new broadcast goes on, for so they have named their little talks dramatizing the sciences with which the famous Government agency deals and telling of the special exhibits in the National Museum. This Sunday's talk is from material gathered by the late Dr. S. P. Langley, former secretary, and the present one, Dr. C. G. Abbott, and deals with the effect of the sun on the weather man's predictions.

The Recorder of the Labor Board at the Norfolk Navy Yard, Portsmouth, Va., announces applications will be received not later than June 23 for the position of die sinker.

The rate of pay for a 40-hour week ranges from $1.05 to $1.17 an hour. A deduction of 3½ per cent is made toward a retirement annuity.

Applicants must have completed a four-year apprenticeship in the trade or must have had four years of practical experience in the trade, the substantial equivalent of such completed apprenticeship.

Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the Recorder of the Labor Board, Norfolk Navy Yard, or from the Manager of the Fourth United States Civil Service District, Washington, D. C.

Another voice for the inclusion of a merit system plank at the National Democratic Convention next week will be added by the National League of Women Voters. At Cleveland they paraded and urged on Republican leaders the need for an extension of Civil Service. They announce today they will do the same for the Democrats.

Mrs. La Rue Brown, of Boston, an active Democrat and a leaguer, was selected to interview the resolutions committee in behalf of the league's stand for better government.

Government employes who are veterans of the Forty-second Division of the A. E. F., have an invitation for Saturday night, President Elmer F. Neagle wants them all to come, no matter where they may be scattered through the Government service, and vote for the new officers of the Rainbow Division veterans. The dinner-date-election will be held at 1508 Fourteenth street.

Palestine Nursery Under Fire in Riot

Jerusalem, June 17 (AP).—An American colony children's home was in the line of terrorists' fire today in the sporadic rioting in the Holy Land.

None of the inhabitants was injured, but a hail of bullets smashed the windows of the home on the Plain of Sharon. One Arab was killed and several others wounded near Jaffa after occupants of a British police car returned the Arabs' fire when caught in an ambush.

(The Palcor Agency reported today's attack on the American Jewish colony, Cherut Amerikai, was the second in two weeks. The colony, which includes a children's nursery, is composed of young men and women from the United States.)

Yankees Get 38 Hits, Rout Tribe Twice, 15-4 and 12-2

Pearson Gives Up 7 Hits in Nightcap

Gehrig, Dickey Smash Circuit Drives in 2d Slugging Bee.

Cleveland, June 17 (AP).—The New York Yankees' big guns laid down a 38-hit barrage today, shelled the Indians into a double-header defeat, and stretched their American League lead to 3½ games.

They won the opener, 15 to 4, with Charley Ruffing pitching his fifth straight win and helping the attack with two home runs and a pair of singles. In the nightcap Monte Pearson let the Tribe down with three hits while "murderers' row" went to work on a pair of Cleveland hurlers for 19 more hits, among them Lou Gehrig's fifteenth homer and Bill Dickey's eleventh, and a 12-to-2 triumph.

The twin win, accomplished while the second-place Boston Red Sox were taking only one game, toppled the Tribe from third place into a tie for fourth.

The first-game victory was Ruffing's eighth of the season.

Egyptians Hint Olympic Trip Cancellation

By the Associated Press.

Cairo, Egypt, June 17.—Egyptian sporting circles voiced indignation tonight upon hearing Berlin reports the Nurnberg racial laws would be applied to Egypt's Olympic team.

The laws, adopted by special Reichstag session at Nurnberg last year, deprive Jews of full social and citizenship rights in Germany.

Open mention was made of the possibility the Egyptians would cancel their Olympic trip.

The reports said Gen. Herman Wilhelm Goering, Reichstag president and air minister, made the announcement.

Berlin, June 17 (AP).—The Wilhelmstrasse denied tonight that Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering had even intimated the Nurnberg laws would be applied to Egyptian Olympic contestants.

Detton to Meet Little Wolf Tonight

Chief Little Wolfe, the rowdy Redskin who, it is reported, hires himself out for a bogey-man on off nights, and diligent Dean Detton, champion of a coral reef in the South Sea Islands will bend elbows tonight in the feature of Uncle Joe Turner's five-star wrestling show at Griffith's picnic grounds.

Before we forget to mention it, a round-by-round description of the Louis-Schmeling party in New York—if that's your idea of a party—will be supplied the customers absolutely free of charge.

Detton, we have it from a reliable source, is as hot as a well-baked potato because the Injun told him to go get himself a reputation before asking for a match and intends to make the old tommyhawk toter eat them words. That Dean may do it is attested by his recent triumph in the $15,000 elimination tournament staged by Ray Fabiana in Philadelphia.

Little Wolf, informed of Detton's unfriendly attitude and threatening manner replied with a mere, "Ugh, passum baloney, please."

But, as if adding insult to insult, Detton announces that he will pin the wily war-whooper with his own patented specialty, a torturous Indian deadlock.

Schmeling Is Due For Sure Beating In Battle Tonight

Execution at Hands of Louis Believed So Certain That Wagering at Odds of 7-1 and Better Is at Standstill; Maximum Gate of $800,000.

By Bill McCormick,
A Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 17.—Joe Louis, the sensational Negro heavyweight, and Max Schmeling, the Hitlerite, who once held the heavyweight championship, will go to the bat at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night in the battle of "How Long?"

Perhaps never before in ring history, except possibly when Jimmy Braddock pushed Max Baer from the heavyweight throne, has an issue boiled down to the simple question of when will one pug knock out another, with very little thought being given to the possibility that he who gets slapped may up and smack the almost certain winner.

Louis, of course, is the almost certain winner. Even the stanchest admirers of Schmeling seem to hope for little but that their man will make a good fight of it. So certain are the majority that the Dark Destroyer from Detroit will win that betting on the selection of the winner is at a virtual standstill.

Best Offer Is 7-1.

Chastened by the upset scored by Braddock over the 1 to 10 choice Baer last year, professional wagerers are not offering odds tempting enough to lure in the "sucker bettors" The best one can possibly get on Schmeling now is $7 for every potato risked, with prevailing odds quoting Louis on the long end of five to one.

Such betting as is being recorded is, for the most part, being based on the round in which Louis will stop Schmeling. Strangely enough, odds almost as tempting as those based on naming the winner are being offered on Louis to win by a knockout. If one thinks Max has a chance to go the distance, he can get 3, and even 4, to 1.

Both fighters have wound up their training sieges in perfect physical condition. They both will reach New York tomorrow from their training camps. Schmeling will leave Napanoch, 90 miles away from here, in upper New York, early tomorrow morning; Louis, a bit nearer the scene of action, can sleep a bit later at his Lakewood, N. J., condition quarters. Both will weigh in at Promoter Mike Jacobs' newly acquired Hippodrome at noon tomorrow. Louis is expected to register 202 pounds—his highest fighting weight—on the scales, and Schmeling probably will weigh 196 pounds.

Jacobs' Plea Denied.

At a meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission today, Schmeling's manager, Yussell Joe Jacobs, was denied a plea to have the fighters' hands bandaged in the ring. Jacobs had based his plea on a belief that Louis' hands were being "loaded" for important fights. The commission will require Louis to use only a certain amount of bandage and tape, with none of the latter across the hitting portion of the hand.

The National Boxing Association notified the New York Commission and the world at large that the national organization would recognize the winner of tomorrow night's engagement as the outstanding contender for the heavyweight crown now worn by Jim Braddock.

Louis' Speed Amazing.

Louis and his managers have indicated in not so uncertain terms that the Brown Bomber will not fight Braddock for the title this year. This is because of income tax regulations which will boost the percentage Joe must pay to the Government to a fabulous figure if he adds the Braddock purse to his income this year.

Working under wraps during his early training period, Louis cut loose in his closing workouts, astounding observers with the form and condition which he displayed. It is almost unanimously agreed that he is in better physical shape than he has been for any previous big-league fight, and the "experts" have been amazed by the improvement in his timing and boxing during the training period.

His speed is almost triple that displayed by Schmeling in training and he seems to have mastered every phase of the fighting business except the art of whaling away at an apponent's midsection at close quarters.

Schmeling, while in perfect condition, seems poorly equipped to withstand the terrific barrage of punches Louis is certain to lay down. In training he has proven ridiculously easy to hit with a left jab to the head—the same punch that Louis employed to such great advantage in tearing Max Baer to pieces—and he also was smacked about quite a bit by right hands thrown by his hired hands. He has only one effective weapon—a straight right to the head.

Schmeling Won't Last Three.

It is the writer's personal belief that Schmeling wil be very good indeed to go three rounds with the Brown Bomber. We believe also that Schmeling will attempt to make a "running fight" for five or six rounds, moving as rapidly as possible away from the monotonous

Louis Has Earned Million in 2 Years

New York, June 17 (U.P.).—Joe Louis was paid $50 for his first professional fight, against Jack Kracken, at Bacon's Arena, in Chicago on July 4, 1934.

Less than 15 months later he received $240,833.99 for hammering Max Baer into submission. And tomorrow night that same Negro boy will be paid about $300,000 for fighting Max Schmetling.

That will bring his ring earnings to $1,000,000 in less than two years of professional fighting, surpassing the record of Jack Dempsey, who had been fighting almost seven years before he moved into the "big money."

Cubs Beat Phils, 5-3, to Extend String to 13

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 17—The rampaging Chicago Cubs made it thirteen straight by defeating the Phillies, 5-3, today.

Taking advantage of Phillies' errors to assume a 4-0 lead as early as the fourth inning, the Cubs fought off late rallies to gain the victory.

For the first time in 14 games the starting Bruin hurler failed to finish. Henshaw, the first Cub twirler, was removed during a Phil rally in the fifth, and Warneke, who finished, received credit for the victory.

It was Lon's sixth consecutive win and gave him eight decisions for the season.

Clear Knight Wins Charles Town Purse; Scotty's Pride Pays $47

$30 Mutuel Returned by Schley B

Daily Double Is Worth $77 on Dixie Bee and Schley B.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 17.—Clear Knight, never worse than second in his last seven starts, added a victory to his record today in the Sydney Thompson Purse, the feature race. The big black gelding, with Vernon Wisner in the saddle, was ahead by a variety of margins through the running of the six furlong contest. At the all important wire, Clear Knight was galloping along a length and a quarter in advance of a fast closing Rouquepine. Topsie H was headed out of the second money.

Despite his fine record, Clear Knight was only lukewarm in the wagering and paid a $7.20 mutuel. Most of the wagering was done on Miss Tiptoe, a Palumbo mount, which showed a dull effort to finish fourth in the field of eight.

Racing conditions were ideal and a better-than-average mid-week crowd of 4,500 witnessed the sport. A $77 daily double materialized with the combination of Dixie Bee and Schley B occupying the spotlight.

Rocky Mount, half of the P. H. Faulconer entry, won the first race by a length from Sun Belle and Jockey Lou Pikor defeated his rival, Sammy Palumbo. Lucky Roll was an unlucky third in the field of eight. The winner escaped the crowding that marked the start. The payoff was $11.

Dixie Bee, an even money favorite, scored a lucky decision in the second race. Silver Arch looked all over the winner entering the stretch with Dixie Bee following, but ran to the outside fence and then came again to lose by half a length. Prettylass may have been best but she was allowed to drop far out of it in the first furlong. Sammy Palumbo did a good job of riding on the winner.

Schley B, an 11-year-old gelded son of Chief Flynn, galloped away with the third race at a $30.60 mutuel. With Johnny Shanks guiding, the ancient one opened a long lead and then held on to defeat, among others, Pukka Heaven and Holland.

Scotty's Pride Pays $47.80.

The day's second even money shot won in the fourth race when Spear shot to the wire a length and a quarter in advance of Tuleyries Star. The Royal Canopy filly led from flagfall to finish.

One of the longest prices of the meeting materialized in the fifth race. Scotty's Pride, sold to R. L. Gheen for $500, made good for her new owner at the first asking. Ridden by Pikor, the filly paid $47.80 mutuel and came from far back in the field. Timber Phantom was second.

Donate was the day's third even money horse to score. He led Golden Scandals to the wire to win under Palumbo's ride.

Wittekind won the finale at a $7.60 mutuel and equaled the track record of 1:47.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROCKY MOUNT (entry), $11.00, $4.80, $3.20; SUN BELLE, $4.40, $4.20; LUCKY ROLL, $7.20.
ROCKY MOUNT escaped crowding at the start, saved ground while running head and head with SUN BELLE and drew clear under energetic handling in the closing sixteenth. SUN BELLE fought it out willingly on the outside of the winner from the beginning and closed gamely. LUCKY ROLL went forwardly throughout and would have been second in another stride. JUSTA JIMMIE had no excuses. CLOUDY WEATHER caught in a jam at the break, saved ground entering the stretch. MARGARET JONES carried LITTLE PERCY to the outside fence entering the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:01. Winner, Mrs. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIXIE BEE, $4.00, $2.60, $2.20; SILVER ARCH, $4.20, $2.60; PRETTY LASS, $2.40.
DIXIE BEE, steadied around first turn, moved up sharply to press the pace of SILVER ARCH, hugged the rail entering the stretch and took command when pace setter went wide, but had to be ridden out to resist SILVER ARCH. The latter assumed command in the opening furlong, was rated along while in front, but went wide and came again. PRETTY LASS was squeezed back going into the first turn, gained steadily after reaching the backstretch and closed resolutely. MIDNIGHT SHOW moved up menacingly entering the stretch, but hung. HARMOAK tired after reaching contention. MAINS WANDER was rushed too much at the start.

THIRD RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:34. Winner, Capt. F. Hamilton's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCHLEY B., $30.60, $12.20, $3.60; PUKKA HEAVEN, $4.80, $2.80; HOLLAND, $2.60.
SCHLEY B. assumed command at the first turn, opened a good lead along the backstretch, saved ground at the final bend, but had to be put to intermittent punishment to stave off PUKKA HEAVEN. The latter raced in close quarters along the backstretch and rallied sharply when clear. HOLLAND was forwardly placed from the start and showed a good effort. CASTLE CLIFF was miserably ridden, being taken wide at every turn and tired. CANYNGE went well for a half. MINTIE was shuffled back going to the first turn and failed to extend herself thereafter. THE GEN pulled up lame.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $77.00.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. The Jefferson Rock. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:04. Winner, R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPEAR, $4.00, $2.40, $2.40; TULEYRIES STAR, $2.80, $2.80; LA MARQUISE, $8.20.
SPEAR, sent to the front at once under hustling tactics, and steadied along thereafter to the stretch turn, withstood a drive to hold TULEYRIES STAR safe. The latter, a stretch rally, was closest to the pace throughout and came willingly at the end. LA MARQUISE closed a gap, but was a well-beaten third. MARSE LIN was bothered at the first turn and was ridden wide thereafter. ROYAL POLLY showed a good effort. MERSAN went forwardly for a half. SULKY had early speed. BROWN VIXEN broke sideways.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. The White Post. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:34. Winner, R. SCOTTY'S PRIDE, off slowly and far back on the backstretch, began to improve his position at the far turn, saved ground and responded to punishment to win going away. TIMBER PHANTOM went forwardly and along the rail all the way, but failed to get through until too late and may have been best. CLIFTON'S NELL was hard used by assistant starters at the post, assumed command at once, raced CHISEL and RED RIOT into defeat, but tired in the final eighth. RED RIOT moved up on the outside entering the stretch, but faltered in the final drive. CHISEL pressed the pace and tired. VISA appeared sore going to the post.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. The Sydney Thompson. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:02½. Off at 5:04. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLEAR KNIGHT, $7.20, $3.60, $3.60; ROQUEPINE, $16.20, $8.60; TOPSIE H., $6.80.
CLEAR KNIGHT, sent to the front at once, saved ground while shaking off TOPSIE H., and finished willingly to hold ROQUEPINE safe. The latter saved ground by hugging the rail entering the stretch and closed with a belated rush. TOPSIE H. pressed the pace and came willingly at the end. MISS TIPTOE had no excuses. LUCID, sluggish at the start, raced on her own courage under timid handling. BLACK SWEEP began to falter at the final bend. LOOK FORWARD ran out at the second turn and was pulled up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:37. Off at 5:37½. Winner, E. DONATE, sent to the front at once, was rated along while shaking off HUPPY and withstood drive to hold GOLDEN SANDALS safe in the late stages. GOLDEN SANDALS was forced back when partially blocked by DONATE after the first half and came again in the stretch. HUPPY went forwardly all the way, but faltered in the last eighth. DONEE was in the thick of contention from the beginning, but faltered. The others were outrun.

WITTEKIND took command in the opening furlong and was rated along in front of PORPHYRY and FAMOUS CLAYTON, drew far out entering the straightaway and had to be punished to stave off closing bid of HOT CAKE. The latter was reserved off the leaders, saved ground along the rail entering the stretch and responded to a drive and was wearing down the winner at the end. COVENTRY QUEEN, under restraint for a mile, closed with a rush when turned loose. FAMOUS CLAYTON tired after being placed forwardly for three-quarters. PORPHYRY faltered in the last quarter.

Welsh, D. C. Star, Enters 4th Round of U. S. Clay Courts Tourney

Chinese Cup Player Bows, 6-2, 6-4

Local Netter Decisive Victor Over Oriental Davis Cupper.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Ill., June 17.—Barney Welsh, standard bearer from the Nation's Capital, stroked his way into the fourth round of the National Clay Courts championship here today, scoring a decisive victory over Guy Cheng, Chinese Davis Cup star, attending Tulane University, 6—2, 6—4.

Welsh had the situation well in hand except for a brief flurry by the Chinese cup player in the second set. But Welsh, his accurate placements keeping Cheng on the run, finally nudged the No. 1 seeded foreign entrant into errors. Cheng once pulled up to 3—4 in the second set, but Welsh finished strong.

Tomorrow Welsh will meet Bob Riggs, of Los Angeles, who defeated George Ball, of El Paso, Tex., today. Welsh was seeded fifteenth.

Welsh and his partner, Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., advanced in the doubles without swinging a racquet, as Cecil Elrod, Murphysboro, Tenn., and High Shelton, of Chicago, defaulted.

Frankie Parker, No. 1 star from Milwaukee, turned on a sample of his best form today, eliminating Thane Halsted, of Chicago, 6—0, 6—2, 6—1. He also paired with J. Gilbert Hall, of West Orange, N. J., to defeat Frank Froehling and John Williams, of Chicago, 6—1, 6—3.

Wilbur (Junior) Coen, of Kansas, Western singles titleholder, removed Art Hendrix, of Miami, 6—4, 8—6, 6—0. Hendrix was seeded eighth, Coen tenth. Vernon Johns, of Southern California, conquered Dick Bennett, the lad who trimmed Gilbert Hall yesterday.

70,000 to Watch 'Execution' Fight

shuffle with which Louis propels himself about the ring.

Schmeling is not a "running away" fighter, and these tactics, if employed, probably will not serve to carry him away from danger. For all that, Joe is not a tearing-in, whirlwind attacker. He moves forward much faster than the slow German can move backward.

Because of the one-sidedness of the encounter, lagging public interest has manifested itself at the box office. Ticket sales, brisk yesterday, slumped to almost nothing today. The promoters are claiming an advance sale in excess of $500,00, but many rumors are flying about to the effect that there is not more than half that much in the tills.

The most optimistic figures at the present time place the gate at $800,000—far short of the $1,200,000 expected at the outset.

Following the weighing-in tomorrow, both fighters will rest at the homes of friends until ring time, which is 10 p. m., daylight saving time. The bout will be broadcast over a national hook-up.

Stone's Homer Wins, 2-1, for DeShong

of the sixth, the rain spilled out of overhanging clouds once again. The ground crew put the tarpaulin on and peeled it off several times, and finally after 25 minutes of sitting around they tapped DeShong on the shoulder again and told him his job wasn't finished. He went back in there, gave up his second hit of the game, to Reiber, and his third to Fox, but he left them both out on base by making Charley Gehringer roll into the sure hole in middle of Ossie Bluege's glove.

The fellow who is the hero of this story had to work down to the bitter end. In the last half of the eighth, with one out, Rogell singled to right and stole second. But DeShong struck out Fox and, after walking Gehringer, struck out the mighty Goose, who was a 'swingin' in the rain."

Gahn's Triple Wins, 6-5, Over Old Milwaukee

A triple by Otts Zahn, second-sacker, in the eighth inning with the bases loaded, enabled Heurich the Brewers to defeat Old Milwaukee, 6-5 yesterday and tie for first place with Coffey Sales in the Industrial League.

Steel Buying At Old Prices Taxes Capacity

Production at 71%, the Highest Level in Over Six Years.

New York, June 17.—"The rush to cover at old prices is taxing active ingot capacity to the utmost, and production is up another point this week to 71 per cent of capacity," says Iron Age in its weekly summary today. "This is the highest level in more than six years and is a full 10 points above the peak reached when prices were last advanced in June, 1934. Higher operations are reported this week at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Youngstown, Buffalo, Wheeling and St. Louis.

"Finishing mill schedules are still led by the tin-plate division, where output is currently exceeding theoretical capacity. Rail mills are slowing down, with the Birmingham unit scheduled to close at the end of the week. In other departments, operations are either maintained or slightly heavier.

"Price increases have brought life to the railroad market. Advances of $2 a ton on tie plates and $3 on track spikes and bolts will become effective August 1, but the carriers will be given until September 30 to take shipments of material ordered at the old figures. Rails are scheduled to be marked up for fourth quarter delivery.

Railroad Orders.

"Merchant's Despatch, Inc., has placed 500 refrigerator cars with its own shops. Wheeling & Lake Erie is in the market for 250 to 1,000 hopper cars, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy will buy 250 hopper, 500 box cars and three locomotives, the Chicago Great Western is inquiring for 100 flats, and a large eastern car builder is considering the purchasing of 2,000 tank cars for leasing. The New York Central will take bids June 26 on its undetermined second half rail and accessory requirements and an unnamed carrier has bought 3,200 tons of rails.

"The week's fabricated structural steel awards amount to 25,400 tons, compared with 15,800 tons in the previous period and new projects have decreased from 23,300 tons to 18,450 tons. Total awards of construction steel reported to the Iron Age this year have amounted to 800,060 tons, compared with 588,455 tons in the corresponding 1935 period, an increase of 36 per cent."

Electric Power Output Index At Record High

Reaches 109.8 in June 13 Week, Compared With 100 in 1929.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—Electric power production for the week ended June 13 expanded to peak proportions. The Associated Press index of electricity output, with 1929-30 taken as 100, advanced to 109.8, the highest on record for the index, from 108.5 the previous week. A year ago the index stood at 98.2 per cent of the 1929-30 average.

Low	102.0	94.1	91.9	80.2

Actual production, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, stood at 1,989,798,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 2.3 per cent from the previous week and the second highest point ever reached in the history of the industry. The peak occurred during the week ended December 21, 1935.

The gain over the corresponding week a year ago was 14. per cent, and for the week ended June 6, the margin over the comparable week of 1935 was 12.8 per cent.

All major geographical sections bettered production of a year previous. The percentage increases follow: New England, 14.5; Middle Atlantic, 11.1; Central industrial, 20.3; West Central, 14.0; Southern States, 17.0; Rocky Mountain, 17.5, and Pacific Coast, 6.7.

Stocks Slacken Pace in Late Trading After Early Advance; Bonds Firm; Wheat Lower.

New York, June 17.—Stocks lacked the punch to follow up the advantage gained yesterday in a closing hour push, but gains were held fairly well. Closing deals were under the best. Stock turnover was around 1,250,000 shares, the largest since the middle of May. Second grade bonds were bought. Pressure on francs continued. September wheat closed ⅜ of a cent lower at 89¼ cents a bushel, but cotton worked higher.

Best prices in stocks were reached in the first hour, under the impetus of the closing rally yesterday. Another period of enthusiasm was enjoyed shortly after noon, but the closing deals brought some profit taking.

Steel shares gave up their leadership under the blight of a story that wages would be lifted, but recessions were small. Rails continued to harden under the influence of good freight car loadings and some notable increases in passenger revenue as a result of the lower fares. Santa Fe advanced 2 points. Union Pacific gained a point. Central, Great Northern and Northern Pacific were well liked and their activity was marked.

Price changes were inconsequential among the public utilities. Commonwealth and United were active. Consolidated Edison backed and filled. I. T. T. stiffened. Motors were firmer. Chrysler had its best day in more than six weeks in almost touching 100. A few of the accessories rose sharply. Sugars improved. Irregular changes in a fractional range were the rule for metals, chemicals, amusements, rubbers, foods, tobaccos and rail equipment.

Sperry a Feature.

Sperry was a feature of the early trading, rising a point on good volume. Standard Brands was more active than usual. Bush Terminal attracted some attention, the various classes of stock climbing 1 to 4 points. The dividend brought a 3-point jump in Schenley. Crown Cork bobbed up nearly 4 points.

In the loss column were Greyhound, down more than 2 points, with a partial recovery Wilson, under pressure at a new low level, and Warner Quinlan, which broke to the lowest price on record.

The position abroad steadily weakens as gold leaves France and the new Socialist regime strives to ride horses heading in opposite directions. Many in France, it is said, anticipate an increase of fully 20 per cent in prices, which naturally can only be accompanied by a devaluation of the franc. Even that, it may turn out, might not solve the country's problems, for the labor situation appears to be growing worse. For all the gloomy outlook, France is at bottom a conservative country, and as every one in this country often has observed, a little improvement in the economic condition makes a world of difference in political and social viewpoint.

In the political area the troops were marking time preparatory to the Democratic convention to be held in Philadelphia next week. In financial markets, at least, no stir was caused by press gossip of a possible third party. More interest perhaps is taken in the tax bill, now in its dying struggles in Congress, than in the autumn election.

Wage Raise Rumored

As a mild douche to the market enthusiasm worked up yesterday for the steel company stocks by news that the operating rate for the industry had mounted to the best in five years and that the leading company was showing earnings on its common stock, came a story from Pittsburgh that an all round 10 per cent increase in wages might be granted. In steel circles here the story was given no warm reception, although the stock market turned somewhat bearish for a while on the steel shares.

According to the story, the wage increase would be effected to forestall unionization of the industry, and, presumably, organized efforts for higher wages. Possibly the labor leaders would like to have the public think something of the sort is going on and it is said to be true that an intensive drive is under way for unionization. Higher steel prices for third quarter recently were posted, but the point is made that on an hourly basis the industry's wage scale is now higher than it was in 1929 and the record of earnings still is good testimony to the fact that this scarcely is a time when great sympathy might be found for an increase in costs in the form of higher wages.

Midweek trade news was cheerful. Railroad freight-car loadings, according to reports of leading carriers, increased last week about 5½ per cent over the corresponding period of a year ago, but were slightly under the total of the preceding week. Electrical output maintained its rising tendency last week, and retail trade, it may be taken for granted, is quickening at the moment under the bonus stimulus.

Warner-Quinlan.

A week ago a block of Warner-Quinlan was shoved into the market hopper at a new low price of a dollar a share. The seller was following a good hunch, for although the price rose a little this morning to as high as 1½, it quickly broke to a fraction of a dollar on news that a reorganization plan had been presented to the court which apparently made no provision for the common shares. Cities Service has the major interest in the company.

Symbol.

The symbol for Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement was changed today from MMW to MPW at the request of some members of the exchange to avoid confusion with MM at the same post and about the same price and with MMT. Now the problem will be to keep MRW and MPW straight.

Chase to Repay $50,000,000 RFC Advance

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—Chase National Bank has completed plans for retirement of the $50,000,000 preferred stock held principally by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Chase National, with several other large New York institutions, sold varying amounts of preferred stock and debentures to the RFC about two years ago. The transaction resulted from the invitation of Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, who conceived the idea of the security sales as a step toward facilitating the Government's program for putting the Nation's banking resources generally in a more liquid form and thus encouraging freer lending to industry.

Most banks in the larger centers, like Chase, were already liquid to a high degree, but their co-operation was requested by the RFC for its general influence upon the rank and file of smaller institutions.

Manufacturers Trust Co. announced recently plans for retirement of similar securities sold to the RFC.

Wheat Declines From New High

Chicago, June 17 (AP).—Fear of big imports from Canada turned wheat prices downward late today after the market had scored a fresh top price record for the season. The new jump of values preceding the late reaction came about largely because of authoritative trade estimates that spring wheat crop losses in the Dakotas and Montana now aggregate 52,000,000 bushels.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ¾ lower; July, 88@88⅛; September, 89⅛@89¼; December, 90¾@90⅞; corn ⅛@⅞ advanced, July, 62⅛@62⅝; September, 59⅞; December, 55½; oats, ⅛@⅜ up, September, 26⅞@27, and rye unchanged to ⅛ above, September 58⅛. Cotton, Sugar Cocoa Futures At New Highs Coffee Contracts, on the Other Hand, Touch Low for Season.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—New highs were scored today by cotton, cocoa and sugar in New York markets.

In a broad buying wave that carried prices to the highest levels since July 18, 1933, cocoa futures advanced .10 to .11 of a cent a pound with cocoa deliverable in December closing at 5.16 cents a pound. Importers reported scarcity of offerings from primary markets.

In rising 50 to 65 cents a bale, cotton futures thrust up to a new high on the current movement. Reports of limited offerings of cotton in the South and continued good business in cotton cloths stimulated buying, trade circles said.

Sugar contracts rose to the highest prices of the current crop season with the September delivery closing at 2.88 cents a pound. Buying of sugar futures was reported by the firmness in raw sugar which was attributed by the trade to news that the O'Mahoney resolution calling for continuation of the sugar quota system had been favorably reported in the Senate.

Coffee futures, however, sank to a new low for the current movement with the July No. 7 delivery touching the lowest point since April, 1931.

On The Air Today

After all these months, "The O'Neills" finally is to have a studio audience. But those who see the chapter as it is dramatized for the air audience will have to present engraved invitations at the door!

The unusual event is the wedding of "Monte Kayden" and "Peggy O'Neill—the two lovers of the story. Violet Dunn, who plays Peggy, and the handsome Chet Stratton (Monte) will be surrounded by all the usual atmosphere of a real wedding. Various characters in the serial will appear as attendants.

Following convention, the invitations have been issued by "Mother O'Neill," and there will be only 264 on hand for the ceremony. Already the public is requesting them—but the figure still stands at 264.

Dom Ameche's first motion picture was previewed this week at the Fox screening room—and I unhesitatingly predict that the young N. B. C. Chicago studio actor will get along very well in the cinema world. Unhappily, the picture is entitled "Sins of Man." Sounds as though it ought to have "Men Only" after it. On the contrary, it is a grand story of a Tyrolian village sexton and his two sons. Ameche portrays both adult roles of the sons. The film stars Jean Hersholt, but gives Ameche ample opportunity to display what the flicker bosses obviously thought he had for picture work.

If I recall correctly, Ameche was brought out as a radio actor several years ago in the initial "Grand Hotel" series. He has been very active in N. B. C. dramatic work for some time past.

Most notable reaction to his first film: the excellent physical appearance as the two sons of different temperaments and interests. Ameche actually gives a realness to two characters in apearance as well as portrayal.

Jack Miller and his orchestra, associate l with Kate Smith throughout her five years on the air, will be featured each Tuesday and Thursday this summer while Our Katherine vacations. In fact, the first vacation Kate has had since becoming a top-notch radio attraction. Miller also will sing. And probably announce, too, as Ted Collins accompanies Kate on the vacation trip.

Culbertson On Bridge

Mr. Culbertson continues his description of a contract game in the smoking car of a commuters' train.

The thing I was enjoying most about this game was that, for the first time in memory, I was able to retain my position as bona fide kibitzer without the onus of having ticklish questions of bidding or play submitted to me. Far too often in the past my peace of mind has been shattered by the bellows of a player infuriated at one of my forced decisions. The next hand that was dealt, however, made me tremble a bit.

East, dealer.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 dimds.	Pass	4 no trp.	Pass
5 dimds.	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South opened the jack of clubs and the moment the dummy went down East glared bitterly at his partner: "Didn't you tell me you play the new asking bids?" he demanded. He spread his own hand on the table. "Look at this. We've missed a cold grand slam!"

West looked and said: "Yes, I certainly do play asking bids. But what could I do over your repeated asking bid in diamonds, except sign off? I didn't have second round diamond control, and I already had told you about my two aces."

(About this time I began to squirm. I realized what had happened.)

"So you play asking bids!" sneered East. "Well, in that case it would pay you to keep abreast of the times! It is true that when they were published, a repeated asking bid in the same suit asked for further control in that suit, but that particular point was changed! Now, a repeated asking bid, which my second bid of diamonds was, is a request that the four no trumper specify the aces he holds. This was made to order for the system. Holding the ace of the asked suit, and another ace outside the trump suit, you are supposed to bid the side ace.

Poison Racket Inquiry Leads To Fresh Clews

50 Feared Dead as Bay State Delves Into Alleged Insurance Crimes.

By the Associated Press.

Springfield, Mass., June 17.—A new lead lent fresh vigor tonight to the State's inquiry into an alleged insurance racket, responsible, authorities assert, for at least three and possibly half a hundred deaths in neighboring mill-town communities.

District Attorney Thomas F. Moriarty said he had received "valuable" information concerning one of the three deaths.

He refused to say which death the "valuable" information concerned. Nor would he give the informants' names, holding to his promise to "safeguard against publicity" those who co-operated with the police.

Secret Inquest Held.

At a secret inquest in the chambers of Judge John J. Kirby at the Chicopee Town Hall, Dr. William Boos, Boston toxicologist, and State Deectice Lieut. Richard Cotter, attached to Moriarty's office, reported on their investigation into the death of Jacob Znoj, of Chicopee, April 22.

Dr. Boos said later he had found more of a certain poison in Znoj's body than "I ever have in any other body."

He said he had found the same kind of poison in the organs of Frank Kroll and Frank Halgas, both of Ludlow, whose deaths also are under investigation.

Police Chief John D. McGrath, of Ludlow, said one woman had found there were seven insurance policies in her name. He withheld her name.

The Ludlow police said investigators for at least nine insurance companies were working in this section as a result of the inquiry.

Compromise

sist should be carried into the new law, not only to provide an assured revenue, but to prevent companies with large accumulated surpluses from avoiding taxes altogether by making full distributions of current earnings.

Working under pressure, conferees adjourned their afternoon session at 5 o'clock to resume negotiations again at 7:30 p. m. Temporarily passing over tax schedules in dispute, pending further revenue data from the Treasury, conferees plunged into a new fight over a variety of tax "cushion" proposals.

The more optimistic among Congressional leaders believe Congress will get the tax bill tomorrow, and will be able to pass it by driving late Saturday, in time for a week-end convention getaway.

All disposition among Republicans to filibuster the bill once it finally is called up, was fading yesterday. They are torn between two desires in determining their course on the tax bill. If they force Congress to take a recess over the Democratic National Convention, some of their leaders point out, it may mean a long summer session beginning June 29, and much additional legislation driven to passage that is highly obnoxious to the G. O. P. Republicans would gain only one thing—Congress as a campaign "sounding board."

Further, some Congressional Republicans think the tax bill, when enacted, will provide an excellent campaign issue.

The Administration is determined that the tax bill shall be passed this session, even if the measure has to be forced to the floor through the disagreement route. Close telephonic contact was maintained between Democratic tax managers and the President all day, and the White House was reported to have a "contact man" at the Capitol during most of the discussions.

As the tax conference battle raged behind the guarded doors of the House Ways and Means conference room, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, was leading the fight against steeply graduated rates on undivided corporate profits, but with waning support. Representatives Samuel B. Hill, of Washington, and Fred Vinson, of Kentucky (Democrats), were said to be leading the House attack on extension of normal corporate income levies.

Attorney Saves Doomed Elephant

San Francisco, June 17 (AP).—A "lover of animals," armed with a reprieve, saved the life of "Wally" today half an hour before the huge elephant was to have been put to death for killing his trainer, Edward Brown.

Superior Judge Frank T. Deasy signed a restraining order against the execution after the Mayors of Oakland and San Francisco had voiced protests.

Alexander Mooslin, an attorney, who described himself as "a lover of animals," dashed into the judge's chambers and obtained the order at 1:15 p. m. The execution was set for 1:45 p. m. With only half an hour to reach Fleishhacker Zoo, where the elephant was being prepared for death, Mooslin jumped into a taxi and sped away.

Judge Deasy telephoned the Zoo keeper that the order was on the way.

Crack marksmen of the police department had been chosen to shoot the 23-year-old animal, valued at $5,000, because of the rage that cost Brown his life.

Lupescu Foes Blamed For Attack On Editor

Bucharest, Rumania, June 17 (AP). Student enemies of Mme. Magda Lupescu, red-haired friend of King Carol, were said by police today to be responsible for attacks upon a professor and a newspaper editor

Professor Alex Graur was critically injured when struck by an iron bar at the entrance to his university There was a similar attack on Dr. Blumenfels, editor of the newspaper Dimineatsa.

Scientist Lays Immunity to Ills To 2 Proteins

Boston Researcher Traces Disease to Giant and Baby Chemicals.

By the Associated Press.

Rochester, N. Y., June 17.—Immunity to disease is produced by a chemical made of two proteins, one a giant thing in the world of molecules, the other its baby which looks exactly like the giant. The baby is the active thing that prevents disease.

This discovery about the mechanism of man's immunity to disease was reported to the medical section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science today by Sanford B. Hooker, M. D., of the Evans Memorial Hospital, Boston.

It is a step both towards explaining the natural immunity which keeps persons always healthy and toward the acquired immunity which is one of the major goals of medicine. Existence of hundreds of proteins which produce immunity has been known. But how they were fitted together to stop disease has been a scientific jig-saw puzzle.

May Be Solved.

As reported today by Dr. Hooker, the puzzle may be solved by methods commonplace in industrial and medical chemistry.

The "giant" is an "antigen," which means the substance that produces an "antibody." The latter is the baby. The giants are probably proteins, Dr. Hooker said.

They are "catalytic"—that is, they have the power of creating new substances out of the fluids around them. The new substances they create are the "antibodies," the minute, mysterious particles long known to prevent disease.

Cover Antigen Surface.

During one stage of the creation process, Dr. Hooker said, it appears that the little antibodies more or less completely cover the surface of the antigen.

This leads to experimental evidence that the potency of the antibodies against disease lies almost wholly in their surfaces, or in films which cover them. There is further evidence that this potency is due to the power of "adsorption," or the ability of the little things to stick to the germs of infectious disease.

Dr. Hooker's report shows also how it is possible for a simple combination of two proteins to build up the immense known number of various immunizing substances.

Cotton Markets Held Problem for Nation

Memphis, Tenn., June 17 (AP).—Chester C. Davis, retiring farm administrator, told an agricultural meeting today that the maintenance of foreign markets for cotton "is a national and not a regional problem."

Addressing a gathering at the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, Davis declared he was fully convinced that " a satisfactory volume of cotton exports can best be developed and maintained by pursuing a policy that liberalizes and increases national trade."

Jacobs Takes Office As Health Unit Head

Another step toward improved public health services for the District was taken yetserday when Dr. J. Bay Jacobs was sworn in as director of the new maternal welfare division of the Health Department.

The division was set up in conformity with the District's participation in the social security act. Dr. Jacobs will fill the position on a part-time basis.

Puerto Rican Customs Seize Book Scoring U. S.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 17 (AP).—The higher-ups in Washington will have to decide whether a book, "Yankee Imperialism and Revolution in the Caribbean," may be admitted to Puerto Rico.

A consignment of the volumes, written and published in Spain by Enamorada Cuesta, a Puerto Rican and former customs employe, was held up by the customs here and copies were sent to Washington. The book praises the separatist cause and the Nationalist Party.

Victim of 'Third Rail' Dragged Clear by Boy

New York, June 17 (AP).—A 17-year-old delivery boy today shinnied up an elevated pillar and dragged to safety an unconscious track worker, shocked and burned when he accidentally came in contact with the third rail. Joseph La Forte then calmly returned to the street and rode off on his bicycle on his delivery route.

The seriously injured trackwalker, Jerry Aceto, 61, was taken to a hospital, where it was said he might recover.

Police in Cumberland Begin 3-Platoon Plan

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 17.—The three-platoon system in the Cumberland Police Department became effective tonight when policemen went on the eight-hour day schedule.

Under the new setup, the force will have 46 men, who will be divided into three shifts, with one in charge of Chief Oscar A. Eyerman, another commanded by Assistant Chief J. Peter Minnicks and the third by Lieut. John J. Treiber.

Mrs. Harry T. Phoebus To Get Censorship Post

Baltimore, June 17 (AP).—Mrs. Harry T. Phoebus, wife of the erstwhile stormy petrel of Maryland's Republican State senators, will be named to the State board of motion picture censors, Gov. Harry W. Nice announced today. The post pays $2,400 a year.

The appointee is wife of the State senator from Somerset County. Her home is in Oriole. She succeeds Asa Sharpe, of Howard County, whose term is expiring.

North Dakota to Seek Federal Aid On Drought

Bismarck, N. Dak., June 17 (AP).—Gov. Walter Welford suspended his primary campaign today to give his full attention to devising means to meet an emergency created by crop-killing drought which B. W. Snow, a Chicago expert, estimated would reduce the wheat crop by 52,000,000 bushels in the Dakotas and Montana.

Gov. Welford met briefly in Fargo today with planning board and agricultural experts preparatory to flying to Washington Sunday to seek Government aid for those whose crops are ruined.

North Dakota, principal spring wheat-producing State, faces a tense crop situation for the third successive year.
